Imprisonment Follows Week of Comparative Quiet in Revolt.

PRECAUTION TAKEN AGAINST HIS RESCUE

JALALPUR IS SCENE OF REBEL'S ARREST

Incarceration Seen as Result of Dissention Within Mahatma's Ranks.

Jalalpur, India, Monday, May 5 (A. P.).—Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the Indian civil disobedience movement against British rule in India, was suddenly arrested in this village this morning.

Under the terms of a regulation more than a century old, the idol of the Hindu masses wil remain in prison at the pleasure of the government of India.

His arerst, following a wek of comparative tranquility since the riots at Calcutta, Karachi and Peshawar, which were disavowed by Gandhi, had been heralded by many rumor, but finally came with a shock of surprise.

Detained Without Trial.

Upon his folowers, its effects were not imediately visible. The government, which in the face of his overt provocation inviting arrest since he first violated the salt monopoly at the village of Dandi April 6, played a cautious waiting game. Many of his assistants were taken into custody, and imprisoned after summary trials, while with regard to Gandhi the "Raj" bided its time.

Gandhi was taken to the central jail at Yerroda, a town near Poona. Poona is a British military stronghold, and the headquarters of an army command.

Elaborate precautions were taken by the authorities to prevent violence or attempts at rescue.

At Yerroda Gandhi will be detained without trial.

Bombay, India, May 4 (A.P.).—Arrest of several important Gandhi leaders today indicated that British authorities in India intend to take more rigorous steps against the nationalist civil disobedience campaign.

M. Gadgil, president of the youthful League of Poona, and Shankarrao Dev, the maharashtra war council chief, were taken into custody. Dev was tried almost immediately and sentenced in the afternoon to a year's imprisonment and a fine of 100 rupees (about $36).

In a serious explosion near Poona, which is an important British military center and headquarters of an army command, six Indians were injured. They apparently were carrying forth a large detonator that they had stolen from a munitions factory, but dropped it. Guards at the munitions factories have been strongly reinforced because of the theft.

Gandhi's Passive Resistance.

Mohandas Karachand Gandhi, Mahatma or "holy one" of the Hindu masses, whose arrest is reported from Bombay, has had a previous acquaintance with British prisons, though never for any other than a political offense.

With the aid of C. R. Das he launched in 1919 a wide-flung agitation against British sovereignty in India, which caused disturbances all through the year. Finally the government took steps to end all political meetings.

Gandhi quickly seized the opportunity to strengthen his own cause by beginning a movement of nonviolent resistance. His fololwers refused to cooperate in any way with the government.

Enlists Sons and Wife.

The Mahatma was arrested and tried under the civil disobedience acts. Sentenced to five years' imprisonment, he was, however, releasd in a fw months.

After his release he shifted his plans, abandoning the noncooperative movement and centering upon efforts to increase his personal political foothold to fight for home rule. Upon the death of Das, his leader, in 1925, he succeeded to the guiding power in the Nationalist party.

It was about this time that he founded his "ashram" or college of devotees at Ahmadabad. With his four sons and his wife he began to

HALF-DOZEN INJURED IN CLARENDON FIRE

GASOLINE TANKS BURST

Six men were overcome by smoke or burned in a $150,000 fire of unknown origin which destroyed nine buses and the garage of the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. in Clarendon, Va., last night.

Explosions of gasoline and tanks of volatile material hampered the firemen of thirteen communities who were summoned to assist the Clarendon department in combaatting the flames.

Soon after the outbreak of the fire Lloyd Carter, 24 years old, of Ballston, Va., ran from the garage, his clothes aflame, and leaped into an excavation filled with water. Carter was greasing the buses in the building. As the fire raged through the lines of buses the man, trapped in a greasing pit, sought to elude the fire which had encompassed him.

His clothing ignited, but the leap into the excavation extinguished the flames. Stewart Muse, of this city, drew him from the water and rushed him to Georgetown University Hospital.

Firemen feared that a 30,000-gallon storage gasoline tank underneath the building might explode and kept onlookers at a safe distance from the fire.

When Clarendon firemen arrived the one-story brick building was a seething furnace. Aid was immediately called from surrounding towns, and two engines from Washington also responded. Detonations of exploding gasoline tanks punctuated the roar of the flames as they ate their devastating way through the garage.

Citizens aided the firemen in stretching hose. Elmer Reynolds, of Ballston, Va., an employe of the company, together with other bus drivers, drove five of the buses from the garage and parked them at safe distances from the building.

Roynolds was overcome by smoke when he returned to the building. Robert Bailey and Joseph Bailey, members of the Clarendon Fire Department, also were victims of the smoke. They were brought to Georgetown University Hospital for treatment.

MAN SLAIN AS FOUR ATTACK POLICEMAN

FIRES AFTER STRUGGLE

Patrolman F. W. Sanford, of the Fifth Precinct Station, got his man and then killed one of a quartet of men who attacked him in an attempt to liberate the prisoner yesterday.

The scene of the attack was in Navy place, an alley in the Southeast section. Policeman Sandford was patroling his beat about 11 a. m. when he heard Francis Wills, colored, of 409 E street southeast, acting boisterously.

He placed Wills under arrest and was leading his prisoner to a police box when four colored men suddenly leaped on him. One of his assailants grabbed him by the throat while the others attempted to break his hold on Wills' coat.

The struggle lasted for several minutes when the colored men suddenly loosened their hold on the policeman. Sandford grabbed his gun and fired one shot.

A chase over fences and through alleys proved futile. Later a passerby found James Campbell, colored, 26 years old, of 652 Navy place, lying in an alley near Navy place, seriously wounded.

An automobile was commandeered and Campbell was rushed to Casualty Hospital where it was found a bullet had punctured his abdomen. Campbell succumbed to the wound at 9:25 p. m.

Later Wills was apprehended and was locked up at the Fifth Precinct Station on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

10 Hurt in Disturbance At Poland's New Port

Warsaw, May 4 (A.P.).—Gdynia, Poland's new seaport, had its first political disturbance today when 800 youthful members of the national organization which opposes Marshal Pilsudski's government clashed with citizens loyal to Pilsudski. Three were seriously injured and seven others suffered minor hurts. Gdynia, which has grown from a fishing village to a modern port in four years under Marshal Pilsudski's government, is extremely loyal to the dictator.

HUNDREDS FLEE HOMES IN FIRES SWEEPING EAST

200 COTTAGES BURN ON STATEN ISLAND

REFUGEES CONGEST NEW JERSEY ROADS

New England Cities Menaced and Shrouded by Smoke From Conflagrations.

New York, May 4 (A.P.).—Flames, swept onward by a stiff spring breeze, wrought havoc today in widely separated sections of the East.

A small fire that started in a wooden bridge at Nashua, N. H., gateway city to the Granite State, destroyed most of the southeastern section of the city, including at least 125 houses, several business establishments, a church and school.

On Long Island and Staten Island, in New Jersey, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, destructive brush and forest fires baffled the fighting skill of thousands of regular firemen and volunteers.

Hundreds Made Homeless.

On Staten Island, in New York Harbor, brush fires cut a wide swath. They burned 200 cottages at Oakwood Heights, making hundreds of persons homeless, and threatened Rossville, Princes Bay and Pleasant Plains.

Fire apparatus, ferried over from Manhattan and Broklyn for the first time in twenty years, reached its destination just in time to save 5,000 bungalows at South Beach from the flames.

The Long Island fires, covering an area estimated at 100 square miles, were the worst in a quarter-century. The biggest one, believed to have started from a burning lumber yard at Amityville, swept a section 10 miles long and 3 miles wide, and sent a huge column of smoke a mile into the air, whence it drifted out over the Atlantic.

Villages Are Threatened.

Strung out from Amityville 75 miles along the south short of the island to Southampton were innumerable smaller fires, which threatened villages and were reported to have burnt several barns and houses. Residents of Bayshore and Babylon, enveloped by the dense smoke, failed to catch a climpse of the sun all day.

Sixty-eight fire companies fought in vain to stem the fiery tide and aviators from the Long Island flying fields flew over the area surveying the damage.

Southern New Jersey was completely enveloped in smoke from at least a half dozen fires. In Atlantic County the worst fire for many years laid waste 1,500 acres of scrub oak and pine underbrush, destroyed several small houses and sent hundreds of

SENATE WAITS TREATY VIEWS FROM STIMSON

Borah Committee Plans to Hear Department of State Head.

NAVY GROUP HOLDS TOPIC IN ABEYANCE

Hale Fears Agreement Will Force Change in Policy on Cruisers.

ROBINSON AND REED READY FOR CONTEST

Signs Point to Confidence of Administration in Confirmation.

(Associated Press.)

Yielding to Secretary Stimson, as chief delegate to the London conference, the opportunity to be first to explain the naval limitation treaty, Chairman Hale, of the Senate naval committee, announced last night a postponement of the hearing he had planned to open today with Secretary of the Navy Adams on the stand.

The State Department head is expected to appear before the Senate's foreign affairs committee, whose chairman, Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, has anounced he will begin consideration of the treaty Wednesday. Senator Hale hopes to open his hearings the latter part of the week.

Senator Hale said that after consultation with Secretary Adams and in view of the treaty being formally before the foreign affairs committee he had decided upon postponement until after Secretary Stimson had had an opportunity to explain the treaty to Senator Borah's group.

Senator Hale's hearing was called to develop what effect the terms of the agreement would have upon the Navy. After Adams' testimony, Admiral William V. Pratt and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired, the naval advisers to the London parley, are to be heard.

Sees Change in Navy Policy.

Senator Hale has voiced a fear that the treaty will for cea change in policy by the Navy in favor of light cruisers at the expense of five of the proposed 23 cruisers of 10,000 tons each planned under present legislation. He has asked the Senate to withhold framing its judgment on the treaty until Navy chiefs have been questioned.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, one of the American delegation, is on hand to wage the contest for the treaty if one develops and Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, another of the delegates, will return to the city tomorrow in time for the meeting of the foreign relations committee Wednesday.

Senators Robinson and Reed have been aligned with the dominant big Navy forces in the Senate in the past and obth voted for the 15-cruiser program a year ago. This program.

Air Chief's 800 Miles to Dayton and Back Made in Six Hours.

(Associated Press.)

A conference in Dayton, Ohio, yesterday did not keep Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, Chief of Air Corps, from spending the afternoon in Washington.

Accompanied by Capt. Ira Eaker, he left here by plane at 6:15 o'clock this morning and arrived at 9:30 o'clock at Wright Field, Dayton. After a 25-minute conference with Brig. Gen. B. D. Foulois, commandant of the station, the pair boarded another plane and landed here in Bolling Field at 12:40 o'clock. The entire trip estimated at 800 miles air distance, took but six hours.

Two days ago the flying general flew from Fargo, N. Dak., a 1,300-mile journey, in 7 hours and 20 minutes.

DEMOCRAT TAKES RAP AT PROVISIONS

FARMERS TO LOSE, STATEMENT SAYS

(Associated Press.)

More than 1,000 economists, representing 179 colleges throughout the country, joined in a letter to President Hoover and the Congress yesterday protesting against enactment of the tariff bill and asking that it be vetoed if passed.

The Hawley-Smooot measure, the conference report on which will be taken up in the Senate after the Parker nomination is disposed of this week, also was the target for a statement by Representative Collier (Democrat) Mississippi, who said the bill left the House yesterday carrying the "highest rates of any bill ever enacted by the American Congress."

Dr. Clair Wilcox, associate professor of economics at Swarthmore College, presented the statement on behalf of the economists, who included Irving Fisher, Yale; Frank W. Taussig, Harvard; Frank E. Fetter, Princeton; Wesley C. Mitchell, Columbia; Henry R. Saeger, Columbia; J. Laurence Laughlin, Chicago; Wilford I. King, New York University; M. B. Hammond, Ohio State; E. M. Patterson, University of Pennsylvania; Emory R. Johnson, dean of Wharton School, Pennsylvania, and H. S. Person, managing director, Taylor Society.

Fear Increased Living Cost.

The statement expressed the conviction on the part of the signers that "increased restrictive duties would be a mistake," and would "increase the cost of living and injure the great majority of our citizens."

Few people could hope to gain from such a change, the statement said, adding that the vast majority of the farmers would lose, American export trade in general would suffer and unemployment would not be lessened.

"Finally," it concluded, "we could urge our Government to consider the bitterness which a policy of higher tariffs would inevitably inject into our international relations."

It was contended the pending bill violated the spirit of the world economic conference agreement of 1927, in which the United States was represented, and which resolved to discourage higher tariffs and to "move in the opposite direction."

Collier Scores Measure.

Representaitve Collier, a member of the ways and means committee, asserted all the fifteen rate schedules have been materially increased over existing law.

"The Congress was called primarily for the benefit of agriculture," he said, "and while in most instances the rates on agricultural products were immaterial and the rates have been raised, yet the real substantial raises have all been on manufactures of steel, cotton, wool, flax, hemp, jute and rayon."

Republican leaders hope to send the Hawley-Smoot measure to the White House in a week or ten days. The Senate must yet act on the conference report and instruct its conferees on the provisions still in disagreement through adverse House action.

Six Subject to Change.

Of the eight major amendments unsettled by the conferees and voted upon last week by the House, six are still subject to change by Senate action, including the silver and lumber

SEDATIVE OVERDOSE IS FATAL TO WOMAN

DIVIDES HER PROPERTY

Tired of "this miserable and unhappy life," Miss Mary Faldon, 69 years old, of Hume Spring, Alexandria, Va., died last night in Georgetown Hospital from an overdose of sedatives she swallowed Thursday night in her home.

Miss Faldon, who police say had been in ill health, swallowed 200 tablets before penning two notes, one to her brother George and the other unaddressed.

In her note to her brother she wrote:

"My Dear George:

"I'm tired of this miserable, unhappy life, so have decided to end it all. May God forgive me." "Your affectionate sister, Mary."

A postscript declared that she wanted her property to be divided equally between George and two other brothers, Robert and Thomas, and her sister, Isabelle Wilkinson.

The second note read:

New U. S. Envoy Reaches Vienna.

Vienna, May 4 (A.P.).—Gilchrist B. Stockton, new United States Minister to Vienna, arrived this evening from Paris and was met by the legation staff. Chancellor Johann Schober, returning from visits to Paris and London, was on the same train and was met by the entire Diplomatic Corps.

DEATH OF DAUGHTER CHARGED TO AUTOIST

RUM DRIVING ALLEGED

Thomas Garner, of Mellwood, Md., was last night charged with manslaughter a few minutes after his 8-year-old daughter, Margaret, died in the home of a Forrestville, Md., physician from injuries received when Garner's automobile, driven when he was allegedly under the influence of liquor, crashed into a telegraph pole on the Marlboro pike near Forrestville. Two others were injured.

In the automobile with Mr. Garner were his three children and a relative, Mrs. Sally Peacock, of Forestville, Md. Mr. Garner was released after posting $2,000 bail at the office of Justice of the Peace Thomas R. Griffith.

Mrs. Peacock is at Casualty Hospital. Her condition is undetermined. Her injuries were given as lacerations of the face and serious head injuries.

Virginia Garner, 13 years old, is also at Casualty. She is being treated for a fracture of the left thigh and shock. Her condition is not regarded as serious.

Gladys Garner, 7 years old, another occupant of the machine, was brought to Casualty, but was unhurt.

Miss Theresa Palais, chaperon for a group of girls from the Star-of-the-Sea Academy at Long Branch, N. J., returning to this city after a trip to Annapolis, told police that as the

Clarendon Man Will Face Judge for Sunday Painting

Summoned Under Law of County Forbidding Sabbath Labor.

Invoking an ancient Sunday blue law, Arlington County authorities early yesterday afternoon restrained a Clarendon resident from painting his house and summoned him to appear before Judge Harry R. Thomas in Clarendon Police Court at 9:30 o'clock this morning to face charges. The ordinance prescribes that no work shall be done on property in the county on Sundays, unless of an emergency character.

The man is C. B. Rosenberger, of 404 Wilson boulevard, whose plight immediately stirred the National Association Opposed to Blue Laws to assign a Washington attorney, John J. McGinnis, to defend him. McGinnis, vice president of the District of Columbia Association Opposed to Blue Laws, will be assisted in the defense by P. J. Wallace, of Great Falls, Minn.,

Maryland Blue Laws Snare Aviation Men

Baltimore, May 4 (A.P.).—Maryland's blue laws were enforced in Baltimore County today, and four aviation officials were arrested, charged with "commercializing the Sabbath by carrying passengers for hire. The officials of the county yesterday issued warning to the several airports of their contemplated plans. Managers of some fields respected the order to shut down, but others operated as usual, seeking a "test case."

Those arrested were Lieut. Lee H. Dice, operations manager of the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service at Logan Field; J. Wilbur Mullen, field traffic manager of the same airport; Edward Handler, president of the Baltimore Airways, Inc., operators of Handler Field, and Warrington W. Moss, jr., manager of the Green Spring Valley Airport.

Ride Victim Snatched From Death by Police

Man Who Sought to Save His Sweetheart From Hoodlums Rescued as Gangsters' Guns Are Leveled at Him.

Chicago, May 4 (A.P.).—A curtained automobile stopped on a dark road just outside suburban La Grange Park early today. A figure tumbled out into the ditch and three men stepped out briskly. In the blackness a voice was heard to say:

"You have half a minute to live!"

And suddenly three shadows came out of the bushes; three flashlights shone on the kidnapers, and a voice of authority snapped:

"Get your hands up!"

So Earl Holmes came back alive this morning from what he had feared was to be a ride of death. Unknown to him or to his abductors, Police Sergt. E. J. Mitchell and Patrolmen William Powell and Otto Piltz had been attracted by the kidnap car as it rolled through in the early hours and had followed. It was they who had stepped out of the darkness to arrest Frank Fabarulo, 35; John Hennessy, 34, a former Chicago policeman, and Samuel Baldino, 23.

At the station Holmes told his story. He had fallen in love, he said, with Anna Larson, 23, who was being courted by Fabarulo. He had urged her to leave "the gang." Then the girl was arrested in January with Mrs. Margaret Russell Alberts, the latter as the slayer of Frank Battaglia, West Side hoodlum, and the former as an accessory. While the girl was in jail he wrote her further, he said, pleading with her to marry him and move away from hoodlum haunts, and, when she was released on bond, she agreed.

They had gone to her home last night, he related, to get her belongings, only to find the three men there.

Marine Planes Bomb Bandits in Nicaragua

Managua, Nicaragua, May 4 (A.P.).—Though no official announcement has eebn made by headquarters, it was learned today that last week airplanes piloted by U. S. Marines bombed several groups of bandits in the northern sector of Nicaragua.

Seven bombing planes, which left the Managua base last Friday, located and heavily bombed a bandit position on Jicote Hill, just south of the Honduran border in Chinandega department. Yesterday three other airplanes bombed another group of bandits north of the town of Jinotega. The losses suffered by the bandits are not known.

Father, Bereft By Blast, Attempts Death With Gun

Harry M. Sears, Depressed by Visit to Daughter's Grave, Victim of McCrory Explosion, Fires Bullet Through Temple on Return.

Brooding constantly over the fatal injury of his daughter in the McCrory store blast here last November, a grief heightened by a visit to her grave, Harry M. Sears, 64 years old, of 63 W street northwest, fired a bullet into his temple yesterday afternoon in a private garage in the rear of the home. He was removed to Casualty Hospital, where he was reported dying early last night.

Mr. Sears was found lying conscious in the garage at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by his son-in-law, Charles E. Darlington, of the same residence, when the latter, returning from an automobile ride with other members of the family, opened the garage doors.

A 32-caliber pistol lay at Mr. Sears' side, with one empty shell, according to Eighth Precinct Policemen C. Ford and B. C. Thompson, who responded to a call.

"I shot myself," Mr. Sears was quoted as telling the policemen in response to the inquiries while he was being sent, still conscious, to the hospital.

On a table in the kitchen lay a note, scrawled in pencil, addressed to "Charles," his son-in-law, which read:

"Please forgive me for what I have done. I could not stand it any longer. P. S. You will find me in the garage."

The note was signed "Capt." a nickname of Mr. Sears.

Mr. Darlington told police that the fatal injury of his wife, Mrs. Florence Darlington, daughter of Mr. Sears, in the explosion on November 11 at the J. G. McCrory Five and Ten Cent Store, 416 Seventh street, had been a terrific shock to Mr. Sears and that

...ation, the Blease cement amendment, and the export debenture, flexible clause, and Tariff Commission reorganization provisions. The House rejected the Senate amendments touching all of these, but finally settled the sugar and shingles disputes by accepting 2 cents on the former and the free list for the latter.

In turnnig down the export debenture and the flexible clause withdrawing presidential authority to make emergency rate changes, the House supported President Hoover in both instances. Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the House majority leader, expressed the opinion that the Executive would not sign a bill with the debenture plan in it.

Republican chiefs in both houses are confident the debenture is definitely out of the bill and that a compromise on the flexible provision retaining in the President the right to raise or lower duties within a limit of 50 per cent will be worked out in conference.

HUNDREDS ARE MADE HOMELESS BY FIRES

Hundreds Flee Homes.

Near Pomona, Assecon and Oceanville, N. J., hundreds of men fought heroically to keep the flames away from the settlements, but several houses were burned. Another fire destroyed fifteen structures in Forked River, Ocean County, and sent hundreds fleeing from their homes, leaving their valuables behind. Fire warden and State troopers flew over the burning areas directing the work of battling the flames.

In some places in New Jersey the roads were clogged with refugees and sightseers so badly that traffic was almost at a standstill.

A fire between Woronoco and Russell, Mass., burned over about 1,000 acres and threatened the Springfield water works. Twenty fires in the vicinity of Worcester, Mass., gave fire fighters a terrific battle and in southern Rhode Island flames were raging along a 10-mile front.

Connecticut Buildings Burn.

In the north and central sections of Connecticut tonight fires had destroyed several buildings, including a shed containing seven tons of tobacco, two dwellings, and a number of farm buildings, besides much standing timber.

Nashua, N. H., May 4 (A.P.).—The southeastern section of this city was laid in ruins by fire today. At least 125 houses, a number of industrial plants and a church were destroyed before the flames were brought under control tonight. More than 500 persons were made homeless and many families lost tall their belongings as well. Fire officials estimated the total damage at $2,000,000.

The fire started in a wooden bridge across the Nashua River shortly after 3 p. m. It spread through the thickly settled residential part of Nashua, fanned by a 40-mile-an-hour northwest wind.

Militia Called Out.

Fire companies were called from neighboring cities and towns in New Hampshire and Massachusetts. Three companies of militia were called out to aid firemen and police in the fire area.

A mile-long, fan-shaped area of smouldering ruins and burning houses, factories and lumber yards, from which roaring flames and an ugly cloud of smoke rose skyward into a stiff wind, was the picture seen by an Associated Press staff man in an airplane flight over the city.

Industrial buildings in the stricken area were huge boxes of flames, homes were literally crumbling into ashes, and in lumber yards, pile after pile of lumber burned as rapidly as the wind could carry the flames to them.

Scores Huddle Together.

In the few open lots and fields in this area of destruction, like dots on a map, could be seen scores of persons huddled together in groups. Beside them were their household belongings, hastily removed from homes that had been or were to be devoured.

From the Boston & Maine Railroad Bridge, where the fire started, the path of destruction was comparatively narrow for a distance of about a quarter of a mile. It then spread out until at its farthest end, the southeast outskirts of the city, it was fully as wide as it was long.

As if determined to have prey, even when buildings no longer remained to be devoured, the flames jumped the Nashua River in this section and soon were racing through a grove of pine trees.

Some Houses Unharmed.

The flames traveled a queer course. Hopping and skipping like a giant checker player, they leaped from one house to another, but left others untouched in the midst of smouldering heaps of ashes.

The 1930 census figures, recently announced, gave the city a population of 31,148, of which a considerable portion is made up of persons of French-Canadian descent.

Father Ulbade Simoneau of the Church and Convent School of the Infant Jesus (French Roman Catholic), led 600 children to safety from the parochial hall, where they were watching a play. Ten minutes later the hall was a mass of fire.

Homeless Put in Armory.

Tonight several companies of the National Guard patroled the stricken area. At the armory the homeless gathered; 500 cots were provided and the local chapter of the Red Cross took charge of providing them with food and bedding.

Those hardest hit, perhaps, were the employes of Proctor Brothers' barrel factory and the White Mountain Freezer Co., who lost tthcir places of employment as well as their homes. These two plants, employing about 400 persons, were razed, as were the Hill Coal Co. plant, the Nashua Building Co., and the lumber yards of the large American Box & Lumber Co., thousands of feet of wood being destroyed.

In addition to the Church of the Infant Jesus, the Crown Hill Baptist Church went up in smoke, and several small business establishments scattered through the section.

PARKER FRIENDS SET FOR UPHILL BATTLE

FOES STILL CONFIDENT

Facing an uphill contest for votes, friends of Judge John J. Parker, of North Carolina, prepared yesterday to take the offensive today in the Senate debate in a final effort to win his confirmation as a member of the Supreme Court.

With a half dozen senators ready to carry on the debate today for the nominee, leaders abandoned hope of a vote on Parker before tomorrow. Meanwhile there was no apparent change over the week-end in the line-up, the foes still claiming victory and the proponents still working for a majority.

Senators Waterman (Republican), Colorado, and Stephens (Democrat), Mississippi, two members of the judiciary committee which voted 10 to 6 against Parker, will take up the Parker cause today, and several others, including Senators Allen (Republican), Kansas, and Jones (Republican), Washington, are in line to follow up the attack.

Hoover Actively in Fight.

Little hope was held out yesterday by leaders of either side of support for a motion to recommit the nomination to committee. There has been some discussion of this, but the apparent determination of President Hoover not to withdraw the nomination under any circumstances has about killed the movement.

The President is represented as taking a most active part in the drive for votes and the Parker foes expressed alarm yesterday that his efforts might upset their calculations. Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, leader of the opposition, is prepared to reenter the debate if he feels the situation demands.

The Hoover activities are credited with strengthening the Republican forces which split wide when the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People protested against the attitude of Judge Parker to the Negroes.

Southerners Unknown Quality.

However, Senator Borah has made his attack upon the nominee solely on the ground of the attitude he expressed in upholding an injunction restraining the United Mine Workers from soliciting membership among employes of the Red Jacket Coal Co. in West Virginia who had signed "yellow dog" contracts not to join the unions.

The unknown position of many of the Southern Democrats toward Parker has caused considerable doubt in the calculations all week over the final result. A letter read to the Senate by Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, showing that Joseph M. Dixon, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, urged the White House to appoint Parker as a "master political stroke" caused considerable confusion. Parker is a Republican.

"Humanized" Court Asked.

Another factor in the debate has been the protest over Mr. Parker's activities as a Government prosecutor of a war frauds case, which was dismissed by the trial judge, Groner, of the Virginia Federal Court. Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, said evidence showing the innocence of the defendants was produced by defense counsel from the Government's files.

Senator Overman (Democrat), North Carolina, replied with a letter from Judge Groner lauding Judge Parker's handling of that case. He also quoted from Judge Groner's instructions to the jury in that case in which Mr. Parker was credited with fairness and ability.

It has been a strenuous debate, but there has been little acrimony. Senators Fess, Ohio, and Hastings, Delaware, Republicans, charged that the attack against Mr. Parker was one developed by socialistic influences and was one aimed at the independence of the Supreme Court. Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, denied this, and pleaded that the Court be "humanized."

HERMAN P. GOEBEL DEAD.

MANUFACTURERS HIT ANTITRUST MEASURE

COUNSEL ENTERS BRIEF

(Associated Press.)

The Shipstead antitrust injunction bill was attacked as "clearly invalid as a matter of law and revolutionary in its social aspects," in a brief filed by James A. Emery, counsel for the National Associatoin of Manufacturers, with the Senate judiciary committee.

In announcing the filing of the brief, the National Association of Manufacturers yesterday said it represented the views of 60,000 employers.

If the bill is enacted and held valid, Emery contended, "it would deprive the Federal courts of authority to issue injunctions for the protection of property rights against irreparable injury whenever the case in any way arose out of a labor controversy, unless actual fraud or violence could be shown, in which case a limited and wholly inadequate protection might be afforded."

"No injunctions," Emery said, "could be issued under any circumstances against nine sets of acts, including strikes and the support of strikes, even when accompanied by ththreats of violence.

"The so-called yellow dog contract would be denied legal or equitable protection in all cases notwithstanding such contracts, when supported by consideration, have been held valid by many State courts, including New York, and have three times been declared valid by the Supreme Court of the United States."

Trial by jury, he added, would be provided by the Shipstead bill for so-called "indirect criminal contempts," which, he said, would include jury trial for violation of the "padlock injunctions under the Volstead act," of which more than 21,000 have been issued.

"The bill clearly is invalid as a matter of law and revolutionary in its social aspects," he said, "adding that it was "in violent conflict with the public policy of the people of the United States."

HOOVER ASSAILED ON DRY LAW PLANS

LaGuardia Says Enforcement Program Impossible fo Execution.

LOBBY QUIZ CONTINUES

(Associated Press.)

As both branches of Congress planned to give attention this week to the law enforcement commission's proposals to strengthen prohibition enforcement, Representative LeGuardia (Republican), yesterday assailed the program urged by President Hoover in a recent message to Congress, as "impossible of execution."

"No matter what legislation may be passed," LaGuardia, who is a wet, said in a statement, "it is simply impossible to effect the results desired by the President. Nothing to date shows the impossibility of prohibition enforcement more than the recommendations of the Wickersham commission, indorsed by the President."

In that connection, however, the Senate judiciary committee will meet tomorrow to consider reporting for passage the Williamson bill to transfer prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Justice Department, one of the most important items in the commission's program. It previously passed the House.

Hearing on Stobbs Bill.

On the other side of the Capitol, the House judiciary committee plans to respond to the Chief Executive's appeal to expedite action on other commission proposals tomorrow. A decision on whether the Christopherson bills to authorize juryless trials before United States commissioners or the Bachmann bills to increase the number of Federal judges as a solution to Federal court congestion is to be reached at that time.

In addition, the House judiciary committee is to consider the Stobbs bill to modify the Jones law through the elimination of the provision for Federal judges to discriminate between casual and habitual violators and the fixing of maximum penalties for minor violators who are convicted of the manufacture, sale or transportation of less than a gallon of liquor.

Representative Sparks (Republican), Kansas, a dry, plans to insist that the House judiiary committee, of which he is a member, reach a decision on the seven resolutions to repeal the eighteenth amendment on which extensive hearings have been held. With drys predominating the committee, Chairman Graham considers it extremely doubtful favorable action on any one could be obtained. Sparks contended the hearings "proved the people want prohibition."

Overcrowding of Jails.

Attacking the President's message where it pointed out a desire to abolish "the so-called bargain day when light fines are imposed as a result of pleas of guilty" and that they "distinctly undermine respect for law," Mr. LaGuardia said: "It is clear that the desire of the Wickersham commission, as indorsed by the President, is to abolish fines and to impose prison sentences for violations of the liquor law."

Mr. LaGuardia said that even if additional Federal judges were appointed, the increased number of persons convicted would overcrowd the prisons to be constructed under the new program.

"Instead of providing for a Federal prison population of 11,985 prisoners," the New Yorker continued, "we would have to provide for a Federal prison population of 40,000. Besides additional judges the plan naturally requires a corresponding increase in district attorneys, marshals, Department of Justice employes, prison guards and penal institution personnel, a veritable new army of Federal employes to be added to the proposed increase in the border patrol, Coast Guard and prohibition force."

Action on Prison Expansion.

While attention is being given the law enforcement program, the Senate lobby committee will near the testimony of E. C. Jameson, New York financier, tomorrow on his contributions to Bishop Cannon, of the Methodist piscopal Church South, for the Virginia anti-Smith campaign of 1928. Jameson is to reply to charges made by Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, that he had contributed $65,300 to the campaign but that only $17,000 had been accounted for to date.

The $7,000,000 Federal prison expansion program urged by the President has been passed by the House and is awaiting Senate action, which probably will come within a fortnight. It would provide two new Federal penitentiaries, a hospital for criminal insane and a number of Federa ljails to be established in various sections of the country.

"In order to clear the congestion of the courts, abolish bargain days, abolish light fines and enforce the Jones law, urged by the President in his message," LaGuardia said, "it would be necessary for Congress not only to pass the legislation requested, but to provide for twenty additional Federal penitentiaries."

Acting on complaint of a man whose name was not made public, Sheriff Howard Fields sent Special County Officer Wayne Carr at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon to halt Rosenberger from painting the exterior of his home, located opposite St. George Episcopal Church.

The Association Opposed to Blue Laws, through Linn A. E. Gale as secretary and Dr. Joseph A. Themper as chairman of the board of directors, promptly issued a statement attacking blue laws in Virginia.

"This may be used as a pivotal test case to strike at Virginia's blue laws," it read. "We have had many requests for aid in the Virginia situation but have done little there so far, although we have accomplished a great deal in West Virginia and other States."

BRITISH IMPRISON GANDHI IN SURPRISE

Sworn to Poverty.

He swore his followers to truth and poverty. What he had they could have, but no more. And for himself, he wanted nothing. Whatever the nature of his campaigns, Gandhi always has observed prayer, meditation and renunciation. His mental attitude has been such as to place him beyond the effects of any form of punishment that might be placed upon him. Of his followers he asked a similar sacrifice and the same mode of life.

His entire campaign for years has been menaced not so much by the threat of drastic government suppression as by outcroppings of violence among his more fanatic following.

Two Sons Imprisoned.

In the procession of events since March 12 last, when Gandhi and his band began their march from Ahmadabad to the sea, his constant command has been for peace. With the entire cooperation of his native cohorts throughout India, and utter absence of violence, Gandhi doubtless could have carried on his educational plans to a much greater length.

It was the outcropping of violence which, in spite of his appeals, sprang from his present civil disobedience campaign that ultimately defeated him, by forcing the government to take his personally into custody.

Two of his sons and many of his lieutenants have preceded him into prison, but the effects of his arrest will be incalculably greater upon the hundreds of millions of people living in "Mother India."

CONGRESS TO MEET ON MENTAL HYGIENE

3,000 ARE EXPECTED

From 53 countries and many parts of the United States delegates arrived yesterday and will arrive today to attend the first International Congress on Mental Hygiene, which opens its sessions at the Hotel Willard at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

For a week Washington will be the scene of the first world gathering to discuss personality and mental trouble from many points of view. Psychiatrists, psychologists, educators, judges, social workers, students of industry and many others will be here. The mental and emotional situations underlying behavior in all of its phases, normal and abnormal alike, will be discussed. Specifically, children, adolescence, marriage, adult maladjustments, trials and tribulations of parents, crime, economic dependence and many other subjects will be the topics of popular and technical statements.

Not since science began to explore the behavior of men 50 years ago has there been such a world conclave of mental hygienists. Advance registration exceeds 3,000.

Governments Send Delegates.

Many governments have sent official delegates, the State Department of the United States having transmitted invitations from the congress of foreign ministers in every country asking them to take such action. President Hoover is honorary president of the congress.

"What the Countries of the World Are Doing in Mental Hygiene," will be the subject of the opening session this afternoon. Reports will be received from many countries. A precongress survey of mental hygiene development abroad has been made in order that this series of reports can be given.

An international dinner will be held at the Willard at 7:30 tonight to welcome the delegates from other countries and Hon. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, will be the principal speaker. Dr. William A. White, president of the congress and superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital, Washington, will preside.

Meanwhile, both the American Psychiatric Association and the American Association for the Study of the Feeble-minded, which are holding annual meetings in Washington this week, will get under way this morning. The former will open with a meeting at 9:30 o'clock at the Willard, at which speakers will discuss convulsive disorders, and the latter with a meeting at the Washington at the same hour, one of the subjects being the sterilization of mental defectives, a practice authoried by 24 States at present.

Evening Meeting to Be Held.

Popular interest in the first international congress on mental hygiene will probably center in the evening meetings, which will be held in Constitution Hall. Each of these will begin at 8:15 o'clock except the one Wednesday night, which will begin at 8 o'clock. Tuesday night the speakers will be Dr. White, who will give the presidential address; Clifford W. Beers, author of "A Mind That Found Itself" and founder of the mental hygiene movement, and Rev. Anton Phelps Stokes, canon of Washington Cathedral. Presiding will be Dr. William H. Welch, of Johns Hopkins University, whom President Hoover honored recently by speaking at his eightieth birthday celebration.

Wednesday evening's meeting will be a jont session with the American Psychiatric Association. James R. Angell, presdent of Yale, will discuss "Mental Hygiene and Education," and Hornell Hart, of Bryn Mawr College, will speak on "The Family and Fulfillment of Personality." Dr. Earl D. Bond, president of the American Psychiatric Association, will preside.

Sir Maurice Craig, C. B. E., M. D., F. R. C. P., specialist in psychological medicine at Guy's Hospital, London, will speak at the Thursday evening meeting, as will also Rene Sand, of Paris, technical councilor, of the League of Red Cross Societies.

Penal System to Be Discussed.

On Friday the subject will be "How Society Ought to Treat Criminals," and Dr. Jur Lothar Frede, of the ministry of justice, Thuringia, will discuss recent innovations in the penal system of part of Germany.

Meanwhile, three concurrent morning sessions will be held each morning from Tuesday to Saturday. The purpose will be to have a maximum of discussion and a minimum of formal paper-reading. Speakers will be limited to ten minutes, though the main papers have been printed in advance.

Preparations for the congress have been going on for over a year. Frederic A. Delano is chairman of the local Washington committee which has been helping to arrange for the entertainment and convenience of the delegates. Social features will relieve the serious discussions. Between 4 and 6 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Secretary and Mrs Wilbur will give a reception to visitors from other countries and to officials of the Congress at the Interior Department, and Friday afternoon Dr. White will hold a presidential reception for all delegates at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Capital Man to Blaze Trail in Tropic Lands

Blazing of a trail for scientific research from the Mayan ruins at Quirigua and Copan through Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica on to the heights of Balboa in Panama will be attempted by T. The two plan to sail on June 14 from New Orleans for Puerto Barrios, Guatemala, to begin their pioneering journey from the Mayan ruins. They have compiled informative scientific data in studies throughout that region in the last two years. The trip, designed to increase the knowledge of Central America, was planned in conference with officials of the Pan-American Union.

CROSS-COUNTRY AIR MARK SET BY YOUTH

Frank Goldsborough, 19, Lands at West Coast After Adventurous Flight.

HE PLANS TO FLY BACK

Los Angeles, May 4 (A.P.).—Frank Goldsborough, 19-year-old Jackson Heights, N. Y., flier, landed at an outlying airport at 1 p. m. today, to clip 13 hours 57 minutes from the transcontinental record for junior fliers.

Goldsborough flew in from Colton, Calif., under extremely unfavorable weather conditions. He said he was forced to climb 10,000 feet in some intances to escape rain and storm clouds. He was convoyed from Colton by a fleet of airplanes.

The last leg of his flight, approximately 40 miles, was covered in just as many minutes, the bad weather slowing him down somewhat.

Seeks Out Lunch Counter.

Immediately upon landing, Goldsborough asked to be shown a lunch counter. He said he intended to fly back East again some time next week in an effort to set a record for the West-East trip.

The youth took off last Monday from Westfield, N. J., and, despite considerable trouble en route, spent only 34 hours 3 minutes in the air on the cross-country trip. The former record of 48 hours was set by Dick James.

Goldsborough is the son of Bryce Goldsborough, pilot of the ill-fated transatlantic plane Dawn. The youth learned to fly only last September, but at several points on his flight from seaboard to seaboard he displayed great skill and daring. Near El Paso, Tex., he came down in the desert and then cracked one of the wings of his plane getting away again. He continued the flight, however, and made repairs at the Texas border city.

Tough Luck and Bad Weather.

The youth took off from El Paso Friday for Tucson, Ariz., later continuing to Yuma, Ariz. There a thunderstorm forced him down for two hours, but finally against the advice of experienced aviators, Goldsborough took off for Los Angeles. He nosed his ship through treacherous San Gorgonio Pass, shunned by all airplanes, and flew over Colton, Calif. Headwinds encountered after he left Yuma, however, had cut down his gasoline supply and with darkness approaching he decided to land. Selecting a fair sized bean field, Goldsborough came down successfully, despite the presence of numerous power lines.

Yesterday Goldsborough attempted to complete his trip but a low ceiling and frequent rain squalls forced him to return to his impromptu landing place.

DIAL PHONES CALLED PLEASING TO PUBLIC

More Rings Than Are Usual for Sunday Greet First Use of System.

LITTLE DIFFICULTY MET

Lloyd D. Wilson, president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., and other officials last night expressed gratification at the results of the new dial system after the first 24 hours of its inauguration.

The opening of the new system caused hundreds of more calls than usual to be made Sunday, which is considered a slow day in telephone traffic. Many subscribers, it was found, took up the innovation by calling their friends.

Edwin Hill, in charge of public relations of the company, declared that numerous messages of congratulations had been received from subscribers, who have declared the dial system has proved a quicker means of communication than the old manual system.

As was expected by company officials, some subscribers have found the dial system a little difficult, but they declare that everything will be ironed out in a few days and the old system of telephone operation will be forgotten.

Many subscribers, particularly those connected with the Georgia exchange, have used the abbreviation, Ga., instead of the abbreviation, Ge., as listed after each subscriber's number in the telephone directory in that particular exchange.

The company kept its entire force of operators at work the entire day to assist and educate subscribers in obtaining the right number.

Have You Been Framed?

Dozens of complaints have been filed with the Better Business Bureau against so-called art colonies and artists associations who employ solicitors going from door to door, obtaining old photographs and enlarging and coloring the pictures.

"The work is not done as represented," housewives have reported to this Bureau. But primarily the complaint comes that these Washington ladies have been tricked into signing contracts calling for framing of the pictures at alleged excessive prices.

Investigations by Better Business Bureaus in the cities where these schemes originate clearly show that these are not artists associations at all, but are merely picture framing businesses using tricky methods to get business. The salesman's convincing stories that Mrs. Housewife has been the lucky one to be selected to have a picture enlargement hand painted to advertise the "Studios" is just another example of the scheme.

Apparently thousands of Washington women know this scheme, for they have been "framed." Others should be warned.

The publication of this announcement in these columns is evidence that this newspaper cooperates with and supports the Better Business Bureau for your protection.

REPUBLICAN LEADER STIRS SPANISH RIOTS

POLICE HALT DISORDERS

Madrid, May 4 (A.P.).—Three different riots, a number of arrests and several injuries today marked a speech calling for a Spanish republic by Prof. Miguel de Unamuno, of the University of Salamanca, one of Spain's republican leaders.

Repeating in a large theater his appeals for the supplanting of the monarchy by a republic, he again proved himself a storm center in Spanish politics.

Fighting started inside the theater before he even had a chance to speak. It was resumed in the street after the meeting, and continued in front of his hotel when he went home.

A group of a dozen monarchists opened the Republican demonstration by rushing down the aisles of the theater shouting "Long live the king!" The professor's republican followers, shouting in reply "Long live the republic!" forcibly expelled the intruders after vigorous fist fights. Civil guards finally restored order in the meeting, which was in turmoil.

During the fighting Indalecio Prieto, Socialist leader, who was in the audience, was slightly injured. He said an unidentified person had attacked him and he fought back.

After quiet had been restored, Senor de Unamuno censured the dictatorship of Primo de Rivera, under which he was a voluntary exile in France, the present Berenguer government an dthe monarchy. As in recent speeches, he urged the establishment of a republic, but begged his followers to keep the peace.

His speech was no sooner ended than excited crowds outside the theater began to fight, and the fighting became general in the streets nearby. Mounted and foot police, charging several times, finally deestablished order amid great excitement and made arrests.

A dozen or more persons were treated for bruises and slight cuts.

Prof. de Unamuno, returning by automobile to his hotel, was greeted by mingled cheers and jeers. In front of the hotel a great crowd had gathered and within a few minutes his opponents and supporters were fighting again.

Once more the mounted and the foot police charged and again there were minor injuries and several arrests.

Today's rioting was the second serious outbreak since the arrival of Senor de Unamuno in Madrid on Thursday. Fifty persons were then injured in clashes around the Notre Railroad station when crowds of students waiting to welcome him broke into cheers for a republic. The demonstration was suppressed by mounted police, who charged the crowd with drawn sabers.

Other autoists took Margaret Garner from the wreckage and sent her to the home of Dr. James I. Boyd.

In a collision at Twentieth and K streets northwest about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, four women narrowly escaped serious injury when their car collided with one driven by Andrie O'Dier, 32, of 1701 Sixteenth street northwest.

Miss Anne Goding, 69 years old, of 1860 Columbia road northwest, who was a passenger in the car driven by her sister, Miss Helen Goding, of the same address, was badly cut on her right forehead when the car overturned in the street.

Mrs. Zula Ward, of the Harwell Apartments, Nineteenth and K streets northwest, and Miss Elenor Bushy, 32 years old, of 3453 Holmead place northwest, who were also passengers in the car, were slightly cut by flying glass. All of the women were treated at Emergency Hospital, and were later allowed to return to their homes. Police are investigating the accident.

Two persons were injured slightly last night when their automobile turned over after running off the concrete on Defense highway onto the soft dirt along the road.

Samuel Marshall, the driver, and his wife, Mrs. Marshall, were bruised and shocked, but are not believed to have been seriously injured. They were brought home in passing automobiles.

500 SEEK TWO MEN FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

14 HELD ON SUSPICION

Rocky Mount, N. C., May 4 (A.P.). An armed posse followed a trail of murder and terror today in attempting to apprehend two unidentified Negroes, who attacked Miss Elizabeth Jane Powell, prominent Nash County girl, after seriously wounding her companion

The attack occurred last night on a highway near here. Frank Crickmore, with whom Miss Powell was riding, was shot in the neck with a shotgun and dragged from his automobile.

The Negroes, Miss Powell told officers, then climbed into the machine with her One of them drove it a short distance down the highway, where, she said, both of them attacked her.

Although the Negroes told her, she said, they would kill her if she gave an alarm, Miss Powell ran 3 miles to her home and told the story of the shooting and attack. A posse soon formed and began the search for the Negroes. The first clew the posse found was the body of Joe Lee, aged Negro, who had been beaten to death with an ax at his home a few miles from the scene of the attack. With Lee's body was Buck Hilliard, another Negro, who had been beaten and left unconscious.

When he recovered consciousness, Hilliard told officers Lee had been killed and he himself had been beaten by two Negroes last night. A shotgun and shells belonging to Hilliard were taken from the house. The officers said they believed the same Negroes who killed Lee and beat Hilliard, attacked Miss Powell and her companion.

Hilliard said the two Negroes who beat him were dressed in overalls. One of them, he said, was a little taller than the other

Armed with this information, a posse of 500 armed men began searching for the Negroes. Bloodhounds were being used to scour the territory near where the attack and shooting occurred. Officers said they feared they would not be able to prevent violence if the Negroes were captured by the posse.

Late today, fourteen Negroes were being held in jail for investigation. Officers said, however, they did not think any of those held were the two guilty ones. They were being questioned in an attempt to obtain information that might aid in the search for the others.

Miss Powell and Crickmore, both of whom live at Battleboro, near here, were receiving treatment today in a local hospital. The girl was said to be recovering from her injuries.

Physicians said they expected Crickmore to recover but that he would never speak again. His vocal chords, they explained, were destroyed by the shotgun charge.

STIMSON'S TREATY VIEWS ARE WAITED

will be pared down by five ships under the treaty.

Senator Borah has expressed a "friendly attitude" toward the pact and together these three pweorful debaters are expected to have the edge in any fight which may come up in the Senate.

The fact that President Hoover did not insist upon immediate entry into the Senate by Dwight W. Morrow, of New Jersey, another of the American delegation, is regarded as indicating administration confidence in the leadership of Senators Robinson and Reed.

Once the hearings on the treaty are concluded the Senate will take it up immediately. Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, who has not expressed himself yet on the pact, has given assurance of immediate consideration.

There is a belief that the hearings might be concluded within two weeks. On the basis of present indications not more than two weeks would be required for the Senate to pass finally upon it after it is taken up for debate.

Not Yet Asked to Appear.

Secretary Stimson has not yet been asked to appear before the foreign relations committee, as that group has not adopted a program for consideration of the pact. Chairman Borah said last night he would leave all decision as to who would be called until the committee gets together Wednesday its regular meeting day, with the treaty before it.

The committee's membership includes two of the American delegates to the conference, Senators Robinson and Reed. Both expect to be on hand Wednesday.

STIMSON IS BOOMED FOR GOVERNOR RACE

WAS DEFEATED IN 1910

New York, May 4 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Coincidentally with a bad slump in the Republican market for a gubernatorial nominee, the name of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson has suddenly come into circulation.

Who first thought of making Mr. Stimson, whose distinguished record as a public servant includes a bad beating for the governorship in 1910, the man to put up against Gov. Roosevelt this fall, remains unknown But his name is being mentioned in those same Republican circles in which one heard only a few weeks ago about the desirability of nominating Charles E. Hughes, jr., former Solicitor General.

His accomplishments in this State, in the Philippines, in Nicaragua, and, now, in the London conference place the Secretary head and shoulderws above all other available candidates it is being said. He has, it is pointed out, had no connection with the Republican legislative record in recent years, and would probably make a strong appeal to the intellectual, independent vote which is now considered Gov. Roosevelt's.

The possibility that Mr. Stimson thinks prohibition a "failure," suggested by William H. Stayton's testimony at the congressional hearing on prohibition last week, has stirred further discussion of him as the man to heal liquor disorders in the party in this State. It is argued that as a member of President Fe over's Cabinet, who has not been embroiled in the prohibition question, he would probably be able to hold more Republican drys in line than would any one else willing to be wet enough to please New York City.

There has been no suggestion from any authoritative source that Mr Stimson would be interested in running for governor, nor anything more tangible than mere speculation about his stand on prohibition, if he could be induced to run. In well-informed circles it is doubted that he could be induced to accept the nomination this year, except at the behest of President Hoover, although many of his friends believe that sometimes he would like to remove unpleasant memories of his defeat by John Dix in 1910 by being elected governor.

If nothing more, the discussion of Mr. Stimson as a gubernatorial nominee, is considered an indication of the unsettled mind of State leaders of the party.

SIX HURT FIGHTING FIRE AT CLARENDON

Cherrydale Fire Department, was injured while coupling hose. Physicians nearby treated the gash received and he returned to work.

In the midst of the fire rivers of burning gasoline poured from the door. Hose lines were turned upon the blazing streams and forced them back into the buildnig. A paint shop in the garage, in which was stored benzine and other explosive liquids, added fuel to the flames.

Herman A. Helfrich, attached to the Third Cavalry at Fort Myer, collapsed while fighting a fire in one of the buses. He was brought to the Georgetown University Hospital by Patrolman William H. Thompson, of the Arlington County police. He is under treatment there for exhaustion and partial suffocation by smoke.

County officers stationed at the intersection of Wilson boulevard and Cherrydale avenue routed traffic by way of Cherrydale avenue through Lyon Village to Clarendon over Virginia avenue and the Lee highway.

Leom Arnold, president of the bus company and owner of the garage, estimated the loss at $150,000, all of which is covered by insurance.

NINE DEAD IN SERIES OF AIR ACCIDENTS

Three Killed in Texas and Two in Florida as Planes Plunge to Earth.

PAIR IN VIRGINIA INJURED

Fort Stockton, Tex., May 4 (A.P.).—Three men were killed in an airplane crash here today.

The ship had been taking passengers for short rides. It was flying at an altitude of about 200 feet when it went into a dive.

The dead:

Smoky Adams, Ozona, Tex., pilot.

Mangum Johns, Imperial, Tex., passenger.

Jack Thorp, Fort Stockton, passenger.

Two Killed in Florida.

Miami, Fla., May 4 (A.P.).—Johnny Leavitt, about 19 years old, and Delbert Ashland, about 20, were burrned to death today after their airplane fell into a field at Hialeah. Mr. Leavitt, Pilot, was teaching Mr. Ashland to fly the ship, which belonged to Sam Belcher, of Miami.

Witnesses said the plane went into a vertical bank, apparently out of control, at an altitude of about 350 feet. It burst into flames as it struck the ground.

Basel, Switzerland, May 4 (A.P.).—The pilot and one passenger of an airplane were killed today in a wreck near Dornach. The pilot, Willy Storer, wats forced to make a landing, but in doing so, one of the plane's wings struck a tree and the three occupants were hurled to the ground. The other passenger was seriously injured.

German Chute Jumper Dies.

Geldern, Germany, May 4 (A.P.).—The well-known German Parachute Jumper Lange was killed today in a jump from an airplane flying at an altitude of about 1,500 feet. The parachute did not open.

Petersburg, Va., May 4 (A.P.).—Pilot Herbert W. White, of Wilmington, Del., and S. T. Pyle, of Brandywine Summit, Pa., were pulled from the wreckage of their small plane here today and rushed to the Petersburg Hospital for treatment of their injuries.

En route to Florida from Wilmington, the fliers made a forced landing here for fuel, and their plane crashed into a tree on an attempted takeoff. The fuselage collapsed and the motor partially buried itself in the earth. Neither of the men was thought by hospital attendants to be seriously injured.

Man Dies in 173d Leap.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 4 (A.P.).—George "Frosty" Dambach took his 173d and last parachute leap today.

Jumping as an "added attraction" for a baseball crowd, Mr. Dambach saw his 'chute disabled as it struck a strut, and fought in vain to pull it open as he shot toward the ground.

It partly opened, but too late, and when spectators reached his shattered body the silken folds had settled over it

BUSINESS REMAINS STILL OPTIMISTIC

U. S. STEEL NET PLEASES

New York, May 4 (A.P.).—While current business reports coming to hand during the past week were rather disappointing, there were a few outstanding developments which were widely heralded as enhancing the prospects of further recovery.

An adverse psychological factor was a severe shakeout in the stock market, but Wall street was more inclined to regard this as the collapse of an over-extended speculative structure than as reflecting anything fundamentally wrong with business.

The selling movement in the stock market permitted the New York Federal Reserve Bank to reduce its rediscount rate from 3½ to 3 per cent without stirring up a new orgy of speculation, and is expected to check the rapid increase in brokers' loans of the past two months.

The reduction in the rediscount rate was made along with cuts in the Bank of England rate to 3 per cent and the Bank of France rate to 2½ per cent. While it is acknowledged that these low rates are in a measure made possible by the slack business conditions throughout the world, if history repeats itself they should aid materially in eventual recovery.

World-Wide Depression Seen.

Among other things, cheap money and the bursting of the latest speculative bubble in the stock market is expected to aid greatly in the marketing of the reparations loan, which, it is hoped, will pave the way for recovery in international business. Slack conditions in this country, bankers state, is in a part of a reflection of a world-wide depression.

President Hoover, in a survey of business conditions before the United States Chamber of Commerce, stated that the worst of the depression is over, and that the readjustment since last fall has been more rapid than recovery from any previous collapse.

The recovery has not been as rapid as the more bullish interests in the stock market had hoped. The upturn this spring has been moderate, lacking in the vigor expected at this time of year. This was regarded in Wall street as the immediate cause of the decline in stocks.

More conservative Wall street interests, however, had regarded the recent rise in prices as unjustifiably rapid. While the adverse psychological effects of the break in stocks are acknowledge, it is believed that professional traders were the chief sufferers, as public participation in the market, while substantial, has not been as important a factor as it was in 1928 and 1929.

Earning Reports Show Losses.

First quarter earnings reports coming to hand generally reflected the slow business of the period. Estimates indicate that second quarter reports will show a little improvement, but they will naturally make a poor showing compared to the record earnings of the second quarter of last year. The U. S. Steel report, showing earnings per share of $3.44 were somewhat better than expected. Steel operations receded slightly, however, and steel prices sagged. Chrysler Corp. reported earnings of only 4 cents a share during the first quarter, but gave evidence of its confidence in improvement by declaring the regular dividend, mostly from surplus.

Building contracts, as reported for the week ended April 25 by F. W. Dodge Corporation showed some improvement, and the renewed decline in money rates is expected to clear the way for further gains. The slump in residential building remains a sore spot. Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended April 19, showed the surprising drop of 112,999 cars, from the like week of last year. As this showing was widely at variance with seasonal trends in both good and bad years, some observers were not inclined to take it at its face value, believing that it may have been due largely to the unusually late date of Easter this year.

Renewed weakness of a sizable list of commodity prices was one of the more discouraging developments of the week, but it was in part attributable to weakness in stocks. The National City Bank, in its monthly review of business conditions, pointed out that the development of mass production has outstripped the present world consuming capacity, and that recovery will hinge upon bringing the situation into balance.

Several hundred members of the Students Mission Crusade of the District of Columbia will join in a rally at the gymnasium of the Catholic University the forenoon of Saturday, May 17. The Right Rev. The rally will be conducted under the auspices of the Crusade Unit of the Dominican House of Studies. The religious functions will begin with a solemn high mass, of which the Very Rev. Stephen McDermott, D. P., S. T. Lr., will be celebrant. The Rev. Dr. George Johnson, present speaker in the "Catholic Radio Hour," will deliver the sermon. The Dominican Choir will render the chant.

Following the mass the business sessions of the rally will be held. Several speakers will address the meeting in the course of the day's program.

EASE IN CREDIT ACTS AS TONIC FOR BONDS

Recent Uncertain Course in Prices Has Been Turned Into Advance.

FOREIGN LIST FEATURES

New York, May 4 (A.P.).—World-wide easing of credit has proven an excellent tonic for the bond market and its somewhat lethargic course of the past six weeks has been turned into an advance.

The market has acquired new robustness after bending under the weight of new financing that has slowed its pace since the mid-March spurt, when it rose to the highest level in some time.

Failure of trading to accelerate during the past six weeks, despite favorable credit conditions, proved a disappointment. The market was unable to quicken its pace with the heavy burden of new issues that reached record breaking proportions.

The downward revision of rediscount rates by the Central Bank of England, France and the United States provided the needed tonic, and despite an increase in the amount of new bonds, the market found new vitality, inspiring optimistic views for the immediate future.

German Annuity Issue Awaited.

Bonds thrive during an era of cheap money, and there are definiet indications that such a condition will prevail for some time. The general impression is that aside from the desire to develop a good bond market for the stimulating effect on business, investment bankers are anxious that a proper setting be built for the appearance of the German annuity bonds.

The United States, it is expected, will be asked to absorb about $100,000,000 of the first $300,000,000 issue. Recent reports from abroad indicated that the loan will be floated in the latter part of May.

The firmness displayed by foreign issues, particularly those of the principal European countries, in the face of a generally unresponsive market, lends support to the view that the market is about ready for the German flotation. Increased sale of foreign bonds in America is regarded as essential to a healthy foreign trade.

Investment Buying Increasing.

Another encouraging sign is that buying for strictly investment account has increased. Such buying has been particularly noticeable in standard rails.

New bond financing totaled $171,743,000 last week. This was the largest in three weeks, and the third largest of the year. There has been a disposition in some circles to anticipate an increased volume of financing with the rise in prices, for many issues doubtless have been held back awaiting an upward trend.

The average for 30 bonds rose fourtenths of a point last week to 100, the highest since the first week in April. Sales for the week were the best since the short-lived revival of March.

WEEK'S CURB TREND MARKED BY LOSSES

OIL OUTLOOK IMPROVES

New York, May 4 (A.P.).—Prices on the New York Curb Exchange underwent a drastic shakeout last week. Quoted values tumbled sharply in the general liquidation of speculative accounts on Friday and Saturday, and new lows for the year were numerous.

Falling slightly on Tuesday after showing considerable weakness Monday, the list again became unsettled on Wednesday and continued its downward course throughout the remainder of the week. Utilities suffered large losses as the deflationary process was pressed by the shorts, but the oils were also severely depressed. Cities Service made a new 1930 high above 44 and then slumped to around 30 in the heavy selling of Saturday.

Although improvement was reported in the petroleum situation, the price reduction in Pennsylvania crude was used as ammunition by the bearish sharpshooters and leading shares dropped several points.

Electric Bond & Share, American Superpower, American Gas & Electric, Commonwealth Edison and other volatile utilities moved within a wide range. Niagara Hudson Power, which is being mentioned in reports of merger negotiations, maintained a considerable degree of resistance to the general trend.

Columbia Pictures made a wide move, advancing to close to 60 and then slipping back to 45. Bohack scored a new high at 77. O. A. Smith tumbled from 244 to 215 in the course of the eventful week. Fox Theaters was firm.

Unusual features increase the value of the FORD TRUCK

THE Ford 1½-ton truck offers you long, reliable haulage service at remarkably low cost. Many features of the chassis combine to make the Ford truck a value far above its price. Important among them is the new rear axle, which is exceptionally sturdy. It has a spiral bevel gear of special design, with straddle-mounted pinion. Two gear-ratios are optional. The housing is unusually strong. The axle shafts are heavier, and because of the three-quarter floating type of construction, they serve only to turn the wheels, without carrying any of the weight of truck or load.

The new wheel and tire equipment is a feature which you will find both convenient and economical. Dual rear wheels can be installed at small additional cost. Balloon tires of one size are used throughout, with the dual equipment, so that all six steel disc wheels and tires are interchangeable all around. Only one spare need be carried.

Other features which add to the value of the Ford truck are the efficient four-cylinder engine, which develops 40 horsepower at 2200 r.p.m.; the 4-speed transmission, which gives a wide, flexible range of speed and power; the new front brakes, which have been enlarged to the same size as those on the rear wheels, providing increased braking area and a high degree of safety; and the new front axle and spring, which are heavier and stronger, as are front radius-rod, king-pins, wheel bearings and thrust bearings.

These and many other features indicate how well the Ford truck is designed for reliable service under every condition. You can inspect the truck at your Ford dealer's.

In addition to the Ford 1½-ton truck chassis, there is a commercial-car chassis to meet light-delivery requirements. A wide range of body-types is available for each model.

Wide Area Lighted By Large Meteor

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., May 4.—Residents of Virginia and North Carolina viewed a giant meteor last night at 9 o'clock, which caused fright in several instances. The large ball of fire bathed the earth for several moments in a brilliant white light. In many instances, persons calling newspaper offices for information, said their houses trembled during the passage of the meteor, and at Yanceyville, N. C., near here, it was said that a roaring sound of terrifying proportions alarmed that neighborhood. Other descriptions of the meteor's passage included reference to a heavy thunderclap.

One weird experience was that of Gene Brown, air mail pilot, wing[illegible] his way South from Greensboro, N. C., who suddenly became conscious of a bright light behind him. He banked sharply, for the moment, afraid that the rear of his plane had caught fire. As he veered off his course, he said later he saw a huge ball of fire traveling toward the northeast.

Motorists said that State highways for a few seconds were lit up as clearly as by daylight. Others said that the meteor changed in color from white to gold then to light green.

Jury's 'Quotient' Verdict Results in New Trial

Decatur, Ala., May 4 (A.P.).—Addition or subtraction has been means of agreements in jury rooms, but a "quotient" verdict has caused a new trial to be ordered for Norman Lovelady, charged with the slaying of his chum, Bruce Norris.

Judge James E. Horton of circuit court ruled yesterday that the verdict of five years and four months imprisonment returned by the trial jury in Lovelady's case was unlawful. In presenting petition for new trial the defense contended that at the trial each juror signified in writing the number of years to which he thought the defendant should be sentenced. The foreman divided the total of 64 by 12 and announced in open court a verdict of five years and four months.

By JAMES HAY, JR.

HOW and why did Mr. Watson and Mr. Overman, in their campaign for the confirmation of Judge Parker, fail to get the help of Mr. A. W. Cozart?

Turning loose a Cozart attack upon their fellow senators, they indubitably would have been gladdened by the spectacle of their converted colleagues begging to be counted for the North Carolinian.

• • • •

THIS Mr. Cozart is an emphatic refutation of the slanderous assertion sometimes heard that Southern oratory is not today in its finest flower and most reverberant voice. Representative Wright, of Georgia, unveiled Mr. Cozart to the public gaze by inserting in the Congressional Record the Cozart address recently delivered at Lagrange, Ga.

That is, Mr. Wright's "extension of remarks," in which he identifies Mr. Cozart as "of the Columbus, Ga., bar," is in this instance merely the convenient casket in which is laid out, embalmed and preserved for all eternity to read the marvel of the Cozart eloquence.

• • • •

"THE Southland," said Mr. Cozart, by way of getting up a running start in this speech, "the Southland is the land of arborescent vistas, the land of perpetually efflorescent gardens, the land of cerulean heavens, the land with rubescent mornings and evenings, the land of valiant and gallant men and women, who are winsome but wise!"

Having gathered up, in one long scooping motion, this flock of comparisons and illustrations from the trees, the flowers, the sky, the painter's palette and the catalogue of human virtues, Mr. Cozart proceeded to do everything with words which would prove that the South's oratory is still full of punch, in its prime and at its pinnacle.

He thundered on the bass and tinkled in the treble. Logic and loveliness alike were captives to his call. Glory and gore put on their parades at the summons of his similes.

• • • •

"I HOPE," he concluded, still going full tilt; "I hope that each of our confederates may have a mansion in the skies with foundations of malachite and azurite, with walls of chalcedony, with doors of ruby, with windows of diamonds, with floors of amethyst, with ceilings of sapphire, and with roof of amazonite and emerald, lighted up by the radiance and effulgence and glory which emanate from the throne of the everliving and triune God."

Obviously, if that sort of stuff hasn't the sway, swing and suasion needed to move senators, the august upper house is an immovable body.

"Power!" exploded a Capitol wit. "That fellow's got such a flow of speech that, if eloquence were electricity, he could simultaneously illuminate a city, launch a battleship and lift Judge Parker to the Supreme Bench by a viva voce vote!"

NINE POLICE RECEIVE $1,000 ON RETIRING

Capt. Stott Makes Report on Financial Condition of Benefit Association.

MEMBERSHIP NOW 1,117

Nine members of the Metropolitan Police Retiring Association received $1,000 each on their retirement, according to a financial statement made public by Capt. W. G. Stott, president of the association, yesterday.

The report covers the first thirteen months of the existence of the association and shows that there remained in the association treasury on April 8 the sum of $17,865.86. The total received by the association during the thirteen months was $27,238, to which was added $314.86, interest.

Total expenditures amounted to $9,685, of which $9,000 was expended in the form of $1,000 payments to each of nine retired members. The other expenditures was made up of reimbursements to members who resigned or were dismissed from the police force, small payments to dependents of members who died before the date of maturity of the $1,000 payment and incidental expenses.

Members of the association on April 8, the report said, numbered 1,117, which is nearly the total number of the department personnel.

The association is a voluntary association supported by the dues of its members and its purpose is to add to the funds of policemen on their retirement. The association began to function in March, 1929.

Officers of the association include Capt. Stott, president; W. H. Thomas, vice president; W. J. Wagner, treasurer, and J. S. Davis, secretary. The result of the operation of the association for the first thirteen months is looked on by its officers as indicative of its continued and growing success. The moneys paid its members by the association are independent of the pension paid out of the regular police retirement fund set up by law. The pension law provides that policemen shall receive not more than half their basic salary on retirement. This amounts to $87.50 for the highest class private.

Germany's Hindenburg Of Kitchen Is Now 80

Berlin, May 4 (A.P.).—Hedwig Heyl, known as Germany's "Hindenburg of the Kitchen," celebrated her eightieth birthday today. Countless messages and editorial tributes testified to the veneration wherein the woman who Hooverized Germany during the World War is held. She was a friend of the Empress Victoria, mother of the former kaiser, of the late Empress Augustia-Victoria, his wife, and of the former Crown Princess Cecile.

She was a pioneer in the movement for sanitary and comfortable working conditions for laborers.

LONG POWER DIVES ACHIEVED BY FLIER

PLUNGES 10,000 FEET

Completing two vertical power dives of almost two miles each, William J. Crosswell, Curtiss test pilot, yesterday began tests of a new two-place fighting plane at the Anacostia Naval Air Station. He was escorted on both dives by Lieut. R. A. Ofstie, chief of the flight test section at the station, who followed close beside him in a tiny Curtiss Hawk, observing the new plane's performance.

On the second of his dives, Crosswell carried two bombs, of about 250 pounds, under the right lower wing. Just prior to his second dive, he almost came to grief when a panel inclosing the plane's flotation gear came unlocked at about 12,000 feet altitude, allowing the big bag to work loose from the plane. He managed to return and land before it was completely loosened, undoubtedly saving his plane. The flotation gear is a large bag put on the plane to be inflated with air and keep it afloat if a forced landing is made on the water.

Both dives were made from an altitude of approximately 17,000 feet, the dive ending at 7,000 feet. The plane, which is the first production model of that from which James Collins was forced to jump here last year whenthe tail surfaces failed under the terrific strain of power driving, is designed for a dual purpose. It is to be used both as a light bomber and a fighting plane, equipped to rake the decks of enemy battleships with a hail of gunfire and to meet opposing fighters in the air.

Previous to the diving demonstrations, Crosswell put the plane through two tailspins, one to the right, completing fifteen turns, and another to the left, completing fourteen turns. During both spins he was closely followed by Lieut. Ofstie. The new fighter carried its full military load, and the rear seat was weighted with lead shot to simulate the presence of a gunner.

AMERICAN MATADOR, TOSSED, KILLS BULL

APPLAUDED BY MOORS

Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, May 4 (A. P.).—Sydney Franklin, Spain's only American bullfighter, fighting for the second time since he was severely gored at Madrid two months ago, was tossed by a bull in the arena here today, but was thrown clear and escaped unharmed.

The young Brooklyn matador, who killed two bulls at Jerez, Spain, yesterday, won the applause of a large and enthusiastic crowd of bullfight fans, curious to see the unfamiliar sight of a Yankee bullfighter.

Performing brilliant capework, luring the bull close to him but dodging its lunging horns he disposed of his first bull in the classic manner.

With the second bull, he did almost as well, but narrowly missed an accident similar to that at Madrid. In dodging the animal while making a rapid pass with the cape, he caught his clothing for a moment on the horns, delaying his movements. He was tossed in the air, but picked himself up unhurt and returned to the attack.

He killed the bull soon afterward and marched from the arena to great applause.

In a judge it's Character

in a cigarette it's Taste

WHAT INTEGRITY is to a public official, taste is to a cigarette—the one quality that wins and holds public confidence and esteem.

ON TASTE AND TASTE ALONE, Chesterfield continues to gain smokers, both men and women. Chesterfields are mild—not strong or harsh—yet they have richness of flavor and aroma. They are not insipid or tasteless.

WITNESS THE STEADY GROWTH in the popularity of Chesterfield—a popularity which proves that with smokers, as with us, it's "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

BUSINESS REMAINS STILL OPTIMISTIC

U. S. STEEL NET PLEASES

New York, May 4 (A.P.).—While current business reports coming to hand during the past week were rather disappointing, there were a few outstanding developments which were widely heralded as enhancing the prospects of further recovery.

An adverse psychological factor was a severe shakeout in the stock market, but Wall street was more inclined to regard this as the collapse of an over-extended speculative structure than as reflecting anything fundamentally wrong with business.

The selling movement in the stock market permitted the New York Federal Reserve Bank to reduce its rediscount rate from 3½ to 3 per cent without stirring up a new orgy of speculation, and is expected to check the rapid increase in brokers' loans of the past two months.

The reduction in the rediscount rate was made along with cuts in the Bank of England rate to 3 per cent and the Bank of France rate to 2½ per cent. While it is acknowledged that these low rates are in a measure made possible by the slack business conditions throughout the world, if history repeats itself they should aid materially in eventual recovery.

World-Wide Depression Seen.

Among other things, cheap money and the bursting of the latest speculative bubble in the stock market is expected to aid greatly in the marketing of the reparations loan, which, it is hoped, will pave the way for recovery in international business. Slack conditions in this country, bankers state, is in a part of a reflection of a world-wide depression.

President Hoover, in a survey of business conditions before the United States Chamber of Commerce, stated that the worst of the depression is over, and that the readjustment since last fall has been more rapid than recovery from any previous collapse.

The recovery has not been as rapid as the more bullish interests in the stock market had hoped. The upturn this spring has been moderate, lacking in the vigor expected at this time of year. This was regarded in Wall street as the immediate cause of the decline in stocks.

More conservative Wall street interests, however, had regarded the recent rise in prices as unjustifiably rapid. While the adverse psychological effects of the break in stocks are acknowledge, it is believed that professional traders were the chief sufferers, as public participation in the market, while substantial, has not been as important a factor as it was in 1928 and 1929.

Earning Reports Show Losses.

First quarter earnings reports coming to hand generally reflected the slow business of the period. Estimates indicate that second quarter reports will show a little improvement, but they will naturally make a poor showing compared to the record earnings of the second quarter of last year. The U. S. Steel report, showing earnings per share of $3.44 were somewhat better than expected. Steel operations receded slightly, however, and steel prices sagged. Chrysler Corp. reported earnings of only 4 cents a share during the first quarter, but gave evidence of its confidence in improvement by declaring the regular dividend, mostly from surplus.

Building contracts, as reported for the week ended April 25 by F. W. Dodge Corporation showed some improvement, and the renewed decline in money rates is expected to clear the way for further gains. The slump in residential building remains a sore spot. Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended April 19, showed the surprising drop of 112,999 cars, from the like week of last year. As this showing was widely at variance with seasonal trends in both good and bad years, some observers were not inclined to take it at its face value, believing that it may have been due largely to the unusually late date of Easter this year.

Renewed weakness of a sizable list of commodity prices was one of the more discouraging developments of the week, but it was in part attributable to weakness in stocks. The National City Bank, in its monthly review of business conditions, pointed out that the development of mass production has outstripped the present world consuming capacity, and that recovery will hinge upon bringing the situation into balance.

EASE IN CREDIT ACTS AS TONIC FOR BONDS

FOREIGN LIST FEATURES

New York, May 4 (A.P.).—World-wide easing of credit has proven an excellent tonic for the bond market and its somewhat lethargic course of the past six weeks has been turned into an advance.

The market has acquired new robustness after bending under the weight of new financing that has slowed its pace since the mid-March spurt, when it rose to the highest level in some time.

Failure of trading to accelerate during the past six weeks, despite favorable credit conditions, proved a disappointment. The market was unable to quicken its pace with the heavy burden of new issues that reached record breaking proportions.

The downward revision of rediscount rates by the Central Bank of England, France and the United States provided the needed tonic, and despite an increase in the amount of new bonds, the market found new vitality, inspiring optimistic views for the immediate future.

German Annuity Issue Awaited.

Bonds thrive during an era of cheap money, and there are definiet indications that such a condition will prevail for some time. The general impression is that aside from the desire to develop a good bond market for the stimulating effect on business, investment bankers are anxious that a proper setting be built for the appearance of the German annuity bonds.

The United States, it is expected, will be asked to absorb about $100,000,000 of the first $300,000,000 issue. Recent reports from abroad indicated that the loan will be floated in the latter part of May.

The firmness displayed by foreign issues, particularly those of the principal European countries, in the face of a generally unresponsive market, lends support to the view that the market is about ready for the German flotation. Increased sale of foreign bonds in America is regarded as essential to a healthy foreign trade.

Investment Buying Increasing.

Another encouraging sign is that buying for strictly investment account has increased. Such buying has been particularly noticeable in standard rails.

New bond financing totaled $171,743,000 last week. This was the largest in three weeks, and the third largest of the year. There has been a disposition in some circles to anticipate an increased volume of financing with the rise in prices, for many issues doubtless have been held back awaiting an upward trend.

The average for 30 bonds rose fourtenths of a point last week to 100, the highest since the first week in April. Sales for the week were the best since the short-lived revival of March.

WEEK'S CURB TREND MARKED BY LOSSES

OIL OUTLOOK IMPROVES

New York, May 4 (A.P.).—Prices on the New York Curb Exchange underwent a drastic shakeout last week. Quoted values tumbled sharply in the general liquidation of speculative accounts on Friday and Saturday, and new lows for the year were numerous.

Falling slightly on Tuesday after showing considerable weakness Monday, the list again became unsettled on Wednesday and continued its downward course throughout the remainder of the week. Utilities suffered large losses as the deflationary process was pressed by the shorts, but the oils were also severely depressed. Cities Service made a new 1930 high above 44 and then slumped to around 30 in the heavy selling of Saturday.

Although improvement was reported in the petroleum situation, the price reduction in Pennsylvania crude was used as ammunition by the bearish sharpshooters and leading shares dropped several points.

Electric Bond & Share, American Superpower, American Gas & Electric, Commonwealth Edison and other volatile utilities moved within a wide range. Niagara Hudson Power, which is being mentioned in reports of merger negotiations, maintained a considerable degree of resistance to the general trend.

Columbia Pictures made a wide move, advancing to close to 60 and then slipping back to 45. Bohack scored a new high at 77. O. A. Smith tumbled from 244 to 215 in the course of the eventful week. Fox Theaters was firm.

New Spiral Bevel-Gear Rear Axle
Reliable and unusually sturdy

Dual Rear Wheels
Available at small additional cost

FORD TRUCK

THE Ford 1½-ton truck offers you long, reliable haulage service at remarkably low cost. Many features of the chassis combine to make the Ford truck a value far above its price. Important among them is the new rear axle, which is exceptionally sturdy. It has a spiral bevel gear of special design, with straddle-mounted pinion. Two gear-ratios are optional. The housing is unusually strong. The axle shafts are heavier, and because of the three-quarter floating type of construction, they serve only to turn the wheels, without carrying any of the weight of truck or load.

The new wheel and tire equipment is a feature which you will find both convenient and economical. Dual rear wheels can be installed at small additional cost. Balloon tires of one size are used throughout, with the dual equipment, so that all six steel disc wheels and tires are interchangeable all around. Only one spare need be carried.

Other features which add to the value of the Ford truck are the efficient four-cylinder engine, which develops 40 horsepower at 2200 r.p.m.; the 4-speed transmission, which gives a wide, flexible range of speed and power; the new front brakes, which have been enlarged to the same size as those on the rear wheels, providing increased braking area and a high degree of safety; and the new front axle and spring, which are heavier and stronger, as are front radius-rod, king-pins, wheel bearings and thrust bearings.

These and many other features indicate how well the Ford truck is designed for reliable service under every condition. You can inspect the truck at your Ford dealer's.

In addition to the Ford 1½-ton truck chassis, there is a commercial-car chassis to meet light-delivery requirements. A wide range of body-types is available for each model.

RED CROSS SESSION WILL START TODAY

Address by President This Morning Will Open Conference.

PAYNE HEADS PROGRAM

Several hundred delegates had registered yesterday at the American Red Cross headquarters preparatory to the opening of the ninth annual convention this morning in the United States Chamber of Commerce building. Twelve hundred delegates, representing the 48 States, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Haiti and the League of Red Cross Societies in Paris, France, are expected to be enrolled before the day is over.

President Hoover's address at 10:30 o'clock will formally open the convention this morning after Judge John Barton Payne, chairman, calls the session to order and Mgr. Edward L. Buckey, of St. Matthew's Church, pronounces the invocation. The Chief Executive will welcome the delegates in his capacity as president of the Red Cross. A 30-minute concert by the United States Navy Band Orchestra will precede the meeting.

Both of the larger broadcasting chains will carry the President's address over national networks.

Junior Group Convenes.

Following this welcome, James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations, will discuss new plans of the Red Cross. Ernest P. Bicknell, vice president in charge of insular and foreign operations, and James K. McClintock, vice president in charge of finance, will also speak.

Of interest to the school children of the United States, of whom more than 6,870,000 are members of the Junior Red Cross, will be an address by Miss Constance Payne, of Terre Haute, Ind., a 16-year-old schoolgirl, who was chosen in a national contest to speak for the organization.

The Junior Red Cross, which also holds a convention concurrent with the adult body, had 196 delegates registered yesterday. Among these were Jose Bengoa, of Porto Rico; Paul Tsosie, delegate of the Navajo Indian School children of New Mexico, and Jose Gonzales, from the Papago tribe Indian school of Arizona.

Wide Area Lighted By Large Meteor

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., May 4.—Residents of Virginia and North Carolina viewed a giant meteor last night at 9 o'clock, which caused fright in several instances. The large ball of fire bathed the earth for several moments in a brilliant white light. In many instances, persons calling newspaper offices for information, said their houses trembled during the passage of the meteor, and at Yanceyville, N. C., near here, it was said that a roaring sound of terrifying proportions alarmed that neighborhood. Other descriptions of the meteor's passage included reference to a heavy thunderclap.

One weird experience was that of Gene Brown, air mail pilot, winging his way South from Greensboro, N. C., who suddenly became conscious of a bright light behind him. He banked sharply, for the moment, afraid that the rear of his plane had caught fire. As he veered off his course, he said later he saw a huge ball of fire traveling toward the northeast.

Motorists said that State highways for a few seconds were lit up as clearly as by daylight. Others said that the meteor changed in color from white to gold then to light green.

Jury's 'Quotient' Verdict Results in New Trial

Decatur, Ala., May 4 (A.P.).—Addition or subtraction has been means of agreements in jury rooms, but a "quotient" verdict has caused a new trial to be ordered for Norman Lovelady, charged with the slaying of his chum, Bruce Norris.

Judge James E. Horton of circuit court ruled yesterday that the verdict of five years and four months imprisonment returned by the trial jury in Lovelady's case was unlawful. In presenting petition for new trial the defense contended that at the trial each juror signified in writing the number of years to which he thought the defendant should be sentenced. The foreman divided the total of 64 by 12 and announced in open court a verdict of five years and four months.

Are you facing the fate of a rheumatic? Of course, the future looks black—it's pitiful to contemplate a lifetime of aches and pains. HOW and why did Mr. Watson and Mr. Overman, in their campaign for the confirmation of Judge Parker, fail to get the help of Mr. A. W. Cozart?

Turning loose a Cozart attack upon their fellow senators, they indubitably would have been gladdened by the spectacle of their converted colleagues begging to be counted for the North Carolinian.

• • • •

THIS Mr. Cozart is an emphatic refutation of the slanderous assertion sometimes heard that Southern oratory is not today in its finest flower and most reverberant voice. Representative Wright, of Georgia, unveiled Mr. Cozart to the public gaze by inserting in the Congressional Record the Cozart address recently delivered at Lagrange, Ga.

That is, Mr. Wright's "extension of remarks," in which he identifies Mr. Cozart as "of the Columbus, Ga., bar," is in this instance merely the convenient casket in which is laid out, embalmed and preserved for all eternity to read the marvel of the Cozart eloquence.

• • • •

"THE Southland," said Mr. Cozart, by way of getting up a running start in this speech, "the Southland is the land of arborescent vistas, the land of perpetually efflorescent gardens, the land of cerulean heavens, the land with rubescent mornings and evenings, the land of valiant and gallant men and women, who are winsome but wise!"

Having gathered up, in one long scooping motion, this flock of comparisons and illustrations from the trees, the flowers, the sky, the painter's palette and the catalogue of human virtues, Mr. Cozart proceeded to do everything with words which would prove that the South's oratory is still full of punch, in its prime and at its pinnacle.

He thundered on the bass and tinkled in the treble. Logic and loveliness alike were captives to his call. Glory and gore put on their parades at the summons of his similes.

• • • •

"I HOPE," he concluded, still going full tilt; "I hope that each of our confederates may have a mansion in the skies with foundations of malachite and azurite, with walls of chalcedony, with doors of ruby, with windows of diamonds, with floors of amethyst, with ceilings of sapphire, and with roof of amazonite and emerald, lighted up by the radiance and effulgence and glory which emanate from the throne of the everliving and triune God."

Obviously, if that sort of stuff hasn't the sway, swing and suasion needed to move senators, the august upper house is an immovable body.

"Power!" exploded a Capitol wit. "That fellow's got such a flow of speech that, if eloquence were electricity, he could simultaneously illuminate a city, launch a battleship and lift Judge Parker to the Supreme Bench by a viva voce vote!"

NINE POLICE RECEIVE $1,000 ON RETIRING

Capt. Stott Makes Report on Financial Condition of Benefit Association.

MEMBERSHIP NOW 1,117

Nine members of the Metropolitan Police Retiring Association received $1,000 each on their retirement, according to a financial statement made public by Capt. W. G. Stott, president of the association, yesterday.

The report covers the first thirteen months of the existence of the association and shows that there remained in the association treasury on April 8 the sum of $17,865.86. The total received by the association during the thirteen months was $27,236, to which was added $314.86, interest.

Total expenditures amounted to $9,685, of which $9,000 was expended in the form of $1,000 payments to each of nine retired members. The other expenditures was made up of reimbursements to members who resigned or were dismissed from the police force, small payments to dependents of members who died before the date of maturity of the $1,000 payment and incidental expenses.

Members of the association on April 8, the report said, numbered 1,117, which is nearly the total number of the department personnel.

The association is a voluntary association supported by the dues of its members and its purpose is to add to the funds of policemen on their retirement. The association began to function in March, 1929.

Officers of the association include Capt. Stott, president; W. H. Thomas, vice president; W. J. Wagner, treasurer, and J. S. Davis, secretary. The result of the operation of the association for the first thirteen months is looked on by its officers as indicative of its continued and growing success. The moneys paid its members by the association are independent of the pension paid out of the regular police retirement fund set up by law. The pension law provides that policemen shall receive not more than half their basic salary on retirement. This amounts to $87.50 for the highest class private.

Germany's Hindenburg Of Kitchen Is Now 80

Berlin, May 4 (A.P.).—Hedwig Heyl, known as Germany's "Hindenburg of the Kitchen," celebrated her eightieth birthday today. Countless messages and editorial tributes testified to the veneration wherein the woman who Hooverized Germany during the World War is held. She was a friend of the Empress Victoria, mother of the former kaiser, of the late Empress Augustia-Victoria, his wife, and of the former Crown Princess Cecile.

She was a pioneer in the movement for sanitary and comfortable working conditions for laborers.

LONG POWER DIVES ACHIEVED BY FLIER

PLUNGES 10,000 FEET

Completing two vertical power dives of almost two miles each, William J. Crosswell, Curtiss test pilot, yesterday began tests of a new two-place fighting plane at the Anacostia Naval Air Station. He was escorted on both dives by Lieut. R. A. Ofstie, chief of the flight test section at the station, who followed close beside him in a tiny Curtiss Hawk, observing the new plane's performance.

On the second of his dives, Crosswell carried two bombs, of about 250 pounds, under the right lower wing. Just prior to his second dive, he almost came to grief when a panel inclosing the plane's flotation gear came unlocked at about 12,000 feet altitude, allowing the big bag to work loose from the plane. He managed to return and land before it was completely loosened, undoubtedly saving his plane. The flotation gear is a large bag put on the plane to be inflated with air and keep it afloat if a forced landing is made on the water.

Both dives were made from an altitude of approximately 17,000 feet, the dive ending at 7,000 feet. The plane, which is the first production model of that from which James Collins was forced to jump here last year whenthe tail surfaces failed under the terrific strain of power driving, is designed for a dual purpose. It is to be used both as a light bomber and a fighting plane, equipped to rake the decks of enemy battleships with a hail of gunfire and to meet opposing fighters in the air.

Previous to the diving demonstrations, Crosswell put the plane through two tailspins, one to the right, completing fifteen turns, and another to the left, completing fourteen turns. During both spins he was closely followed by Lieut. Ofstie. The new fighter carried its full military load, and the rear seat was weighted with lead shot to simulate the presence of a gunner.

AMERICAN MATADOR, TOSSED, KILLS BULL

APPLAUDED BY MOORS

Ceuta, Spanish Morocco, May 4 (A. P.).—Sydney Franklin, Spain's only American bullfighter fighting for the second time since he was severely gored at Madrid two months ago, was tossed by a bull in the arena here today, but was thrown clear and escaped unharmed.

The young Brooklyn matador, who killed two bulls at Jerez, Spain, yesterday, won the applause of a large and enthusiastic crowd of bullfight fans, curious to see the unfamiliar sight of a Yankee bullfighter.

Performing brilliant capework, luring the bull close to him but dodging its lunging horns he disposed of his first bull in the classic manner.

With the second bull, he did almost as well, but narrowly missed an accident similar to that at Madrid. In dodging the animal while making a rapid pass with the cape, he caught his clothing for a moment on the horns, delaying his movements. He was tossed in the air, but picked himself up unhurt and returned to the attack.

He killed the bull soon afterward and marched from the arena to great applause.

In a judge it's Character

in a cigarette it's Taste

WHAT INTEGRITY is to a public official, taste is to a cigarette—the one quality that wins and holds public confidence and esteem.

ON TASTE AND TASTE ALONE, Chesterfield continues to gain smokers, both men and women. Chesterfields are mild—not strong or harsh—yet they have richness of flavor and aroma. They are not insipid or tasteless.

WITNESS THE STEADY GROWTH in the popularity of Chesterfield—a popularity which proves that with smokers, as with us, it's "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

THE VOTE ON PARKER.

As the hour approaches for a vote on Judge Parker, senators who have tried to keep an open mind on the subject are less and less affected by importunities and threats, and are reaching the conclusion that it is their duty to vote for Parker. His opponents have failed to make a case against him. After a thorough examination of his character and career he stands forth as a jurist of commanding ability, firm character and impartial temperament.

The attack upon Judge Parker on the ground that he is "reactionary," that he "sets the dollar above the man," that he has no sympathy with men who toil, has fallen flat. He is not such a man. His judgments do not reveal such a disposition. In the Richmond segregation case he upheld the constitutional rights of a colored man. His attitude in the Red Jacket case was that of an impartial judge, following the law as laid down by the Supreme Court. His assailants in the Senate would have had him take the part of an insurgent against the Supreme Court. They denounce him because he did not become a partisan and biased judge.

The Senate debate has clearly proved that the remedy for abuse of the writ of injunction, if it is abused, lies in Congress. The Supreme Court has not legislated, notwithstanding the willful misrepresentation of Senator Norris. Judge Parker has not usurped power, nor employed the writ of injunction unlawfully, nor distorted it for the purpose of favoring or wronging any one. He has faithfully administered the law as he found it. If a reform in the injunctive process is necessary, it should be accomplished by law, and not by lynching faithful judges who observe the law.

The rejection of Judge Parker's nomination would be nothing less than the exercise of lynch law by the Senate. Conscientious senators can not afford to take part in such injustice. They have an obligation to maintain the independence and integrity of the courts. Their surrender to threats by organized groups would be not only cowardly, but it would tend to degrade and debase the judiciary into a servile tool of organized minorities. The certain and impartial administration of justice would be destroyed. The people would not be secure in their lives and property from that time forth.

The question now before senators is whether they will stand firmly for the integrity of the judiciary, or sacrifice a good and able judge for the sake of currying favor with organized groups of voters. Thus the Senate is on trial. Its majority will determine whether the United States Supreme Court is to stand as the last refuge of impartial justice for every man, or whether it shall be made up of crooked judges who have gained their seats by tacitly promising to favor some men at the expense of others.

The rejection of Judge Parker would be an indictment of the Senate, by itself, and confirmed by the public. It would be regarded by thoughtful men throughout the United States as a sinister portent of moral disintegration, a shameless prostitution of senatorial conscience, and a harbinger of the battle that would then begin by all patriots to preserve the independence and integrity of the judiciary. If that battle should come, the roll of the Senate on the Parker nomination will stand indelibly as the measure of the conscience and courage of senators. Those who have been registered as defending the integrity of the United States Supreme Court need not fear the hour when the people will sift out the faithful from the unfaithful.

THE HOUSE STANDS FIRM.

The House has done good work in tariff revision during the last week. The tariff bill is now more acceptable to the general public than it has been since the beginning of the extra session a year ago. The House has stricken off the proposed duty on lumber, lowered the sugar duty, eliminated the debenture nostrum, and maintained the flexible revisory powers of the President.

Ninety Republicans in the House wisely concluded that the sugar duty fixed by the House was too high, and they voted to reduce the figure to that proposed by the Senate. The duty will therefore be 2 cents a pound, an increase of .24 cent. So far as protection to the domestic sugar industry is concerned an increase of duty is meaningless, but it is not meaningless to the universal consumer of sugar. Every home will pay more for this necessary article. But the public is resigned to an increase, and in view of the improved nature of the tariff bill it is not probable that opponents of the tariff will be able to make capital out of the relatively small sugar increase.

In smashing the debenture nonsense the House has protected the Treasury and warded off retaliation by foreign countries. The Senate coalition must give way on the debenture. The coalition is very shaky, and its repeated blunders in tariff making have thinned its ranks. President Hoover's plain hint of a veto in case the debenture is placed in the tariff bill will help to disintegrate the Senate coalition. The country is sick of tariff squabbles, and members of both houses are eager to get rid of the incubus. No prolonged struggle is possible in the circumstances.

An effort will be made, no doubt, to thwart the President in the matter of flexible revision. The House stands decisively with him. In this matter, as in the debenture project, the Senate is now up against the pressure for early adjournment. The Hoover-haters of the Senate can not rally strength on this issue. The Senators know that argument is vain in the face of the House's vote of Saturday. The Senate conferees must give in.

GEN. CROSBY'S TASK.

Commissioner Crosby's study of traffic problems in the District will meet with general approval. Washington has outgrown many of its traffic regulations. In some respects it is far behind other large cities of the country in controlling and directing the streams of automobiles that surge through its congested area daily. Gen. Crosby is giving his attention to one of the major problems of the District.

Dr. Miller McClintock, who is conducting a traffic and parking survey, finds that Washington has approximately twice as many motor cars passing through its downtown business section on an average day as has Boston. Boston has 200,000 more inhabitants than Washington. But apparently it has fewer automobiles and the people do less driving, at least in the congested areas. Washington is favored with many broad avenues, but the load of traffic they must carry is exceptional.

All cities have found it necessary to control traffic, but most large cities now endeavor to facilitate the movement of motor vehicles as well as regulate it. In this respect Washington is not keeping pace with the most progressive cities. In the rush hours traffic here stagnates in places. The city does not make the most of its broad avenues to get through traffic out of the way at a facilitated rate. The speed limit continues to be what it was five years ago, in spite of numerous mechanical improvements in automobile construction and a much greater volume of traffic. There are still on the police force a number of officers who delight in arresting a motorist for exceeding the limit by a few miles per hour when no danger whatever is involved.

The Bureau of Efficiency reported a few days ago that authority over traffic in the District is divided among three agencies, and recommended greater concentration of authority in the traffic director. No doubt Gen. Crosby is giving this attention while he considers the forthcoming appointment of a traffic director. It is highly desirable that authority be centered in one individual and that he be held responsible for efficient administration of the traffic code. It is timely also to give attention to the code itself, to find out where congestion might be relieved without sacrificing safety.

BANK REGULATION.

John K. Ottley, president of the First National Bank and the First National Associates of Atlanta, recently told the House committee on banking and currency that emergency legislation should be enacted to regulate the growth of group banks and prevent abuses, pending the formulation by Congress of a definite policy in this connection. In response to the suggestion, Representative McFadden, chairman of the committee, this week introduced a bill that would make it unlawful for any corporation or individual to purchase or otherwise acquire more than 10 per cent of the capital stock of more than one member bank of the Federal Reserve System without first obtaining the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency in the case of national banks, or of the Federal Reserve Board in the case of State bank members.

The American banking system is undergoing momentous changes. In place of the privately owned "unit" bank that bore the brunt of supplying the community with its banking needs in days gone by, group and chain banks are everywhere coming into being. Chain banking represents the personal control of two or more banks by a single individual or group of individuals. The banking group is formed by the purchase on the part of an individual or corporation of bank stocks sufficient to give control of widely separated banks. As a result of the growth of chain and group banking, thousands of communities today depend for their economic security upon the actions of bankers seated in their offices thousands of miles away. The old-time community banker who held in his head knowledge of the needs of his community, the standing of its citizens and the condition of its business has passed out of the picture. There is in existence today, according to an article prepared by Mr. McFadden not long ago, a single banking group controlling nearly 300 banks having nearly $2,500,000,000 in resources. Another group controls nearly 100 banks with assets of about $500,000,000.

Why have chain and group banks come to crowd out "unit" banks? The movement parallels the development of the chain store. It arises from economic need. Last year 437 banks in the 48 States suspended or failed, with liabilities of $218,000,000. In the nine-year period from 1920 to 1929 approximately 5,000 banks with deposits totaling $1,500,000,000 suspended operations or failed. In 1927, a good business year, nearly 1,000 national banks operated at a loss, and an additional 2,000 earned less than 5 per cent. Four out of ten national banks either operated at a loss or earned less than 5 per cent.

Group and chain banking have many desirable features. The only danger that lies behind the growth of the group and chain bank is that they are not susceptible of regulation and control and that, if carried to the extreme development, they may ultimately result in a virtual monopoly of money and credit. The Comptroller of the Currency said some time ago: "Where a group is composed of both State and national banks, as well as of other types of financial institutions, it becomes practically impossible for any supervising governmental official to ascertain authoritatively and accurately the financial condition of the group as a whole." It was in recognition of these dangers that the House last February authorized an investigation of group, chain and branch banking, to be followed by a report and recommendations for legislation. Mr. Ottley's testimony before the committee making this investigation led to the introduction of the McFadden bill to prevent the creation of new groups or chains or the extension of existing groups and chains without the sanction of the Federal Reserve Board or the Comptroller of the Currency.

The bill should be approved. Congress, sooner or later, will have to amplify the banking laws and regulations, and until such action can be taken the banking structure should be held so far as possible in its present state.

REPORTERS OF CONGRESS

From the Christian Science Monitor.

When Cicero spoke in the Roman Senate, his remarks were reported by Tyro, his slave. That was more than 2000 years ago. Were Cicero in the United States Congress today his words would be taken down by men whom he would regard as peers. At any rate, they are so regarded by the men there today.

The official reporters of congressional debates are twelve men, divided equally between the Senate and the House. Some have been in active service for more than a quarter of a century. The dean of the House shorthand men, Reuel Small, has been there for over thirty years.

What a mighty volume of words has fallen during that 30-year period. How many of them have fallen on the little note pad of Small no one can accurately say, but a rough calculation has estimated the number to be approximately 50,000,000.

Many brands of oratory have been represented in that great torrent of words. The orators have been fast and slow, lucid and unintelligible. Some have bellowed out their words, others have spoken in near whispers. The accents have smacked of every section of the country, and some other countries.

The range of words has run the gamut of the dictionary, and no doubt there have been some that couldn't be found in a dictionary—at least not in one meant for school children. In any event, they all have gone down in the reporters' little lined notebooks, for their quick intelligence and lightning-like hands do not miss. Moreover they have gone down at the rate of from 125 to 280 words a minute.

And on the other hand the slowest of the House orators was Representative John Calhoun Bell, of Colorado, who served in the Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Congresses. Representative Bell spoke so slowly that it was almost possible to record his remarks in longhand.

Generally speaking, it is the opinion of the older reporters that the representatives of today talk considerably faster than did those of a quarter of a century ago. This is probably due to the large membership of the House and to the necessity for limiting the speaking time of the members.

When some of the reporters began reporting, the membership of the House was 340; today it is 435. To permit all of these men to talk, it has become necessary to limit the time of each individual. The consequence is that the members speed up their remarks in order to finish before the gavel falls.

The reporters do most of their work while on their feet, and frequently they have to follow the orating members around the floor. Each reporter writes for about 15 minutes, or long enough to write an amount which will fill a page and a half of the Congressional Record. After he is relieved, he goes into his office and dictates into a phonograph. The record of this is then given to an amanuensis, who translates the words on a typewriter.

If the member wants to read proof on his remarks, the transcript is sent to him; if he does not, it is sent directly to the Government Printing Office for inclusion in the Congressional Record.

In the "old days" there was a widespread custom among the members of inserting "applause" in their speeches even when there had been no applause, but this practice largely has been given up.

Only one man is in the House today who was there when the dean of the House shorthand men first came to Washington, and that is Henry Allen Cooper, of Wisconsin. "Tsar" Reed, of Maine, was Speaker of the House at the time.

Many were the parliamentary giants in Congress at that time. There was Nelson Dingley, jr., of Maine; Sereno Payne, of New York; John Dalzell, of Pennsylvania; W. Peters Hepburn, of Iowa; J. W. Bailey, of Texas, and Uncle Joe Cannon, of Illinois. At that time Cannon was chairman of the committee on appropriations, and the country had not yet begun to cry out at "Cannonism."

SEEDS.

I know that watches run by springs;
That radios have tubes and things;
I know my car a motor needs,
But, oh, the mystery of seeds!

The secret of the telephone
To those who work with it is known,
And by those men in science trained
Its functioning can be explained.

I know that seeds have life within;
I've marked the spot where sprouts begin,
And I believe they'll grow, but I
Have not the slightest notion why.

I'm sure by some tremendous force
The stars and planets hold their course,
And books explain man's greatest deeds,

Virtue Usually Leaves Until Prosperity Learns to Feel Less Important.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE four causes and preservers of virtue are jails, religion, pride and poverty.

Man is not virtuous by nature, but evil—which means that he is by nature inclined to do the things he ought not to do.

His natural tendencies long ago made trouble for him, and to prevent such trouble he invented standards of morality.

Neither precept nor practice has yet made these standards instinctive, and he violates them until wise instructors or hard experiences teach him self-control.

The control of natural impulses is the hardest task in life, but it is the task most necessary in the development of decent manhood.

And since the practice of virtue is so difficult and so necessary, and man's unsupported will is incapable of it, certain aids are provided by Providence, by human wisdom and by a beneficent nature.

Many who can not be saved by any other influence are kept in paths of virtue by their fear of jail.

Many more, claimed in their youth by a wholesome religion, practice virtue to escape punishment and win eternal reward—or, having learned sincerely to worship their Creator, gladly follow the way of virtue to please Him, as all men surrender their own way to win the approval of one they revere.

Pride is the salvation of the high and mighty who have no fear of jail or acquaintance with religion.

As they are superior in other things, so thay would be superior in virtue; and class pride prompts them to scorn the immorality that dishonors men of a lower grade.

Poverty saves those who have no fear of jail, or benefit of religion, or pride of class.

Those long accustomed to wealth may be saved by religion or pride, but the newly rich, unsupported by caste standards, are like colts that kick out of harness.

As wealth makes them superior to other men, they feel superior to the laws other men obey and the religion other men practice.

Without restraint they run amuck, but wild life dissipates their money and brings them again to the poverty that encourages virtue.

Wealth now prompts the American to scorn law and feel superior to religion, but when he has grown accustomed to it and finds it no longer a sufficient proof of superiority, he will return to virtue and claim it as the sign and symbol of his justly proud caste.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE GARBLE SISTERS.

"Well, I see the American commissioners are home from that London conference."

"Yeah. Who were they?"

"Secretary Stimson, Senator Grundy, John McGraw and Judge Parker."

"I thought there was some trouble about Judge Parker getting a seat on the delegation."

"There was some opposition on the ground that he batted left-handed or something, but it was all settled. I think."

"They did a good job abroad even if that feller Mahatma Gandhi did make it hard for them by that fight over salt."

* * * *

"What did the conference agree on, anyhow? I didn't read much about it."

"I dunno exactly, except that it came out against overcrowding of prisons and wanted the prohibition enforcement job transferred from the Department of Agriculture to the Census Bureau, or something."

"There was a treaty signed, wasn't there?"

"Yeah. It guaranteed investigation of unemployment."

"How're they gunter handle unemployment?"

"I didn't read all the details, but all the big nations agree not to have any more stock market panics until 1936."

"Suppose some nation violates the agreement?"

"Any country that decides to have a panic and unemployment has got to notify the other countries first."

"And then what?"

* * * *

"Spain didn't sign on account of King Alfonso being called away to ride in a cigarmakers' parade and Mexico didn't sign for some reason or other, but all the other countries did except India."

"Why not India?"

"Aimee McPherson wouldn't let India sign."

"What's Aimee got to do with India?"

* * * *

"What happens to the treaty next? It has to be acted on by the American Federation of Labor, don't it?"

"No. By the International Bank, I think. After that it goes to Congress."

"Do you think it a good treaty?"

"Well, it may have its faults, but it gave us one good thing."

"What?"

"Daylight saving."

FRUGALITY.

The height of economy, suggests a member of the Racebrook Country Club, is established by a wooden tee discovered on the course last week. Shattered to bits, the splinters had been pieced together and bound by a piece of adhesive tape.

The Federation of Women's Clubs demands that stylists design clothes that will look good on stout women. That's an engineering problem.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Senator Wagner Answers Two Questions Relating to His Unemployment Bills.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On May 1, you published an editorial entitled "Politics in the Workless Problem," in which you raised two entirely pertinent questions in reference to my unemployment bills which the Senate has recently passed.

There is no need of waiting for these questions are asked or answered in the House, as you suggest. I am happy to have the opportunity to answer them now.

The questions you asked were:

1. Why the function of collecting statistics of employment was located in the Department of Labor?

The bill for the collection of statistics of employment does not create a new bureau. There is already an organization in the Department of Labor known as the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The new duties required by the employment statistics bill are assigned to that bureau. The work required will be of the same class as it has been doing on a very limited scale for many years past.

2. If the $150,000,000 provided in the long range planning bill were available would not the temptation to put it into circulation be too great to resist?

That risk has been very carefully guarded against.

First: Congress can not act under the bill without a request from the President by special message submitting supplemental estimates as required by the budget act. Secondly, the President can not act until advised to do so by his Secretaries of the Treasury, Commerce, Agriculture and Labor. Thirdly, these Secretaries can only act on the basis of precise information with reference to construction contracts and the index of employment.

Ultimately, the responsibility for putting into operation the machinery created by the bill will rest on the President, but it is a responsibility which he will be in a position to discharge, because he will have both the information to guide him and the means of acting, should he decide that action is necessary.

ROBERT F. WAGNER.
United States Senate, May 1.

Red Jacket Injunction Was Aimed at Attempted Interference With Interstate Commerce, Says Mr. Russell.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Red Jacket injunction was a Sherman act injunction, based upon a finding that the miners' union was carrying on a conspiracy to restrain the interstate commerce in coal. The injunction was not properly based upon any grounds of equity, the protection of "yellow dog contracts," the protection of property against irreparable damage, or as against deceit, threats, fraud, enticement of employes' misrepresentation, boycotts or picketing.

The Federal court had jurisdiction to apply the Sherman act and for no other purpose. The court did not have general law and equity jurisdiction as in the Hitchman case.

The trouble is that a trial judge will sometimes sign anything which is poked under his nose by the counsel for the party in whose favor the decision is cast, and then the case comes to the court of appeals with a load of exraneous and redundant lumber which confuses everybody who has any subsequent dealing with it.

I have listened for days to distinguished distinguishers and legal casuists go over this ground but have not heard this cardinal fact stated by any of them.

If it be the sense of Congress that a project to bring on a strike in a coal mine which must cause a temporary suspension of coal digging is not a conspiracy to restrain interstate trade in coal, Congress should either repeal the antitrust act or pass a declaratory act that the antitrust act does not mean what the Supreme Court decided it meant in the Coronado case, which was the real authority for the injunction issued in the Red Jacket case.

SAMUEL RUSSELL.

Highbrows Will Learn Something When Workingmen Pass Judgment on Prohibition, Says Mr. Unum.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You might think that when it's prohibition we're talking about, the highbrow would line up for temperance. But there is a highbrow white collar brigade, strange as it seems, which is among the loudest in favor of the return of old Jim Booze. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler et al. may be all right on the Einstein theory, but the wives and children of the workingmen know a thing or two about the benefits of prohibition. And that goes for the workingmen themselves.

The prohibition question is pie for highbrows who like to hear themselves prove that tweedledum is tweedledee, but when the polls are opened, the plain citizens, including the guys who roll up their sleeves when they go to work, will have their say, and what they say goes.

E PLURIBUS UNUM.

Cooperation by State and Nation Needed to Deal With Prison Problems.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why are our State prisons having such difficulty with their prisoners? Doesn't it look as though many of our State wardens might have profited enough by some of the earlier outbreaks to improve their own prison conditions and thus have postponed, if not prevented, some of these outbreaks?

The Federal Government ought to cooperate with the States in this matter. Why can not it call a conference of State wardens about every six months so that wardens can meet and exchange ideas and opinions about prison conditions and improvements? They could also listen to prominent Federal authorities and leading educators on matters interesting them. Improved conditions would greatly prevent such disturbances and loss of life, caused by so many recent outbreaks.

Julio Prestes To Pay Capital Visit in June

City Plans Welcome to President-Elect of Brazil and Party.

ALWAYS ready to welcome important visitors from other lands, Washington is now preparing for the visit of the President-elect of Brazil, Senor Julio Prestes, who will leave Rio de Janeiro about the twentieth of this month and is expected to arrive here the first week in June.

In making this trip, Senor Prestes is fulfilling a long desired hope. His itinerary will include a short visit here when he will be received by President Hoover and also entertained by the Brazilian Ambassador, Senor S. Gurgel do Amaral.

In the entourage will be the president-elect's family, his personal physician, several secretaries and diplomatic attaches. At the conclusion of their visit in Washington the party will pass a short time visiting in various cities of the East, and then will sail for a sojourn in Europe.

The Brazilian Ambassador is now holding conferences with State Department officials with regard to the welcome to be extended Senor Prestes, president-elect of the great neighboring Republic of Brazil; and there will be a program of entertaining designed to foster reciprocal good will between the two nations.

Apropos of gestures of good will, dispatches from Prague bring news of the very warm welcome extended by the president of Czechoslovakia to a representative of the United States, Mr. Abraham Ratshevsy, who has just assumed his new duties as American Minister to Czechoslovakia. President Masaryk gave an official reception in honor of the new envoy, who was driven to Hrad Castle in a state carriage drawn by white horses, with an escort of cavalry. The staff of the legation and officials of the Czechoslovak foreign office were in attendance.

In replying to Mr. Ratshevsky's brief address, in which he referred to the Czechoslovak Republic as "the land of promise and already rich in achievement in industry, finance, and social welfare," President Masaryk referred to his country's "happy memories of the distinguished help America rendered us in our struggle for independence."

Miss May W. Swords Married in New York.

The marriage of Miss May Willis Swords to Frederick Gallatin Hoppin Saturday afternoon in New York links families that figured prominently in the early history of the United States. It took place in the Church of the Incarnation, with which members of the bride's family long have been associated, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. H. Percy Silver, the rector, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Henry Darlington, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

The bride, who is the daughter of the present Mrs. Oliver Hazard Perry La Farge and the late Charles R. Swords, through her mother is a descendant of Henry Bicker, an officer in General Washington's army, who was an original member of the Society of the Cincinnati. On the paternal side she is a descendant of Thomas Swords, who joined the British army as a commissioned officer in 1763. She also is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jacquelin of this city.

Mr. Hoppin, one of the twin sons of the one-time Assistant United States Attorney General and Mrs. William Warner Hoppin, is a direct descendant of Elbridge Gerry, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and of Albert Gallatin, who more than a century ago was Secretary of the United States Treasury, and later Minister to France and Great Britain. He is also a descendant of the Bookman family, associated with the early history of this State.

The church was a garden of Spring flowers for the occasion, the chancel being massed with dogwood and apple blossoms against a background of palms and fern trees. Large clusters of Spring blossoms in pastel shades, were fastened to the ends of the pews along the main aisle, making a floral lane through which the bridal procession passed. This was led by the ushers, Jacquelin A. and Gerard S. Swords, brothers of the bride; James Lawrence Pool, cousin of the bridegroom; Dr. George Craig Ludlow, his brother-in-law; W. Ogden McCagg, John H. F. Haskell, Carl A. Gray and Murray McComas. They were followed by Mrs. Harrington Putnam, jr. and Mrs. Howard M. Lee, cousins of the bride; Mrs. Yale Kneeland, jr., Miss Margaret Sparrow, Mrs. George Craig Ludlow, sister of the bridegroom, who was matron of honor; Miss Margaret La Farge, stepsister of the bride, as maid of honor, and two young cousins of the bride as flower girls. They were Vallory Willis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Satterlee Willis, and Caroline Laighton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Laighton.

The bride was escorted by her stepfather, Oliver H. P. La Farge, to the chancel steps, where she was joined by the bridegroom and his twin brother, William Warner Hoppin, jr., who was best man. She was given in marriage by Mr. La Farge. Her gown of ivory-colored satin was made on simple lines, with old rose point lace edging the V neck. Her veil of old rose point lace, which fell in a long panel to the end of the train, belonged to her cousin, Mrs. William Willis Reese. It was caught to the coiffure with orange blossoms. The bride wore a diamond pendant which belonged to her maternal great-grandmother and carried a bouquet of lillies of the valley and gardenias.

The matron and maid of honor wore costumes of pale turquoise blue crepe de chine combined with ecru lace, with picture hats of the same shade, and carried arm bouquets of Spring flowers, in pastel shades.

The frocks of the other attendants were similar, of peach-colored crepe de chine and ecru lace, with hats to match. Their bouquets also were of pastel Spring blossoms.

Following the ceremony there was a small reception at the Colony Club. The couple received the congratulations of their relatives and friends in the ballroom in a bower of dogwood blossoms, blue hydrangeas and pink rambler roses. They were assisted by Mrs. La Farge, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Hoppin, mother of the bridegroom.

Mr. Hoppin and his bride, after their wedding trip, will live in New York.

Mrs. E. Francis Riggs, of Green Hill, Hyattsville, Md., is in New York, where she is staying at the Ambassador Hotel.

Mrs. John L. Proctor, who is en route to her summer home at Proctor, Vt., and Baron Paul Schell, attache of the Hungarian Legation, are also stopping at the Ambassador Hotel in New York.

An interview between Irving Fisher, professor of economics, Yale University, and Royal Meeker, United States Commissioner of Labor Statistics, 1913-20.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., May 4.—In the interview concluded below Royal Meeker, economist and distinguished authority on relations of capital and labor, shows how a machine civilization can be turned to the advantage of workingmen threatened with loss of their jobs. My questions and Dr. Meeker's replies are subjoined.

"What measures for immediate relief of unemployment during the present business depression would you suggest?"

"The first and most important thing is to restore the shaken confidence of American employers. The banks and the Federal Government are helping to do this. I do not have much faith in public construction as a means of tiding over an unemployment crisis. Usually it has proven impossible to get the public construction work going until the depression is past, so that public and private undertakings begin bidding for labor at the same time. If only we can work out a system by which public construction can begin as soon as serious unemployment is manifest, this might be of considerable help over the crisis. However, too much reliance must not be placed on public works. The cash or credit for public works can be obtained only by taking it from the pockets of the taxpayers and the money lenders. 'Money' taken by or lent to the Government can not be used at the same time by private employers. Every thousand dollars added to the public construction program means just so much unavailable for private industry. The theory is that public construction will offer employment when private employers are unable to do so. It is questionable, however, whether public enterprise can anticipate private enterprise much, if at all, in starting the recovery from industrial depression."

Commends A. F. of L. Plan.

"Are the measures of relief proposed by the American Federation of Labor, in your opinion, adequate?"

"The American Federation of Labor is supporting some very sane and wholly commendable measures looking toward industrial recovery. The proposal to adopt universally the five-day week as a means of spreading employment among more workers is sound enough, but needs to be applied with good judgment. As a means of tiding over a critical period it is all right, but it can only serve as a palliative during a crisis. If the five-day week were adopted throughout all industry, the danger of unbalanced production and consequent unemployment would not be in the least mitigated. When the next crisis should come, the cry for a four-day week to solve unemployment would arise. Next we might have the three-day week slogan, and so on. If workers' wages and welfare are to be maintained, not by the hour, but for the entire year and for the entire working life of the worker. It is desirable to shorten the long work-day and to lengthen the short work-pay; but there are very definite limits to both the shortening and the lengthening processes. I do not think the five-day week will be adopted permanently as the standard in industry, although it is useful in giving part-time employment to a large number of workers during industrial depressions.

"I heartily approve of the proposals advocated by the American Federation of Labor for establishing a national system of employment offices, and for giving vocational training to workers whose jobs have been destroyed by industrial changes in order to fit them for the new jobs that come into existence."

"Has any organized plan been evolved for preventing hardships suffered by men who are thrown out of jobs? In lieu of such plan, can the normal expansion of production, due to improvements in the arts, be relied upon to open new places for displaced workers?"

"Two practical, constructive plans for dealing with involuntary unemployment have been worked out and are being applied today, namely, insurance against unemployment and assurance of employment. To use medical terminology, the first may be called industrial therapy; the second, industrial prophylaxis. Curative medicine always precedes preventive medicine.

Insurance Against Unemployment.

"Insurance against physical accidents in industry has been in successful operation for many years. Unemployment is the most serious of all industrial accidents; in fact, it is the only purely industrial accident, since any bodily injury may occur in the home and on the streets quite as readily as in industrial establishments. The insurance principle is quite as applicable to the unemployment hazard as to any other industrial hazard. Unemployment insurance has been in operation in Ghent, Belgium, and in other European cities for many years. Great Britain was the first country to set up a national system of unemployment insurance just before the World War. Since the war, Germany has followed suit, and today all the countries of Europe have adopted the principle of insurance against unemployment, although several have not yet put it into practice.

"Unemployment benefits and insurance have been established in the clothing industries of Chicago, Rochester and New York, and by several of the most progressive employers in the United States. These experiments indicate that the insurance principle can be applied successfully in American industries, but it will probably be many years before the principle will be applied universally in this country. The unemployment funds inaugurated by Mr. Henry Dennison, the Filenes, and several other employers, are reported to be operating successfully. To be truly successful, however, a system of unemployment insurance or benefits must apply, not to individual plants here and there, but to all establishments in all industries so that workers who are obliged to go from an old job to a new job in another industry will not lose the needful protection.

"Unemployment insurance has been demonstrated to be perfectly practicable and necessary not only in Great Britain, Germany and other European countries but in the United States as well. It is the most practicable means of making each industry stand on its own feet and pay its own costs of production. An employer who would depend upon philanthropists and the taxpayers to repair his broken machines and maintain his plant and equipment would be regarded as a very poor business man. Yet most employers take it for granted that the workers they turn off in times of depression will be fed, clothed, warmed and sheltered somehow, either at private or at public expense, until they may need them again when business revives. Without realizing it, such employers are industrial parasites, depending in part for their 'success' upon the alms contributed by private and public donors who maintain their workers during periods of idleness.

Assurance of Employment.

"Although the United States has lagged behind Europe in applying industrial therapy (insurance) to the problem of unemployment, we are leading the world in experimenting with industrial prophylaxis (assured employment). In this field an ounce of prevention is worth a thousand tons of cure.

"Thousands of American employers are endeavoring to prevent unemployment through stabilization of industry. The committee appointed by Gov. Roosevelt to consider 'a long-time program for industrial stabilization and prevention of unemployment' reports that more than 200 of the largest corporations in the United States have worked out plans for 'steady work the year around.' This report is of great significance since the committee is made up of representatives of organized labor, organized industry, business, banking and the State. I venture to predict that before many years, organized industry will have worked out an industrial stabilization plan for doing away with the inhuman practices of turning workers out of their jobs because of the shortsightedness of management.

Making Inventions Create Jobs.

"Some of the more far-seeing employers, including yourself, have come out boldly in advocating a plan whereby every worker shall be benefited, not injured, by the introduction of new machines and methods. It is proposed that reserve funds should be accumulated from the profits earned by new inventions and that these funds should be used to expand industry so as to absorb the workers displaced by new machines or methods.

"By thus guaranteeing steady employment with higher real earnings, the attitude of the workers toward the introduction of labor saving devices would be completely reversed. Instead of retarding they would accelerate industrial improvements.

"Some faint inkling of the great impetus which may be given to industrial development and to the welfare of the workers is foreshadowed in the experiments with worker-management cooperation in the Baltimore & Ohio shops, the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Mills, and other concerns. The plans in operation in these establishments seem to be applicable generally to all industries if only workers and management will forget old antagonisms and concentrate on cooperation. The successful inauguration of an industrial program which will assure to every worker participation in the benefits of improvements in production will bring about the greatest 'Industrial Revolution' the world has ever witnessed. Industrial progress will be assured without the need for vicarious sacrifice on the part of workers whose jobs are taken by machines and who can have no hope of sharing in the better things which 'mechanized industry' eventually bring to pass.

"As I have said before, I do not think the policy of 'drifting' in the hope that all will come right in the end can be relied upon to straighten out our industrial tangles. If prosperity is to be kept going without interruption, the best brains must be used to plan the program of production far in advance and the hardest kind of work must be done to carry that program into effect."

NEW YORK MARKET PRICES ARE DOWN

Marked Trend Is Noted in Week; Loss of 4.7 Per Cent in Index Registered.

BREAK IS UNIVERSAL

By H. B. BROUGHAM
(Irving Fisher Service).

Stock prices assumed a definitely down ward trend last week on the New York Stock Exchange; they lost 4.7 per cent in the Irving Fisher index, to the level of 151.3 reached March 17. The decline during the past three weeks is comparable with increase during the three weeks preceding the 1930 high of 165.6 for industrial stocks on April 11. To short selling were added last week reports of British liquidation of stocks in New York because of the unrest in India; but undoubtedly American pools that had misjudged the slow speed of business recovery and had discounted values too far into the future have had much to do with this recession in stock prices.

The break was universal throughout the group indexes of stocks, which in every case except the preferred stocks fell last week by more than 1 per cent. The preferred group held steady with insignificant loss. Of the other groups foods and tobaccos showed the firmest tendency, while oils fell only 3.6 per cent, after reaching their 1930 high of 125.5 on April 30.

Stock Values Traded Decline.

Average daily values traded last week in common industrial stocks on the New York Stock Exchange declined by $4,700,000 to $208,400,000, or 2 per cent below the preceding week. Of the twenty groups ten moved down and ten up.

Tradings in all stocks were off last week by $1,500,000 daily, with a decline of 0.6 per cent from the preceding week; gains were made in utilities and preferred stocks, with rails indicating a daily rise of $3,000,000 in values traded.

The Paris stock price index declined last week by 4.9 per cent to 136.6, only 1.9 per cent above the 1929 crash to 134.1 on November 29. The index had risen to 156.3 on January 17, with an eight weeks' secondary break to 137.8 on March 17. Then prices rallied from March 17 to April 11, the index standing at 148.0 on that date; since then there has been a decline of 7.7 per cent.

Berlin and London stock prices have held steady this year. Last week, however, Berlin stocks fell off, and during the past four weeks have declined by 2.3 per cent, while London prices have gone down by 1.2 per cent within two weeks past.

The index of 225 industrial common stocks shows what a substantially representative $100 worth of stocks in 1926 would now amount to if held unchanged since that year. This index is weighted by shares outstanding. The index of "50 most active," or market leaders, shows the result of reinvesting the $100 every week in the market favorites of that week. This index is weighted by shares traded, the list changing weekly. The last column of the table gives the average yield per cent on these weeks' 50 leaders at current prices.

All Stock Groups Down.

The investment and speculative groups held firm through the first two weeks of the recent slump, but joined with the semiinvestment group to cause the market to take rather severe losses last week.

The investment group in three weeks show a loss of 5.4 per cent at last week's close and the index is the lowest since March 22.

The semiinvestment group has lost more ground, at the level of February 26, showing a loss from April 10 of 8.7 per cent.

The speculative group last week suffered a similar loss of 8.7 per cent from its high of April 10, and was at the level of March 8.

Impatience Boosts Interest Rates.

The essence of interest is impatience; the desire to obtain gratifications earlier than we can get them, the preference for present over future goods. To get a certain extra amount of money or goods now we are willing to pay a bonus at some future date.

Income Determines Capital.

Many business men have the illusion that the value of income is produced by the value of capital. The reverse is true: the selling value of the stock or bond is dependent on its expected income. In other words, the principle of discounting the future applies to any and every investment whatsoever.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

Checker Cab.

L. W. M.—Recently your column favorably mentioned Checker Cab as an investment. I noticed that it rose rapidly shortly after this, but that it has sharply reacted. I would appreciate your advice as to the present possibilities of the stock and, if possible, the reason for its reaction?

Answer—Company reported for year ended December 31, 1929, net income equal to $11.41 per share, an increase of more than 500 per cent over the $2.04 per shares earned in 1928. These earnings were substantially in excess of the present $4.20 yearly dividend requirements. It was because of the favorable earnings during 1929 and the current dividend rate, that this column spoke so well of the stock from a speculative investment viewpoint. There is no sound reason for any change in these views.

However, it is expected in usually well informed quarters that the company for the first quarter of 1930 will report net income of less than $500,000. This would be equivalent to something under $1.50 a share, contrasting with $1.05 a share, the dividend requirement for the three months. It is probably due to such expectations that the stock has lately reacted from its former high figures.

Montgomery Ward.

W. W. C.—Press reports indicate there have been recent changes in the management of Montgomery Ward & Co. and that some necessary reformations may be expected as a consequence. Please advise what changes have been made, and how, in your opinion, they will affect this company's earning power?

Answer—On April 23, 1930, announced that J. M. McDonald, formerly vice president of J. C. Penney & Co., had been elected vice president and general merchandise manager, and that F. A. Powdrell, formerly vice president and treasurer of T. T. Grant & Co., Inc., had been chosen vice president and treasurer of this company. What effect these changes may have upon Montgomery Ward earning power is, of course, entire problematical. Report of business done in April shows a substantial increase over that for the corresponding month in 1929. However, this can not be due to the changes in managemnt just noted, in view of the fact that such changes have only very recently occurred.

Kelvinator.

D. J. W.—I have been advised to purchase some of the stock of the Kelvinator Corporation and am seriously considering doing so. Before buying I would like to have your opinion as to the present status of the company and likewise its future prospects, especially as concerns the dividend outlook.

Answer—It is quite apparent that the Kelvinator Corporation has definitely turned the corner. Profits for the quarter ended March 31, 1930, amounted to $883,558, or 74 cents per share, compared with 23 cents per share for the corresponding months of 1929. Profits for April, it is estimated, will amount to approximately $1,000,000, and it is believed that those for the six months, January to June, inclusive, will be close to $3 a share. For the entire year 1930, it is now estimated in well informed quarters that earnings on the stock will be at least $4 a share.

It will thus be observed that the corporation is steadily working into a position where it will be able to comfortably pay a dividend on its outstanding capital. As to when this may occur it is not possible to say just now. However, there has lately been some excellent buying of the shares, no doubt largely predicated on the assumption that dividend payments are not very far off.

Texas Pacific Land Trust.

L. K. T.—Having heard that the Texas Pacific Land Trust has lately made some very important leases of some of its oil lands to other oil companies, I write to ask for details concerning such leases, and likewise what, in your opinion, will be the probable effect upon the stock of the former.

Answer—Texas Pacific Land Trust has leased 960 acres of oil land in Glasscock County, Texas, to Pure Oil Co., 480 acres in Ector County to Phillips Petroleum Co. and 320 acres in Glasscock County to Balance Oil Co. Besides a cash consideration in each transaction, the trust will receive the usual one-eighth royalty in oil produced.

Besides these leases, the Continental Oil Co. has purchased from the trust commercial oil and gas leases on 145,000 acres in six counties in Texas. Very naturally, these developments should exert a very beneficial influence on the stock, buying of which has lately been of a very good character.

RAIN IN SOUTHWEST BREAKS UP DROUGHT

Cotton Planting Accelerated, Especially in Texas and Oklahoma.

FROSTS DAMAGE IN EAST

Beneficial rains occurred during the weekly period ended April 29, to end the long-continued drought in the Southwestern sector and accelerate planting, especially in the Texas cotton district. In Oklahoma the drought has been generally broken, planting being held up long enough for the soil to dry sufficiently.

In the Eastern States there were damaging frosts in the middle of the week, with resultant slowing of garden products and fruits.

The same cold spell held up corn planting. Rainfall, however, improved the condition of the soil.

Improvement Seen In Bond Market

World-Wide Cuts in Money Rates Held to Mean Higher Prices.

The recent joint cut to 3 per cent in the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Board and the Bank of England, and to 2½ per cent in Paris, can have only one effect in improving the bond market. Even before the further easing of money rates there was a rise last week of 0.13 per cent in the all-bonds index, counteracting the slight decline of 0.07 per cent in the preceding week. Recovery is already under way from the slump that began March 22, pulling the index off by 0.9 per cent to the low of 100.7 on April 25.

Daily tradings in all bonds last week on the New York Stock Exchange showed consistent gains, Thursday being the largest trading day in two weeks; but average daily value traded was still off 2.4 per cent from the preceding week.

Of the 70 bonds in the Irving Fisher selection, 48 per cent were up in price last week, as compared with 34 per cent the preceding week, while 29 per cent were off as compared with 45 per cent the preceding week. Rails and utility bonds have assumed a definitely rising trend, with only 25 per cent in these groups off in price last week.

Overproduction Seen Chief Business Problem

The chief problem of the business world today is that of overproduction. If it can be solved the standard of living in the United States will rise by 50 per cent, according to President Hoover's estimate of its industrial capacity.

The question economists and others are trying to determine is whether the solution lies in curtailing production or providing some means to increase the amount of ultimate-consumer buying, to the point where it will consume present production.

COMMODITY LEVEL LOWEST SINCE 1916

Semimanufactured Goods Go Down Faster Than Average Articles.

FARM PRODUCTS STEADY

With the commodity price level down to its lowest point since 1916, the movement of the index from July, 1929, to the present has been established as a definite long-term downward trend. In relative pace the different commodity groups, however, were not similar, due to a short period of rising prices recently.

Previous to this rise raw materials had sagged below the trend of the downward movement since last summer. The rise brought the index back to the trend, to which it has since conformed.

Semimanufactured goods have deviated from the trend in the past three weeks, going down even faster than the average.

Finished Goods Off Again.

Finished goods had suffered severely from July until November, and then enjoyed a twelve weeks' period of rising prices before going off again. The decline now is less acute than in 1929.

Farm products follow the trend at present, the recent rise bringing them back to the trend, after unusually bad movements.

Metals have gone even below the trend in the last three weeks.

Commodity Level Still Sags.

The commodity price level continues to sag still further into prewar areas, spelling business stagnation. Last week the all-commodity price index (1926 equaling 100) dove further down by 0.55 per cent to a mark of 89.7, the lowest figure since September, 1916.

The period from 1913 through 1915 had an average index of approximately 69.5, with a record low of 67.3 for the month of June, 1914. After this period, prices began an upward trend that culminated in May, 1920, when the index reached 167.2.

Since July, 1929, the general tendency of commodity prices has been down. There have been two short periods of rising prices, both of which appeared to have turned the pendulum upward; but these reactions served only to temper the rate of decline. The trend was not reversed.

Coincidental with the commodity price decline, the purchasing power of the dollar rose still furhter to 111.5, or 11½ cents more than the 1926 level.

An offering of 50,000 American shares

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE claim is made that the composer of the "Maine Stein Song," which radio has put over with such a bang, is here in Washington—E. A. Fenstead, a member of the orchestra at the Palace Theater. According to the story Fenstead wrote it as a march in 1901 and it was rewritten in 1910 by Prof. A. W. Sprague, of the University of Maine, as a song.

Hardly a copy of it had been sold for twenty years and the purchase rights were offered to Maine University for $50, but found no takers because the price was too high. Subsequently the National Broadcasting Co. acquired the rights and selected it for the purpose of testing radio as a song plugger.

Rudy Vallee, a native of Maine, took it up, as did all broadcasting stations, with the sale now soaring around 350,000 and promising to earn a small fortune for the N. B. C.

Any one not familiar with the "Maine Stein Song," may hear a performance of it—at his own risk, however—by sixteen saxophonists tonight. (WMAL—Crusaders—9:30).

"YOU snowed me under with letters of remonstrance because a week ago I told you I felt the time had come when I should no longer impose my voice and its explanatory comments upon your musical hour with me," Walter Damrosch said to the radio audience Saturday night in further explanation of the sudden curtailment of his musical talks.

"Having done it for three years I thought the time had come to stop, but your letters have come in so many hundreds and thousands, all singing the same song and asking me to continue that, if it is only in defense of our secretaries who have been overwhelmed with work, I must agree to take back what I said.

"Naturally, I am only too happy to do anything toward furthering the music that you and I love. So we will compromise. I will devote never more than five minutes to my talks. If you find that in my enthusiasm I transcend that time then please rap me over the knuckles with your letters."

Which suggests that Floyd Gibbons, who appears in the same hour with Mr. Damrosch, try cutting off the advertising talks and see how many listeners ask for a continuance.

If memory serves correctly "Smoky Joe" Martin, the Deputy New York fire chief, who is to reminisce tomorrow night at 7 o'clock, was in charge of the New York fire department battalion which went to the rescue of Baltimore at the time of the great fire.

At any rate we commend this talk to Chief Watson, Capt. Edward O'Connor, of Engine I, and others in the Washington fire department because "Smoky Joe" surely knows his stuff.

Although the program, which will be given with special sound effects, was not scheduled for the Capital, K. H. Berkley, station manager, out of compliment to the Washington firemen, will broadcast the program locally through WRC.

HAPPENING to tune in on a dance program from New York, the Rev. W. J. Carroll of the Assumption Church, south, heard Kelvin Keech, the announcer say, in explaining why it was necessary for the orchestra to omit the last number:

"As the conclusion of the program does not permit our remaining longer, we'll reserve 'Kicking a Hole in the Sky' for another time."

Miss Elizabeth Brinton Kent, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A Atwater Kent, of Philadelphia, will be presented at the Court of St. James in London next week.

John J. Daly heard the announcer say the Eskimos would next play song hits from "O & Kay" (spelling & is Luella's) whereupon they played four selections from "Tip Toes."

Timed for music week, a new spring feature, the "Plane of Dreams" will be wafted in tonight (WRC 9 p. m.)

MARCONI, speaking from his yacht in Italian waters to NBC officials in New York by radio telephone, said that through a new short wave station near Rome, we may hope to receive programs soon from Italy.

"They will consist of operas, as well as descriptions of great Italian events," Marconi declared, "which I have no doubt will be greatly appreciated by the large Italian speaking population of the United States."

The most unusual part of the transatlantic conversation, however, was the frank manner in which Mrs. Marconi, who also spoke from the yacht, discussed a certain intimate family matter. It was an illustration of the contrast between American and European conventions in such things.

WHEN Capt. Taylor Branson and the Marine Band strike up the "Royal Welch Fusiliers" today (WRC 3:15 p. m.), the public will have an opportunity to appraise Sousa's newest march, the initial playing of which so stirred President Hoover and Gridiron diners recently.

It commemorates the friendship formed between our Marines and the Fusiliers during the Boxer uprising in China at which time Mr. Hoover, a mining engineer, along with Mrs. Hoover, was beleaguered in Tientsin.

The regular broadcasting of out-of-town games by WRC will not begin until Washington plays in Boston on May 26.

Dare C INTERPRETS the MODE

Sprng ensemble of red, black and beige tweed over red crepe de chine dress—unusual scarf and collar touches. (Courtesy of Doeuillet Doucet, Paris).

Paris, May 4.

There's one thing you just can't say now and get away with! And that is, you simply can't find a bag to suit you. Millyuns and millyuns of smart bags are being born every minute, it seems—such a glorious variety of shapes and sizes and materials, with the most extraordintry and unusual clasps and bars and gadgets and tricks.

For sports and morning wear there are the comfy looking, chic tweed bags that match the costume with which they are carried. And that most ingenious of all fastening devices, the zipper, is still in its prime. For trimming, perhaps, a wooden knob!

For dressy afternoon wear who can live without an antelope or suede in rich black or chocolate brown, clasped and trimmed in amber bars and balls?

Evening seems a lame bag in Miladi's hand, a silver or gold leather matching her slippers, and trimmed as is her slipper. Often glittering with strass in this evening vanity bag, usually small in size, dainty to look upon and dainty to hold.

* * * *

What would you say to a quiet smart crepe de chine dress with a tricky little white jabot, red bordered? Especially if it were a Doeuillett-Doucet, and more especially still if there were a red, black and beige tweed coat to wear with it? Well, we said it was good and that it ought to be sketched for you, because we were crazy about the scarf collar of the coat that flattered the front. So saying, being, doing in Dah-ray territory, it got itself sketched for you today.

* * * *

I'll say they are! Like to know what's happening in our bag world, for instance? Well, there's the black pin seal envelope purse thinly edged all around with steel, for one's black tailleur; then there is the very fine silky black antelope bag, square, with the cutsteel trimming.

And then the other black antelope that I didn't need, but just couldn't live without! With nothing at all but its lovely shape for trimming, and the raised lion's head of dull cut crystal with a ring in his mouth.

Then there is the tiny black envelope purse which really does look like an envelope, with the point entirely covered with marcasite and onyx.

There will have to be one tailored bag and one dressier one in gray, all of which is the price of being photographed and pointed out where you go, so there.

* * * *

Paris is all fussed up for spring—especially the Paris millinery world. Hats are gayer and gaudier and fluffier and flimsier than for a round dozen of seasons past, and if you don't know it now, you'll soon find out that you can't go dinner dancing in the same little old felt hug-your-head hat you've been wearing. And then you'll scamper around madly in search of a fancy bonnet and sigh over this one and sigh over that one, all because they cost a pretty penny. Then you'll be sorry if you didn't send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of the Washington Post, for this week's illustrated leaflet so that you could make your own, for practically no penny at all!

Of course you're reading, regularly, the weekly Dare Fashion Letter in the Sunday Washington Post.

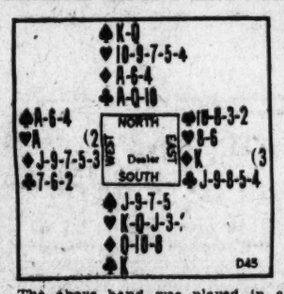
MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The above hand was played in a game of Contract Bridge; South bid one Heart, West two Diamonds and North four Hearts, which ended the contracting.

Had the hand been played at Auction, the bidding would have been: South one Heart, West two Diamonds, North two Hearts.

In either game South was fully warranted in bidding a five-card King-Queen-Jack suit with a King, Queen and Jack of different suits on the side, notwithstanding the fact that the King was a singleton. West's "following" bid of two on a six-card Jack-high suit was justified by his two side Aces. North had no reason in Auction for bidding more than two but with marvelous support for his partner's Hearts, there could be no question about the soundness of his Contract bid for game.

In the play West led his fourth best Diamond. Declarer played small from dummy as he thought West had led from the King and so expected to win with closed hand's Queen or Ten and save dummy's Ace; but East won with the King and led a Spade. West's Ace won and he led a second Diamond, not being troubled by the false card play of the Ten which South had made on the first trick. East ruffled and eventually West's Ace of trumps saved the game.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

While it might be contended that West's Diamond bid indicated that he had the King of that suit, it was unwise for Declarer to risk the play of a small Diamond on the first trick. Declarer could tell that East had one Diamond higher than the Five; and in spite of West's bid it was hardly probable that he would lead a suit headed by a King, unaccompanied by a Queen, against a trump contract. Game might be lost by playing small on the first trick; but almost certainly it can be won by playing dummy's Ace of Diamonds and then leading the Ace of Clubs followed by the Queen, on which South discards a Diamond. The method of play practically limits Declarer's losses to three tricks—West's two Aces and a Diamond. If West had led from the King of Diamonds, North's Ace play would cost a trick, but that trick would be immaterial, as Declarer apparently ensures his game and contract by playing the Ace.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

GARDEN ENEMIES.

GARDEN enemies are legion, and would we be victorious in routing these pests, we must be ever vigilant. It is a case of perpetual warfare from the time the first leaf unfolds until the last flower has wilted. If we wait until there in an epidemic of a certain variety, with every plant in our garden covered with insects, it will be an almost hopeless task to get rid of them; but if we destroy the advance guard, all will be well.

One thing to keep in mind is the fact that healthy plants that are developing new growth rarely fall prey to any insects. But sickly, stunted plants are sure to succumb. Such plants offer little or no resistance.

Kerosene emulsion is the standard remedy against all sucking insects (such as plant lice, plant bugs and scale insects), and is of value against soft-bodied insects which can not for various reasons be poisoned by paris green and similar insecticides.

The best form for ordinary use is kerosene-soap emulsion, made by combining two gallons of kerosene and one-half pound of whale-oil soap or one quart of softsoap (either can be purchased from the average druggist) with one gallon of water. Some authorities recommend the addition of a quart of milk to this mixture, but I have never been able to see that the milk was much of an addition, except to add to the quantity of the emulsion.

The soap should be dissolved in boiling water and then permitted to cool. Pour this into the kerosene. (Keep the kerosene far away from fire.) The mixture should then be violently stirred for 15 minutes, at the end of which time it will have the consistency of thick cream.

Properly prepared, such an emulsion will keep indefinitely and should be diluted only as needed for use.

For most insects, except scale or bark lice, the staple emulsion should be diluted from 15 to 20 parts with water.

For rust and blight, the most efficacious remedy is made by dissolving two teaspoonfuls of copper carbonate with one-half teacup of ammonia. Add to this six and one-half gallons of water, and apply this spray twice a week, using it full strength.

What Today Means to You

"TAURUS."

IF May 5 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 5 a. m. to 6 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

The influences for this date should prove inspirational, and it is indicated are being safe to ride forth with optimism on any brain wave which you may have. A good time for investments. The evening hours favor romantic adventures.

The child born on this May 5 will have loyalty as its outstanding characteristic. It will make a faithful friend and a dependable worker. If a girl, some kind of nursing is its true vocation. It should be endowed with a strong constitution, with probably throat troubles during childhood.

Your nature leans toward pessimism more than optimism, and you find more gloom in the world than need be. There is more religion in laughter than in a groan, and more tonic too. The world is a stock market in which both good and bad issues may be purchased, and our thoughts are our stock brokers. The sooner you change yours, the better will be your returns. Envy and despair are negative traits, and bring negative results. Supplement them with self-satisfaction and hopefulness, and watch the change in your life. You are not lacking in ability, but your voltage is weak. There is insufficient force behind it to put it across in proper shape.

You are blunt in speech, too much so for your own good; your candor is not always appreciated. This is probably more an affectation than anything else to cover up your natural self-consciousness and shyness. There is fortunately no bluntness of soul in your case, for you are both generous and kind-hearted. Naturally, you are many things, which you do not appear to be, because of your deficiency complex. Peoples of your temperament "blossom out" in an atmosphere of love and praise, and if you become properly mated, your life will become much fuller and happier. You are very fond of animals, and you are a patient and an understanding friend of all children.

Successful people born May 5:

1—Robert Bridges, physician and educator.

Wives of Tomorrow

"The Hero Won't Work."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am 19 years of age and am deeply in love with a young man six years older. We have been going together for a year and he is very much in love with me. The only drawback is that he won't work. As he hasn't any trade, we don't know what will come of it, but he is bright and is a high school graduate How can I make him go to work? I hope that he will get some new job that will have a chance of advancement in it. Also he lied to me about money matters, saying he had a certain amount in the bank and that he could go into business if he cared to, but, to clear his conscience he told me today the whole truth. He swore that he will never lie to me again. What would you suggest that I might do? As I do not know what to advise him to do. He doesn't know what he would like to do, but would give anything to get money and save every cent of it. Can I trust him? I am worried for fear he won't be able to make a living." ALINE

Well, you will have quite a few more problems to meet and face and solve if you marry this sample of manhood. Is he the first man you ever saw, or what? How can you even tolerate him? He is 25 and does not even know what he wants to do. That sounds like mental deficiency, for surely in the course of 25 years a man could find, say, a half an hour or so some evening to sit down and ask himself what sort of a man he wanted to be at 50, a citizen or a tramp. John Jones at 27 can afford a wife and a car and two kids. John Smith is single and broke and down at the heel.

There is so much action in this world that the chap who gets the lagging habit usually gets the dust as the procession speeds on its busy and eventful way. So get your hero on his way. Don't detain him on the side lines, or the sofa. Hand him his hat and tell him to bring home the bacon and he will.

At present you are holding hands with a first-class tramp and probably a paranoiac. Snap out of it; men who won't work should all be taken in hand by the community. The rock pile or the hospital should be the answer.

This column is for you! Your exptriences, opinions, and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Department of Agriculture.)

One of the best combination preserves is made from strawberries with fresh pineapple. It is easy to make and has a fine and unusual flavor. Directions for making it are:

Sugar.

Remove the skin and "eyes" from the pineapple and cut it into long pieces, and then into inch cubes. Discard the core. Measure or weigh the pineapple, add equal measure or weight of sugar, put the mixture into a large pan over low heat, stir until the sugar is melted, bring to a brisk boil, and cook for ten minutes stirring constantly. Divide the smaller berries from the larger ones and to each lot add three-quarters of their measure or weight of sugar. Add the small berries and sugar to the cooked pineapple and cook for 10 minutes; then put in the larger berries and sugar. Cook this whole mixture for 30 or 35 minutes or until the jelly test is reached. Allow the jam to stand overnight in the saucepan in which cooked. In the morning reheat to the boiling point and pour into sterilized glasses. When cold cover the tops with paraffin, seal, label, and store in a cool, dry place.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

Two openings tonight mark the beginning of the first week of May—the joyous month.

In the past, mystery plays have proved to be the most popular theater fare presented by the National Theater Players. During the course of their six years on E street they have essayed some of the outstanding mystery plays of all time. "Wooden Kimono" belongs to this category; outstanding. It was made primarily to thrill.

* * * *

There is no mystery, of course, in "Able's Irish Rose," the perennial of show business, which gets under way tonight in Poli's; probably the last play that will ever grace these old boards.

Most folks thought that Poli's would close shop with the end of the Walter Hampden repertoire Saturday night Not so. Mr. T. D. Bonneville, the astute manager, immediately went into a huddle with his New York cohorts and dragged out Anne Nichols' old play. Part of the original cast was assembled, other recruits added, and here is the play ready for another lease on life.

Originally, it was planned to open "Able" last night at Poli's, but something went wrong and the opening was postponed till tonight. As a consequence, a lot of good folk who journeyed downtown to see the opus were disappointed.

On next Sunday night the all-star cast reviving Sheridan's comedy, "The Rivals," will park in the National Theater—for one night only. The seat sale opens today—and the lovers of this old play will probably be found until well in the afternoon seeking choice seats. One person in Washington need have no fear of seeing the play—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, senatorial candidate from Illinois. George C. Tyler, producer of "The Rivals," was a boyhood friend of the late Mark Hanna. Mrs. McCormick's distinguished father. Mr. Tyler believes that Mrs. McCormick ought to be the first woman President. She will be, too, if the producer has his way. And about her seeing his show: "She can have any seats or all the seats in the house," he writes, "and if necessary I would give a special performance for her alone." What's more, he would. That's the kind of a friend George Tyler is.

* * * *

On December 26, the day after Christmas, Miss Ruth Draper began her lone hand show in the Comedy Theater New York. Last night she gave her final performance—a run of some twenty weeks in what has been generally termed a bad season of theatricals. Miss Draper, it will be remembered, has no confederates to assist her, as they used to say. A monologist, she occupies the stage two and a half hours at each performance—and if that is not the proof of an impelling personality what is? Her stay in New York is by way of being a record in the American Theater. At least no one other single performer has ever attained such a record run.

GAYETY

Lola Pierce, "Tiny" Huff, Bebe Almond, Louise Butler, Syd Burke, Charlie Goldie, Hap Freyer and Lou Devine, comics; Lew Peter, Charles LeRoy and Harry Hyan comprise the cast.

The male portion of the show supplies the humor and action, Goldie, Fryer and Devine are the funsters. Twenty lassies make up the chorus. They work hard and deserve much praise. Jimmy Lake is to be congratulated on his production.

The "Mutual Follies" is the best burlesque show that has glittered the Gayety stage in a long long time.

FRENCH PRESIDENT VISITOR TO ALGIERS

NAVY POWER DISPLAYED

Algiers, May 4 (A.P.).—President Gaston Doumergue, of France, landed in Algiers today for the visit which consecrates not only French colonial success in Algeria but also the immensity of the nation's colonial achievements in Africa.

Marking the centennial of the French conquest of Algiers from the Barbary pirates, the cruiser Duquesne steamed through a double rank of mighty warships—bringing the ruler of the French republic here to attend the fetes planned to celebrate Algeria's progress and extension of the native civic rights.

The display of naval power served, for one thing, to prove to the gorgeously arrayed Arabs from the African hinterland that France is mighty on the high seas as well as on land. Squadrons of airplanes maneuvering above the city and over Algiers Bay drew many admiring glances from native troops mounted on racing dromedaries.

The Saharan festival, arranged in honor of President Doumergue, was the greatest attraction for the general public. It was held on the city's race course, overlooking Algiers Bay. When M. Doumergue walked into the brilliantly decorated presidential box he looked down on a site as picturesque and impressive as that staged for Emperor Napoleon III and the Empress Eugenie when they visited Algiers in 1860. The vast hippodrome was packed by thousands of spectators, while other thousands, unable to gain admission, stood outside.

On the racing field were assembled contingents of the principal tribes, Berbers and Arabians, who form part of France's African army. The mysterious Tuaregs, veiled tribesmen from the distant Hoggar, who journeyed almost 2,000 miles for the ceremonies, won the greatest attention. Mounted on swift racing camels, they sat immobile, holding long lances of wrought iron in their right hands and shields made of antelope skin in their left. At a given signal the camels leaped down the field, giving a marvelous exhibition of speed.

A superb Arabian horse was presented to the affable and smiling French president, who, in turn, gave a poinard studded with diamonds to Chief Amenocal of the Hoggar, leader of all the tribesmen present.

Property Man Falls Dead.

Mr. Martin was pronounced dead by Dr. Rodger Young, of Casualty Hospital. Death was attribated to heart trouble.

150 Believed Victims Of Japanese Typhoon

Tokyo, May 4 (A.P.).—Rengo dispatches from Toyohara today estimated deaths from a typhoon in the Odomari and Tomitaka districts on the Island of Saghalien would total 150. This included the known dead and the missing for whom no hope was held.

The typhoon swept the rim of Aniway Bay at the southern extremity of the island. The damage was estimated between $2,500,000 and $5,000,000. Most of the dead were fishermen from the village of Odomari, who put to sea just before the storm, lured by reports of huge schools of herring within the bay.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Whenever a driver is involved in an accident, no matter how slight, the law requires him to stop and reveal his identity. This means giving his name, place of residence and registration and operator's permit numbers. Otherwise he is a "hit and run" driver.

The regulations are specific on this point and the Traffic Act fixes the penalty of a fine of $100 to $500 and imprisonment of 60 days to 6 months for the first offense. The required identifying information should be given to a passer-by in the case of collision with an unoccupied car.

Example: A driver collides with another car and does not stop, entending to go to a police station and report the accident. Even though he makes such a report, he has technically violated the regulation that he must make his identity known at the scene of the accident.

Woman Dictator To Battle Racket

New York, May 4 (A.P.).—A woman has been appointed "dictator" to combat a group of Brooklyn racketeers, it was announced today. Mrs. Rosalie Loew Whitney, a lawyer and prominent in civic and Republican party circles, has been given "absolute authority" by the Neighborhood Laundryman's Association, comprising 95 per cent of the laundries in Brooklyn, in its warfare against racketeers.

Masquerading as detective agencies and protective associations, these racketeers have been collecting more than $250,000 annually from members of the laundries association, according to a report given to Mrs. Whitney. When the laundries refused to pay they were threatened with violence, their laundry stolen and their trucks overturned or destroyed.

Mrs. Whitney, who is the wife of Travis H. Whitney, chairman of the United Shares Corporation, accepted her "dictatorship" only on condition that she receive no remuneration.

Boy Shoots Mother Thinking Her Burglar

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 4 (N. Y.W.N.S.).—Accidentally shot by her 14-year-old son who mistook her for a burglar, Mrs. Wallace Wait, 49, is in the Saratoga Hospital, suffering from about 80 birdshot wounds in the hands, arms and abdomen, but it was said today at the hospital her condition is not serious.

A few nights ago intruders broke into Mrs. Wait's garage and stole tools, and each night since she kept a constant watch, believing the burglars would return. At about 11 o'clock last night, she was walking in the garden, her son, Clyde, heard her footsteps, thinking it was another burglar. He went into the yard with a shotgun. A hundred feet away he saw a figure, and shot at it, not knowing it was his mother.

23 ARE GRADUATED BY NURSING SCHOOL

Dr. Truman Commencement Speaker at Takoma Park Sanitarium Ceremony.

DOUBLE MINISTRY TOPIC

The twenty-first annual commencement exercises of the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital School of Nursing, Takoma Park, Md., was conducted last night by Dr. Archibald W. Truman, medical superintendent of the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital. Twenty-three nurses were graduated, their diplomas being presented by the Rev. John L. Shaw, president of the sanitarium board. The exercises were held in Columbia Hall Auditorium.

"The Double Ministry" was the topic of Dr. Truman's address. He emphasized the fact that these nurses received their training with the object in view of entering missionary service.

"It is their work," he said "to render faithful, skilled, sympathetic and scientific care to the sick, guiding them back to health by removing the causes of disease, and by using the simple but effective agencies of nature in its cure."

The aim of these nurses, he said, is to win converts to Christ and to minister to the sin-sick souls of men as well as to their bodies, thus rendering the "double ministry" to mankind.

"These young people endeavor to teach men and women how to live so as to preserve health and avoid disease," stated Dr. Truman. Medical evangelical work forms a part of their training.

Class night was held Thursday. Important events in the life of Florence Nightingale were portrayed by the class. The baccalaureate address was given Saturday by the Rev. LeRoy E. Froom.

The members of the graduating class are Lois Kelly, president; Wilma Wilks, vice president; Dorothy Bramble, secretary; Louise Nordstrom, treasurer; Ruth Bickford, Ruth Bush, Nina Case, Grace Detwiler, Grace Fenton, May Fonda, Lena Fowler, Herbert Fuller, Frances Hammond, Ethel Harter, Fern Hawkins, Mildred Johns, Helen McElmurry, Elizabeth Schneider, Anna Smith, Elizabeth Staughton, Florence Sundberg, Wildred Warren and Iva Wells.

The Washington Sanitarium and Hospital is one of twenty such institutions in the United States and Canada. Eight hundred nurses have been graduated from these sanitariums in the last four years. There are now 1,000 nurses in training in these schools of nursing.

Highlights of the War

As Related by Veterans Themselves

Natural Question

Before leaving the States for overseas duty, our division was filled to war strength by national army recruits from Texas and Oklahoma. We were first moved from our Southern cantonment to Hempstead, L. I., given our final exams and then hustled aboard a Long Island train to Long Island City, N. Y., thence the ferry to Jersey City, N. J. We crowded the ferry to capacity, men, packs, barrack bags, and these Western recruits gazed in wonder at sights strange to their eyes.

As the ferry pulled away from the Long Island shore, one T-O recruit looked over the crowded condition of the ferry (the SRO sign was up) and exclaimed: "How long does it take us to go across?" When he was told about twelve days, he exclaimed: "Where we all going to sleep?"

Real Nerve

I was attendant in a hospital in France and a doctor who had just been relieved from front line duty was dressing a patient who had lost both legs, and recognized him as a man he had attended at the front. The doctor turned to me and stated, "Delaney, this fellow has more nerve than any man I've ever seen. I crawled to him one night on the Muese-Argonne front and found him setting in the mud with one leg underneath him and one dangling on the side. I gave him an antitetanus and found both legs so near amputated by a shell fragment that there was nothing holding them but the tendons. I opened my instrument bag and severed the tendons from the left leg and started bandageing the stub. When about half through the man asked me to hurry as several of his buddies were laying around calling for help. He had picked up my scalpel and severed the few tendons and remaining flesh that held his other leg on, and asked me if there was anything else that he could do to hurry my work so that some of his comrades could be relieved. That's what I call nerve." The patient only smiled as the doctor talked on to me, and then remarked: "It hurts worse now than it did then, doctor. RUDICEL DELANEY.

A Dignity Chaser

In the winter of 1917-1918 Baltimore harbor was filled with ice, but a hard-boiled, up-from-the-ranks, pretentiously dignified naval officer insisted that our whaleboat crew should row him to another ship to visit a friend. Our crude rowing efforts caused him to let loose a few caustic comments until we thought as much of him as we did of poison.

He saw his friend, had a few too many drinks, and unleashed his best in abusive, seagoing language on the return trip. We were stirred into a mood for murder, but withstood temptation, and finally a chance favored us. The officer was standing in the bow of the boat when suddenly we bumped into a large cake of ice and over he went into the frigid waters of the bay—bright new uniform and all.

When we pulled him out he crawled sheepishly into the least conspicuous corner and didn't say another word. From that time on he acted toward our boat's crew as a person does toward those who know some scandal about him—with a touch of fear, combined with respect.

From our standpoint, the agony of wanting to laugh, while compelled not to, was the worst part of it all.

Another Collector

I was a member of the 57th Artillery, C. A. C., which was converted into heavy field artillery after arriving over there. Our first assignment was on the St. Mihiel salient, not far from the fortification of Metz. We had hardly gotten our guns into position when orders came sending us to the Meuse-Argonne. After arriving at the latter front it required three days and nights to get our guns in position on account of the ground being so soggy and full of shell holes. One tractor was not able to handle the type of gun our outfit used under these conditions, as they were 155 MM. Pieces of artillery were being brought up all the time, and when zero hour came we were hub to hub for miles. There was very little firing from our side during this time, only a few shells sent over every now and then to let the Boche know we were still there, but how those Dutchmen did shell us. All were wondering what kind of a war this was, anyway, with all the artillery lined up as it was and letting the Dutchmen pepper away. Well, zero hour came and one would have thought h—l broke loose, for you could not hear yourself talk, guns from the French 75 to the 16-inch naval were barking away and continued without a let up for about eight consecutive hours. I might say this firing started about 11:30 p. m. The following morning I saw hundreds of German prisoners being brought in. To about every 50 or 100 prisoners there would be two doughboys, one in the front and one in the rear. I was very anxious to obtain a souvenir at this time, so walked to where these prisoners were coming in. After watching a good many walk by I grabbed for a Dutchman's hat and he ducked, but I managed to grab the one following. This bird raised all kinds of h—l and I guess cussed me for all he was worth, but I still held onto the hat. When the rear doughboy got to where I was he told me to give the Dutchman his hat and I politely told him where to go, and was still the possessor of the hat when the war was over.

Barlow's Newest Plea For Cuban Land Denied

Havana, Cuba, May 4 (A.P.).—The superior court of the province of Havana yesterday dismissed the most recent petition filed by J. E. Barlow, American citizen, whose title to thousands of acres of Cuban land purchased more than ten years ago has been contested by local interests.

Barlow's latest suit concerned the nullifying of 100 writs against more than 50 persons in the fight for possession of Los Montes de Barreto, a suburban tract of about 1,000 acres, situated in Marianao. Barlow's case has dragged through the courts for many years. He has one more resort, that of appeal to the supreme court.

New Pro Basketball League May Materialize

Canton, Ohio, May 4 (A.P.).—Action on a proposal to consolidate the four Western teams of the American Professional Basket Ball League with three or four National League clubs to form a new Western pro league was postponed today until May 18 by franchise holders of interested clubs at a meeting here.

The May 18 meeting was called for Chicago, with President Storck, of the National, and President O'Brien, of the American Leagues, in charge.

After discussions between representatives of both leagues, it was said Canton, Toledo and Dayton, Ohio, and possibly Detroit, of the National League, are inclined to combine with Cleveland, Rochester, Chicago and Fort Wayne, of the senior group. Columbus, of the National circuit, made no move to join the proposed new alignment.

Babe Ruth and Rogers Hornsby gained some ground, Ruth with two hits, including his third home run of the year, in four times at bat, went on up to .352, while Hornsby's mark lifted to .256, with two out of five.

Celtics Beat French; Del Ray Is Routed

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., May 4.—The St. Mary's Celtics defeated the Howard A. French Nine here today, 9 to 4. Horn hurled the entire game for the Green and held the opposition to nine hits. Lyons and McIntyre hurled for the losers. French miscues caused their downfall. Ludlow and Simmerman shone for the victors. Colliflower hit a homer, double and single for the losers.

The Naval Hospital Nine won a free for all from the Del Ray A. C. Nine at Del Ray today, 17 to 12. The Sailors scored 12 runs in the second inning. King and Roberts led the vicious assault. Both teams booted the ball badly.

NATS DROP TO SECOND PLACE AS BROWNS WIN, 8-6

ERROR AIDS ST. LOUIS TO WIN SERIES FINAL BEFORE 15,000 CROWD

Burke's Wild Heave on Bunt Allows 3 of 7 Runs in Third.

Nats Rally to Score 4 Runs in Ninth; Thomas Fails.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

ONE of those "shots" heard around the world—around the baseball world, at least—was made at the Clark Griffith Stadium yesterday afternoon when Pitcher Bob Burke fired a weird toss in the second inning to give the St. Louis Browns an 8-to-6 victory over the Nationals. The defeat, coupled with a victory by the Indians over the Red Sox, knocked the Nats off the top rung of the ladder.

Incidentally, it cost the Johnsons their first series loss of the season and marked the first time they have been beaten two games in a row. A Sabbath gathering of 15,000 was on hand to suffer along with the team.

At the time Burke made his error little was thought of it, for the Browns were leading by a fair margin. As things turned out, however, the three runs which it scored proved to be more than the Browns' winning margin. Myles Thomas had drawn the starting assignment and the Nats had given him a two-run lead in the first, but he seemed to have left all of his stuff on the bench when he started this second round. Three runs were over and two were on the sacks when Burke came on the scene. Dick Coffman, who went the route for the Browns, was at bat, and he laid down an intended sacrifice bunt.

Burke's Toss as Bad as A Brown Homer.

Burke gathered it up and shot the ball toward third for a force play. The ball had plenty of speed, but poor direction, the result being that this tap of only a few yards gave the Browns all the benefit which would have been derived from a drive over the flagpole in center, as before Gaslin could retrieve the sphere the two runners, as well as Coffman, scored. After Blue tripled, Irving Hadley was rushed in and he gave a brilliant performance, but it proved to be a case of locking the stable door after the horse had been stolen.

Although Manush scored Blue with the seventh run of this big frame on a sacrifice fly, Hadley pitched hitless ball for the three outs of this inning and for the next three, granting the only run scored off him in the sixth. A pinch-hitter relieved him in the eighth and Chief Carlos Moore set the aliens down in order in the ninth.

Burke Gets Early Shower.

Coffman seemed to have lots of stuff, but wildness had him in hot water much of the time. For the first eight frames he held the Nats to but six hits, but he found the going plenty rough in the ninth when they suddenly put on a rally which all but sent the former Nat rookie to the "weeping" room. West opened with a triple over McNeeley's head and Rice immediately scored him with a single. Myer forced out Rice after Gaslin had lofted to Badgro and Cronin walked. Judge then cleared the bases with a three-bagger to right-center and scored on Bluege's single past O'Rourke. This put it up to Tate, but Coffman killed him at first by gobbling up his intended surprise bunt.

The Nats started like they would be sure winers, an error by O'Rourke giving West life. Rice singled the lead-off man to second and both advanced on a wild pitch. On Gaslin's out West scored and Rice moved up, and the latter tallied after McNeely's catch of Myer's long sacrifice fly.

Any hopes the Nats had were blasted in the St. Louis' second, however, as the first three batters knotted the count, Kress tripling, Badgro doubling and Melillo singling. After O'Rourke had come through with the fourth successive alien hit, Thomas uncorked a wild pitch, letting Melillo score and O'Rourke take second. With two balls and a strike called on Manion, Burke relieved Thomas and walked the batter, this being charged to his predecessor's account. Then came

Wild Pitch Gives Cubs 8-7 Victory Over Phils

Chicago, May 4 (A.P.).—A wild pitch by Koupal in the ninth inning, which permitted Danny Taylor to score, gave the Cubs their third straight victory over Philadelphia, 8 to 7 today. Forty thousand spectators watched the game.

Pat Malone went into the ninth inning with a 7-to-5 lead, but blew up for two runs on a walk by Thompson and hits by O'Doul, Klein and Whitney.

Grover Cleveland Alexander pitched only one-third of the ninth inning, but was charged with the defeat.

Two hits and an error placed Hartnett and Malone on third and second, respectively, and Koupal relieved him. Danny Taylor ran for Hartnett and a minute later came home with the winning tally on Koupal's wild pitch.

Today was the first time this season the Cubs played with their first-string line-up, Stephenson returning after a week's lay-off because of an injured shoulder.

Brown Faces Detroit in Opener

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TWO new sets of faces will be shown Washington fans this week, the Detroit Tigers arriving for a four-game set which starts this afternoon, and the Chicago White Sox, who are going great guns this year, due to play here Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Both teams are led by former Nats, Harris heading the Tigers, and Donie Bush, who piloted the local team in 1923, holding the Chisox reins.

Lloyd Brown is slated to oppose the Harrismen this afternoon, while Elon Hogsett likely will perform for the Tigers.

Harris, by the way, is having plenty of troubles. The Tigers always have been a slugging team and the advance dope was that they would crack out plenty of hits this season, which, to a certain extent, would make up for the mediocre pitching expected. The pitchers have been performing just as poorly as was expected, if not worse, the surprise being the poor stick-work shown. Alexander, Fothergill, Johnson, Gehringer and Funk have slumped at the tee almost from the start of the season, and the only batters on the team in the .300 class are Thirdbaseman Marty McManus, Outfielder Harry Rice and Catcher Pinky Hargrave.

Harris Already Experimenting.

Already Harris is trying an experiment when the opportunity offers. He is starting his heaviest-hitting outfield of Rice, Stone and Johnson, and when the Tigers have forged into a lead he has replaced the poor fielding Stone by Funk, who is a demon flyhawk. So far Harris has had few opportunities to try out this plan.

The sun was so strong yesterday that both Bluege and Cronin had trouble in seeing Melillo's high fly While they were debating among themselves as to which should take it, Myer, who could see the ball from a better angle, dashed over and took the ball.

Burke Tosses One For Books.

Pitcher Bob Burke collaborated with his mound rival in the Browns' first to give John Hix a subject for his "Strange As It Seems." Coffman, the St. Louis hurler, bunted with two men on, and Bob tossed the ball so hard and wildly past Bluege, trying for a force play at the hot corner, that even Coffman was able to score. Bringing home three runs on a bunt, no matter how it is done, is quite a stunt.

Yanks Beat White Sox, 7-4; Ruth Hits Homer

New York, May 4 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth's third home run of the season today played a large part in the New York Yankees' victory over the Chicago White Sox. The score was 7 to 4, with Ruth's homer bringing in the last two runs and holding off a Chicago rally. About 60,000 fans turned out.

Ed Wells pitched shutout ball for the Yankees for six innings, but the Sox got to him for pairs of runs in the seventh and eighth. Pipgras finished the game. Thomas and Walsh hurled for Chicago.

MACKS ROUT TIGERS BY 7-1 SCORE

Haas' Triple Breaks Up Duel; Shores Goes Route.

DETROIT, May 4 (A.P.).—George (Mule) Haas, slugging center fielder, broke up a pitchers' duel between George Uhle and Bill Shores today with a seventh-inning triple that scored three runs and started a rally which gave the world champion Athletics their fourth victory in a row over the Detroit Tigers.

The three runs broke a 1-to-1 tie which had existed since the fourth inning. The Tigers failed to score again, but the champions made runs in both the remaining innings, winning the game by a score of 7 to 1.

Uhle was retired and Bob Fothergill was sent in as a pinch hitter. He succeeded only in hitting into a double play which retired the side. Whitlow Wyatt went to the mound for Detroit, but the Athletics found him easily for five hits.

Schmeling, Wildly Greeted, Confident of Gaining Title

German Would Meet Dempsey in Fall, If He Wins.

NEW YORK, May 4 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling, Teuton puncher, arrived from Germany aboard the Hamburg-American liner New York today to go into training for his 15-round heavyweight championship bout with Jack Sharkey at the Yankee Stadium.

The German heavyweight was given a rousing reception at quarantine by a delegation of boxing friends. He appeared in perfect health and confident that he would whip Sharkey.

Schmeling plans to leave for his training camp at Endicott, N. Y., on Tuesday and will remain there, he said, until the day of the fight.

The Teuton puncher, who waded through some of the best of America's heavyweights last year, said he weighed 190 pounds now and expected to scale 187 when he enters the ring against Sharkey.

Schmeling was asked what he would do if he became champion.

"I should keep on fighting," he said. "I am only 24, and there is a long life ahead of me. My chief interests in life are and always have been athletics, and there would be nothing gained by retiring should I become champion."

Schmeling Amused At Suggestion.

He was amused at the suggestion that he might marry in the event he won the title. "I might some time, but not soon," he said. "There is plenty of time for romance later. A fighter must center on his business. Marriage distracts a fighter. When single he has only himself to consider. In athletics the single man gets farthest."

Resplendant in a gray-striped ensemble, with nineteen pieces of personal luggage, Schmeling was greeted on the pier by a crowd of German supporters, estimated at 4,000. Officials of the line offered to slip him onto the pier through a private way, but he refused and marched right into a shouting, mauling welcome.

"These people," he said, "got up early to see me. I am not going to disappoint them."

German Believes He Will Win.

The 24-year-old German said he believed that he could whip Sharkey.

"The better man will win, and that is how it should be," he said.

Schmeling intends to defend the heavyweight title in September if he beats Sharkey, and would prefer to fight it out with Jack Dempsey, to whom he bears a remarkable physcal and facial resemblance.

BOTH DERBY AND PREAKNESS GOAL OF GALLANT FOX

Belair Colt Has Chance For Double

Lord Derby's Visit Is Seen as Boost for Sport of Kings.

By J. B. SNODGRASS
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, May 4.—It begins to look like Gallant Fox is a sure shot for the Preakness, and that he will go in the Derby, carrying as large commissions as did Reigh Count or Bubbling Over. But granting the Belair colt will, in all probability, win the Preakness, can he make the famous double that was the distinctive feat of Sir Barton? Many will think he can, but you can get big odds that he will not.

The luck of racing is a factor to be reckoned with, and the horses "under cover," the dark horses, and the difference in distances, the weather, the traveling and everything in the eight intervening days will have weight in deciding the Derby. There will arise the time-worn rivalry of the East and the South in the Derby. The West will put its best foot foremost in this race, and frequently it is difficult to know the best foot when you see it. Kentucky turns in many surprises. Remember the Pompey debacle.

Three important Derby withdrawals occurred last week in Dedicate, Spinach and Flying Heels. The West will send to the Derby Buckey Poet, Tannery, Gallant Knight, High Foot and Sydney—just to mention some of its stars—and the Kentucky classic remains an open race, but this can not longer be said of the Preakness. It looks like Gallant Fox from any angle.

Future Book Planned on Belmont Stakes.

For the first time there will be a future book on the Belmont Stakes, to be run June 7. This is the third of the triumvirate—the Preakness, the Derby and the Belmont being the three classics of spring. A list of prices will be arranged today for the Belmont on the "pay or play" basis. This is the kind of betting where you lose if your horse is scratched, dies, or is withdrawn for any reason.

Thirty-seven horses are entered for the six races at Jamaica tomorrow. This may be a low record for original entries for a day's program of racing. This seems strange in view of the fact that there are 500 horses on the Jamaica track every morning in workouts and as many more at the barns and the owners of all apparently anxious to win purses.

The visit of Lord Derby to this country at the height of the racing season, and his expressed intention of going to the famous Blue Grass section of Kentucky as J. E. Widener's guest, extending his trip to the Kentucky Derby on May 17, and returning to New York on the Monday following to survey the Belmont Park racing, will be invigorating for the sport he has done so much toward advancing in his own country.

Kentucky Derby Sure to Thrill Lord Derby.

No doubt he will be impressed by the snap and dash of racing over here, but he will be disturbed by seeing so many 2-year-olds in racing, and so many inducements to race horses of tender age, for Lord Derby is reported to carry the thought of breeding better horses uppermost in his mind. He could only be charmed by an inspection of the Blue Grass breeding ground. No country has anything like it, and any sportsman who has never seen the Derby run at Churchill Downs would be entertained, although he may have a better derby in England, certainly one with more background than any race in the world. But the derby over here has a way all its own and an appeal that none try to resist.

When Lord Derby goes to Belmont Park, he will be ready to admit that it has the most spacious, the most attractive and the finest racing plant in the world. American horsemen and breeders will be informed and impressed by the visit of Mr. Widener's distinguished guest. He visits the two race tracks now in operation where racing and its appointments are at their best.

U. S. Walker Cup Golf Team Drills on Ship

Aboard Steamship Mauretania, May 4 (A.P.)—Six members of the American Walker Cup Golf Team plan to disembark at Plymouth early Tuesday morning, but Capt. Bobby Jones and Harrison R. Johnstone, amateur champion, will go on to Southhampton. Jones plans to practice on London courses before going to Sandwich where the Americans will gather on May 12. The cup matches will be played May 15-16.

All members of the team are in good shape although the voyage has been rather rough.

Jones commented on the good practice the team has been getting driving in a half gale from the deck of the steamship. There has been some speculation as to what Sir Harry Lauder, a fellow passenger, thinks as he watches the team members drive dozens of new balls into the ocean.

NELSON IN FORM.

Nelson's effective pitching enabled the S. Kann's Nine to defeat the Arrows yesterday, 10 to 9. Both teams were erratic afield.

—Pimlico Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md.—The final week of the important racing of the Maryland Jockey Club at Pimlico begins today, leading up to the $50,000 Preakness, first of the spring classics, on Friday. During the early days of the week, and beginning this afternoon, there will be some important tests involving candidates for this race and the Kentucky Derby, which follows on May 17.

Like the other race meetings, Pimlico has been fortunate so far in good weather as a rule, and other things have combined at Bowie, Havre de Grace and the Baltimore track to attract record attendance. This also has been the rule at Jamaica, first of the New York tracks, with its spring racing.

Two Derby candidates, four that will start in the Preakness and four that are expected to go in both the Derby and the Preakness, will start in the fourth and fifth races at Pimlico today. The Rennert Handicap is the feature, with $5,000 added, at six furlongs, but the fourth race, with the ordinary overnight purse, is the more important test of the two, because it is at a distance and has some horses in it rating higher than those in the Rennert.

FEATURES—In the Rennert, G. W. Foreman's NED O is expected to show improvement. He seems to have backslidden rather than advanced during his preparatory period of racing, but he has so large an advantage in weights in this race that he is picked as the outstanding prize possibility, although he needs a further distance than six furlongs. NED O is eligible for the Derby.

The same is true of Hal Price Headley's ANTE BELLUM also in the Rennert. The Seagram Stable's SWEET SENTIMENT won the Chesapeake at Havre de Grace and is expected to be the contender in this. Perhaps a greater danger still is POLYGAMOUS, impressive winer at Jamaica over Gold Brook. POLYGAMOUS is not eligible for either the Derby or the Preakness and carries top weight. There has been a shift between SWEET SENTIMENT and NED O of eight pounds in NED O's favor. SUN CRAIG, Preakness candidate; SIR JAMES, Preakness, and ANTE BELLUM, Derby eligible, are the other horses to be engaged in the major stakes.

In the field of five in the fourth race, at a mile and 70 yards, are four potential contestants for both the Derby and the Preakness. They are DESERT LIGHT, MICHIGAN BOY, CRACK BRIGADE and WOODCRAFT. Dr. Cassidy's CRACK BRIGADE is selected to win from Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's DESERT LIGHT. In the running of the Wood Memorial, in which Gallant Fox won by four lengths, CRACK BRIGADE was second by a length and a half over DESERT LIGHT in the best race so far run this year by 3-year-olds at this distance. It is the opinion that DESERT LIGHT has raced too much. He was worked hard early in the season by Alex Gordon in Kentucky, and after two gruelling races at Jamaica, and then this race today, with the Preakness and Derby coming in quick succession, it seems possible that too much has been made of the Wild Air colt. But he should beat MICHIGAN BOY for place. WOODCRAFT seems outclassed.

FIRST RACE—Howard Bruce's entry is selected in the first race. ROYAL MYSTERY and FAYLIN comprise the entry. ROYAL MYSTERY has started twice and was second in both races. SPIRIT RIVER will be the favorite. He is dangerous from a time standpoint. AULARIA should not be overlooked and has a good chance for third.

SECOND RACE—GUILDER is preferred here. His last was a workout, and he should do better this time. FAIR ORB, beaten a nose by SUNVIEW, should be the contender. Samuel Ross' NORMA JEAN will be knocking at the door also. She was third to Sun View and FAIR ORB.

THIRD RACE—The third is for maiden 2-year-olds. Look out for LEADER and listen for NOISY MISS, for the two probably will be fighting it out at the finish. LEADER seems to have a shade the best of it. The third horse should be OBSERVATION, quite dangerous. The field is a large one and anything can win.

SIXTH RACE—A claiming, for non-winners of more than three races this year and last. NAE BREEKS, winner at sensational odds over Paddock, and coming back to take third behind Judge Bartlett, a real horse, looks best, not so much on his winning race, but on his last. BUCKRILL will be one of the favorites, and is selected for place, and is a dangerous contender. He won his last easily from Select. JACK HAWKSLEY is pretty sure to be somewhere in the money.

SEVENTH RACE—A division of the sixth, under the same conditions. It is easier to have an opinion about, for SHEPHERDESS seems to outclass her field. FRANCES ST. L. and MY SCOOP are the next best, with the possible exception of JANE RINEHART, which finally won a race Saturday.

HERE FOR KENTUCKY DERBY

JACK FIELDS IN BOXING FEATURE

NEW YORK, May 4 (A.P.)—Jackie Fields defends his welterweight championship against young Jack Thompson, San Francisco Negro, at Detroit on Friday night and thus saves the current week from being a total loss so far as boxing is concerned.

Fields already holds several decisions over Thompson and wil be a strong favorite to retain his title. The Negro from the west Coast made a great showing against Jimmy McLarnin at the Garden here recently, and appears to be in shape for a determined bid for the championship that eluded him when he came in overweight on demand for a fight with Joe Dundee and knocked out the then 147--pound king in two rounds. The fight is at the championship distance of fifteen rounds.

Middlewest Has 2 Other Good Offerings.

The Middle West also has two other good oofferings. Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, meets Tommy Grogan, Omaha puncher, in a non-title bout at Omaha Friday. King Tut, of Milwaukee, and Bruce Flowers, of New Roochelle, N. Y., arch lightweight rivals, clash in a ten-rounder at Milwaukee Thursday.

Longchamp Feature Captured by Potiphar

Longchamp, France, May 4. (A.P.) Jefferson Davis Cohn's Potiphar captured the Daru Stakes, feature of today's card of races for 3-year-olds, candidates for the Grand Prix.

The son of Teddy, out of Lovely Glovelly, came through in the last 100 yards of the stretch to win handily by a length and reward his backers at five to one. Commanderie was second and Onafrasimus third. Thirteen started on the mile and a quarter jaunt.

G. U. FIGURES IN COLLEGE FEATURE

Nine Meets Temple; Netmen Will Face Colonials Today.

OPENING a banner week in local college sports, Georgetown's baseball and tennis teams today will figure in outstanding attractions. The baseball team, home again after defeating Seton Hall College at Orange, N. J., last Saturday for its fifteenth victory of the season, will engage the strong Temple University Nine on the Washington Barracks diamond, starting at 3:30 o'clock.

The tennis team, headed by Gregory Mangin, one of the Nation's big ten, will engage the crack George Washington net outfit on the Columbia Country Club courts, commencing at 2:30 o'clock.

In addition to these contests, Maryland's baseball and tennis teams will see action today, but both will perform on foreign fields. The tossers will battle Virginia Poly, leading Tri-State League team, at Blacksburg, Va., and the racqueters will oppose William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va.

Since losing to New York University in an extra inning game on April 21, Georgetown has taken the decision in five successive games, and again appears to be playing the snappy brand of ball that marked its early season streak of ten victories.

Temple Nine May Extend Georgetowners.

Although Temple thus far has not been setting any worlds on fire, it is a team to be feared and Georgetown is ready for a strenuous argument. Among the visiting Owls is Grover Wearshing, captain, centerfielder and the best player on the Quaker City team. He is a heavy hitter, a veritable ball hawk and the possessor of a deadly accurate throwing arm. His work has featured every game the Owls have played this spring and only recently he was offered a trial with the New York Yankees. He turned the offer down.

Coach Red Smith of Georgetown can call on any one of three pitchers to take the starting assignment against the Owls. Hal Poole and Bill Lomax, right-handers, and Harry Noznesky, southpaw, are all ready to go to the hill. Noznesky, however, is the probable nominee on account of the fact that he has had more rest since his last workout than either of the others.

Temple probably will start Gordon "Cy" Williams, a veteran who flings in the orthodox style, according to advance notices. Tony Dougal and Bill Melrose, rookie right-handers, will be held in reserve. If all goes well with Williams these two men will face the Marines at Quantico in a two-game series, opening tomorrow.

G. U.-G.W. Net Match Promising.

Considerable interest is attached to the Georgetown-George Washington tennis match at Columbia. Never before have these institutions met in a tennis contest. It seems fitting that upon the occasion of their inaugural clash that both teams possess unusual strength.

George Washington is most anxious to gain the decision. Any George Washington Team considers it a great achievement to topple a Hilltop Team. The Colonial array, which has lost only one of five matches to date, includes Bob Considine, scholder of the national public parks doubles championship; Larry Phillips, Alan Staubly, Bill Seidel, Charley Jaquette, Goldsmith, Edge and other former Washington high school luminaries.

A majority of the Hilltop players also are Washingtonians. They are Dooly Mitchell, who will occupy the No. 2 position; Fred Doyle, Kip Callan, Walter Berberich and Clyde Yoemans. Capt. Freddy Mesmer will be unable to participate, owing to a recent operation.

The dope points to a closely contested match with George Washington's chances resting on the performance of its lower ranking men. Georgetown is conceded an edge in the competition in the top positions.

SENATORS LOOK GOOD.

The Neighborhood House Senator Seniors showed championship strength yesterday in carrying the Croome, Md. Nine ten innings before yielding, 6 to 5. The Senators rallied to tie the score but lost the decision in the extra round. Deavers, Fugitt and Kramer were injured but played through the game. Deavers was "beaned" and knocked unconscious but returned to the mound and pitched the full game.

Open Race in High School Baseball Series Is Popular

Attendance Averages 1,000 for 3 Games; Eastern Nine in Debut Tomorrow Against Tech; Payne's Loss Blow to Western.

By WILLIAM F. DISMER, Jr.

UNLESS Dick Lanahan, pitcher at Eastern High School, proves to be a hurler of extraordinary ability, this interhigh baseball series, already marked by two mild upsets, threatens to continue as a series in which the so-called "dope" will not be worth the value of a rain check on a sunny day.

For with Bill Payne, Western's ace, who was foreseen as the outstanding hurler of the season, lost to his team for the remainder of the year through his ineligibility, none of the three other teams has produced even one pitcher of more than average ability, and neither Tech nor Central, both of which were knocked off in their opening games, count themselves out of the running for the championship.

Normally, one defeat in an interhigh series of four games means almost sure elimination as a contender, but the chances of this year's eventual champion going through the series without a defeat is slimmer than the postponement of Tuesday's game on account of snow.

Series Popular This Year.

With an average of 1,000 fans having turned out for the first two games, a still further interest in the series is foreseen should the championship seem to be headed for no particular team until the very end of the series. Not many games like last Friday's affair, which produced 35 runs, are likely to be seen

BALLSTON DEFEATS JEFFERSON IN LEAGUE OPENER

Hard Hitting Marks 13-8 Battle

Estes, McQuinn Drive in Ballston Runs in Early Frames.

THE Ballston A. C. Nine defeated the Jefferson District Fire Department tossers, 13 to 8, yesterday before a crowd of more than 300 fans at Ballston in the opening game of the Virginia section of the Capital City League unlimited race.

The fray became a slugging bee from the outset and kept the crowd on edge from start to finish. The Ballston batsmen made merry to the extent of nineteen hits at the expense of two Jefferson hurlers. Mac McGolerick, although in trouble at times, worked steadily for Ballston behind a good lead piled up by his mates.

Krause's Homer Gives Jeffersons Thrill.

Krause gave the Jefferson fans a thrill in the first frame, when he belted a home run with a mate on the paths. Ballston came back to take the lead with a three-run splurge and then about clinched the verdict in the second with a four-run attack.

Jefferson put on a five-run rally in the fourth to make the score tied at 8 all, but Ballston came back in its half of the same frame and scored three runs, chasing Hewitt from the mound in favor of Finnessy, who was touched for a pair in the eighth.

Estes and J. McQuinn led the Ballston assault. The former hit safely on four of five appearances at the plate, while the latter gathered three doubles for the afternoon's trouble.

Bauserman-Woodlawn Game Postponed.

By virtue of this victory the Ballston Nine assumes the lead in the race as the Woodlawn and Bauserman teams canceled their opening fray scheduled yesterday in respect to the late James Wood, son of "Pop" Wood, manager of the Woodlawn Team. Cherrydale Firemen drew a bye for the opening day and will get into action next week.

BROWNS DEFEAT NATS IN FINAL, 8-6

Coffman Wild Throughout.

When Blue tripled, Burke was excused and, after Hadley had fanned McNeeley, Manush came through with his air sacrifice to give the Browns their seventh run of the session.

Melillo's single and theft, a walk and Coffman's scratch single gave the Browns their marker in the sixth, which ended the scoring for the day until the Nats put on their fancy but too short splurge in the final.

Melillo was credited with two of the visitors' seven hits, while three of the ten credited the Nats were from the bat of Capt. Joe Judge, one being a three-sacker. West, Bluege and Rice were credited with two each, the latter extending his consecutive-game hitting streak to fourteen contests. Except in the ninth, however, Coffman kept the Nats from hitting in the pinches, no less than eleven perishing on the runways.

LANGUAGE DISPUTE SPLITTING BELGIANS

Unity of Celebration Over Political Independence Is Threatened.

WOULD EXCLUDE FRENCH

Ghent, Belgium, May 5 (A.P.).—At the very moment when Belgium is perparing to celebrate the first centenary of its political independence by a double international fair at Antwerp and Liege, the capitals of the Flemish and Walloon Provinces, the language question has come to the foreground with a dangerous acuteness.

Both French and Flemish are recognized by the Belgian constitution as "national" languages.

French was nationalized when the Belgian provinces separated from The Netherlands, in 1830, because the Flemish language was used by the then Dutch "oppressors." It was adopted especially by the inetlligentsia, who always considered French the language of the "smart" or "educated" people in opposition to the Flemish dialects, used by the peasants and artisans.

In the course of years this led to a social split among the Flemings themselves, and it may thus rightly be said that the linguistic question was originally a social problem.

See French Preferred.

The Flemish extremists, in fact, are not waging war on the French language as such, but "betrayed by the governing classes of the Flemish population," as they say, "who favored the French language rather than their own," they ask recognition of their native language in all official departments as well as in the army and in the schools, from the primary grades up through the universities. They want Flemish to be the only official language in all Flemish provinces.

During the war, readily supported by the German occupiers who were prompt to discover the potlitical possibilities of the language dispute, the Flemish extremist leaders made a definite bid in behalf of their "disregarded rights." Under the guidance of the Germans, these extremists set up an independent government called the "Council of Flanders," and they might have gone further and proclaimed a Free Flanders, republic or kingdom, had not the armistice stopped short this "separatist movement."

Flee for Their Lives.

The responsible extremist leaders fled for their lives, either to Germany or to Holland, and all of them were subsequently condemned, either to death or to the sentences by the Belgian government after the war.

Still, the linguistic question remained unsolved. It was taken up again, about three years ago, by other Flemish leaders, whose loyalty to Belgium was unchallenged. They obtained, in behalf of most of the "traitors" a political amnesty of which some of them availed themselves to start afresh a campaign on behalf of an "independent" Flanders.

These extremists succeeded in winning eleven seats from the loyalist Flemings in the parliamentary elections, and their group, headed by Mr. Vos and supported by the only Communist in the House of Depûties, has brought about a rather series political situation.

The moderate Flemings under the leadership of Burgomaster Van Lauwelaert of Antwerp, are trying to persuade the government to take the wind out of the extremists' sails by conceding their main claim, which is the complete Flemingization of Ghent University, which they consider as the Walloon stronghold.

Opposed to Change.

But, most of the enlightened Flemings, supported by the whole French speaking part of the population, are opposed to such a change in this center of Latin culture. They have offered instead to create an entirely new Flemish university, either at Antwerp or Ghent, in order to meet the wishes of the Flemish leaders and make it possible for those who wish to do so to follow the complete courses of a university in the Flemish language. All existing universities in Belgium—Brussels, Louvain, Liege and Ghent—are French institutions.

To this proposal, however, the French leaders object; for reasons of sentiment and prestige. This gives the linguistic question its political touch, as the fight has centered upon transformation of the University of Ghent and the special technical schools annexed to it, into an exclusive Flemish institution.

The Flemish extremists threaten to interfere by denominations, obstruction and even more drastic means, with this year's celebration of Belgium's independence, unless Ghent University is handed over to them unconditionally.

LOVE FINDS WAY AND OBTAINS JOB

Newlyweds Have a Tough Time at First, but Win in the End.

WHAT A WEDDING TRIP!

Special to The Washington Post.

Sheboygan, Wis., May 5.—Neither Earl Zittel, 19, nor Maris Yerkman, 19, had any money—but they were very much in love. They wanted to get married right away, and the five-day lapse required between the license and the ceremony in Wisconsin seemed like five eternities. So they decided on a trip to Waukegan.

Marie told her brother about the plan and he gave her $10 as a wedding gift. Her mother added $3. Earl went to a car rental agency here and said he wanted an automobile for two hours to attend the funeral of his grandmother, depositing $2 of the $13. He got the car, and, accompanied by Walter Clark, a friend, and Mrs. George Yerkman, a sister-in-law of Marie, the impatient couple started for Waukegan Friday afternoon.

At Milwaukee the bridal party became hungry and stopped for lunch. When the time came to pay they discovered that the $10 gift from Marie's brother had been lost. There was just $1 left and that went for the lunch. Things looked pretty blue. Then Mrs. Yerkman had an inspiration. She pawned a ring for $6.

With this new capital $1 was spent for gasoline and cigarettes and the trip to Waukegan was continued. They arrived there at 8 p. m. and coaxed the license clerk from his home. He gave them the license and took their $5. Again they were broke. But a kindly Baptist minister was found and he "charged" the ceremony.

The party started back for Sheboygan. On the way they ran low on gas.

A mere obstacle like this meant nothing by this time and Earl drove into a filling station and had four and one-half gallons put in the tank. Then he offered to leave his coat as payment. The attendant had a coat. Earl produced his marriage license. Not worth a thing in a filling station. Then the attendant, learning that they had just been married, softened and gave them the gas as a wedding present. The party rolled into Sheboygan at 4 a. m. and Clark, the best man, took them to his place and fried eggs and made coffee.

"The best meal I ever ate," said Zittel; "how that boy can cook." He sat back from the table and the world looked good. A heavy pounding was heard at the door.

He Is Incarcarated.

"Wedding guests already?" wondered Earl. Not guests, but the police. Earl was wanted on a charge of driving a car out of the State without the owner's consent. So he spent the first hours of his first day of married life in jail—until the complainant, T. W. Knocke, came round. When Knocke heard of all that had happened he relented and withdrew the charge. He told Earl that he owed $19 for rental.

"I haven't got a dollar," Earl confessed. Knocke considered the problem.

"I'll give you a job," he said, "and I'll take the rental out of your wages little by little."

"Boy," yelled Earl, "I've got a wife and a real job, something I never had before in my life. She's a wonderful girl and I'll do right by her."

RAIN OF SEQUOIAS STIRS CALIFORNIA

Giant Trees Are Being Dynamited to Usable Dimensions.

SOCIETY REPORT WARNS

Special to The Washington Post.

Los Angeles, May 5.—Warnings that the sequoias and some of the old missions are in danger of destruction are voiced in the annual report of the California Restoration Society, made public by C. James Lansing, secretary. The report announces that dynamiting, to reduce the sequoias to usuable sizes, has resulted in wastage of one-half of this timber. In enumerating that there are 85,000 trees in this State, the report quotes Enos A. Mills' plea to preserve these forest giants and not let them end "as fence posts and shingles."

On the subject of the old Spanish missions the report announces that some of these outstanding tourist attractions and monuments of early California history are being reduced to ruin. Secretary Lansing records that, due to the efforts of Albert V. Mayrhofer, of San Diego, a fund of $60,000 has been created to restore completely the old Mission San Diego de Alcala, first white settlement in California, founded by Junipero Serra on July 16, 1769.

The famous old Archangel San Miguel Mission north of Paso Robles is reported in imminent danger of collapse, with resultant destruction of art treasures. The California Restoration Society had the mission inspected by engineers and later had the structure shored up. It is estimated that $50,000 is needed to restore this mission completely. The report announces that the society is contemplating a campaign to raise a foundation fund for the restoration of the various historical missions.

Another project engaging the interest of the society is that of making a historic site at Donner Lake, made famous by the Donner party in gold-rush days. A campaign will be made to raise half of the needed sum by public subscription to match State appropriation.

HIS PENNIES TURN TO $1,600 ACCOUNT

PUTS GIRL IN COLLEGE

Special to The Washington Post.

Omaha, May 2.—A master in the art of persistently and painlessly saving money is Don B. Amsden, head of the millinery department at Kilpatrick's store.

He has not spent a single penny since the day he was married, 22 years ago. The pennies saved have grown to a total of almost $1,600. With the six members in his family cooperating in penny keeping, the sum grows rapidly.

It should have started, but didn't, when he was a boy on the farm, he says.

He could never save. Always, when young Amsden started to a Fourth of July celebration, his father, a Scot, would tell him to be sure to spend whatever money he needed to have a good time—whether it be $2 or $5 or more—but to be sure to bring home a little of it—not to come home broke. Amsden always fell down on the assignment.

One time he decided that he was fed up on all that "save, save" talk and he determined to show his father what could be done. He went to the celebration with $2 and brought back all but 5 cents.

"Seven Kinds of Fool."

"I give up," the elder Amsden finally said. "You're seven kinds of fool. You're too dumb and too smart ever to amount to anything."

When he was married he had just enough to pay for the honeymoon trip. An hour after the ceremony was performed he and the new Mrs. Amsden sat down to contemplate the future.

He proposed that they save all pennies. They have.

It's easy now. He couldn't any more spend a copper today than he would cut off his right hand, he swears. It's become more than a matter of saving—it's almost an obsession, and he even looks for opportunities to get pennies in change.

The fund was intended to pay for college educations for the children. Now the oldest daughter, Ann Margaret, is a freshman at the University of Nebraska, but the fund has not been touched. She as well as Betty Jane, 15; Don Bruce, 11, and Alan Brooks, 6, are firmly enlisted in the cause, as well they might be, since the money belongs to them.

They started cooperating early. When they were tiny tots and wanted a penny for candy their father would give them a nickel instead, letting them keep the change for their own.

To make it seem more profitable to save, their father made the proposition that he would pay them a quarter for each 20 pennies they saved and brought to him—thus offering a premium of 20 per cent for thrift.

Awaits New Idea.

He's expecting any day now one of the boys, with a keen eye for finance, will take five nickels, make five 1-cent purchases and bring back the twenty pennies to receive a quarter.

During the war the fund grew rapidly. Because there was a 1-cent tax on about everything imaginable he frequently took home as many as 40 pennies in one evening.

Although the pennies annually total between $30 and $40, the fund, with interest, grows by more than $100. In another five years it will be increasing at the rate of $200 each year.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The first three days of this week will mark the closing of the campaign for raising $25,000 for a three-year program of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce.

Last week a three-day drive netted more than $18,000, and the solicitors expected to raise the remaining $7,000 by Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock, when they will meet for luncheon in the Young People's Building for reports. The closing event will be a dinner at 6:15 o'clock Thursday evening for final reports.

Robert South Barrett is general chairman, with F. Clinton Knight, vice chairman, and Hugh Clarkson, A. M. Remschel and L. H. Dudley as colonels in charge of sections A, B and C, respectively. Each section has four majors, each major four captains, and each captain three lieutenants, and practically all of these workers have taken a membership in the chamber or at least subscribed to the movement.

A subscription of $25 allows a full membership in the reorganized Chamber of Commerce, while any amount less than that permits all the privileges of the body except the vote. Alexandria merchants are expected to join 100 per cent before the close of the drive.

A company of marines, to be known as Company L, Third Battalion, 20th Regiment of Marines, is being formed in Alexandria, with Hubert B. Moore as captain and Winslow Randolph second lieutenant. Forty members will be necessary to the organization of the company, and 13 noncommissioned officers will be chosen when the company is formed. Recruiting is now in progress at 822 King street, and the roster is open to persons between the ages of 18 and 35 years. The recruiting office is open each evening from 6:30 until 8 o'clock.

The plans of the new company provide for weekly drills at the armory, and the organization will attend a 15-day encampment at the Quantico Marine Base, from July 6. Capt. Moore is especially anxious that members of the Citizens Military Training Camp become identified with the company, and he anticipates no difficulty in obtaining the required number of recruits. This is the first time an attempt has ever been made to enlist a company of marines in Alexandria.

Mrs. William Jackson Norton has been elected president of the General Parent-Teacher Association, succeding Mrs. E. E. Carver. Other officers chosen were Mrs. Pierce S. Ellis, vice president, and Miss Treakle, secretary.

The United Parent-Teacher Association presented the retiring president, Mrs. Carver, with a wrist watch, the presentation being made by R. C. Bowton, superintendent of the public schools. Mrs. Norman L. Williamson, retiring vice president, and Miss Elizabeth King, retiring secretary, were presented with flowers; Mrs. Hugo Herfurth, past president of Maury School unit, received an emblem pin of the P.-T. A. and Mrs. C. H. Strader, former principal of Jefferson School, now principal of the George Mason High School, was presented with a life membership certificate.

The course in vocational training at the Alexandria High School, which was the first of its kind to be organized in Virginia, has proven so popular, according to Henry T. Moncure, principal of the high school, that a representative of the State Board of Education was here recently to observe it with a view to recommending its establishment in all high schools of the State.

Past masters' night will be observed May 15 by Andrew Jackson Lodge, No. 120, A. F. & A. M., in the Masonic Temple, on Cameron street. This lodge has 28 past masters, all of whom are expected to be present. A suitable program will be arranged in honor of the guests, and Edgar Warfield, sr., will give reminiscences of the Civil War, and it is expected also that Charles F. Russell, a charter member of Herndon Lodge, also will be present and relate some of his experiences in the War Between the States. The Cabletow Lodge, of Washington, will attend as special guests of the local lodge.

Andrew Jackson Lodge has on its roster eighteen members who have been on the rolls for more than 40 years.

The body was taken to the funeral home of Cunningham, Kennedy & Watkins, and will be taken today to the residence at 239 Bellefonte avenue, Potomac, where funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, by the Rev. John S. Sowers, pastor of the Del Ray Baptist Church. Three sons survive.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 4.—Returning to Washington from a visit to the Grand Caverns, at Grottoes, Va., a special party of 107 members of Congress and their wives stopped over here late this afternoon for a visit to Monticello and the University of Virginia.

The first to sign the register at the Poe shrine was Mrs. Harrison, wife of Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BOND PLAN SCORED

Cost of Sewerage System to Taxpayer Should Be Estimated, Is View.

URGES CAREFUL STUDY

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The plan of the County Board of Supervisors to force a bond issue of $2,173,089 upon Arlington County for a county-wide trunk line sewerage system before the taxpayers are informed what the measure will mean in increased levies is a most serious mistake, Harry C Saffell, former president of the Clarendon Community Sewerage Corporation, declared in a statement last night.

"I am not opposed to a county-wide sewerage system The county needs extensions of its present lines. But to announce that the court will be asked to set a date for such an election Tuesday, placed the bond issue in danger of defeat," he said.

"The sewerage system under contemplation will not be like installing a water system. Much more detailed engineering is necessary, a most careful study should be made, and the people fully informed as to the cost. What will be done with the systems already installed?" Mr. Saffel asked.

"Another big mistake, to my mind, is the proposal for establishment of a number of disposal plants. One is all that is necessary and that one should be established at Four Mile Run," he said.

"A few years ago, a movement was started to float a bond issue for water. The first thing that was done was to make a careful survey. The work was placed in the hands of an engineer who was capable, and after going to the people with an educational campaign, the water bond issue passed by the greatest majority of any bond issue in the history of the county. Do that with the sewerage bond issue, and the people will be more than willing to support it," he asserted.

"We need not only sewers and the additions to the schools, but to hold the elections for the two bond issues on the same day, will hurt the school bond issue, which I heartily favor. I am unalterably opposed to the sewer bond issue at this time," Mr. Saffell declared.

"Before any bond issue of such size is voted upon we should be permitted to decide whether we will retain the present for mof county government or approve the commission form,' he concluded.

Expressions of opinions similar to those of Mr. Soffell have been heard from many other sections of the county.

It is understood that in the vicinity of Cherrydale community sewerage corporation has been established and there appears little or no sentiment in favor of the sewer bonds at this time.

The monthly meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation will be held tomorrow night at the Lyon Park Community House at 8 o'clock. President William C. Hull will preside.

Mill Union Chief Warns Opponents

Danville Local Organized and Ready to Press Demands, He Says.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., May 4.—Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, today issued a public statement in which he said that the Danville local is now completely organized and is prepared to make an issue with the management of the Dan River Mills on a number of grievances.

"The executive board of the organization," he said, "has authorized me to state that the union will continue the effort to reach a settlement with the company, and failing this the workers will be called together and every member given an opportunity to express himself or herself before any further action is taken. The only danger of trouble in Danville will come from those who interfere with the union and try to deny the workers what they are fully entitled to." The statement also contains an attack on the alleged local activities of "the communists who are bent on disrupting our union."

Mr. Gorman also announced that a credit union is being established here. "At the present time," he said, "workers are compelled to pay 42 per cent interest and in some cases on the inside of the mills to pay up to 500 per cent to supervisors who induce the workers to borrow money and then charge usurious rates of interest."

TWO STILLS RAIDED IN FAIRFAX COUNTY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 248, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 919-J-1.

The Fairfax County police seized two stills and about 50 gallons of alleged corn whisky during the week-end. Late yesterday afternoon Sheriff E. P. Kirby, State Prhibition Inspector Virgil Williams and Policeman Carl R. McIntosh and A. W. Mills, of the county road police, raided a still located in the woods near Seneca. They arrested William Sprouse,, 22, of McLean. Two men, who were at the still when the police approached, fled. Sprouse was captured, police say, after a long chase through the woods. The other man made his escape.

The still which was about 75-gallon capacity was in operation at the time, and about 40 gallon of the finished product was seized. It was located on the property of J. E. Waddel, of Middleburg, Va. Six hundred gallons of mash and the still were destroyed by the police. Justice of the Peace Thomas P. The still and mash was destroyed by the police, and a man named William H. Hardbower was arrested near the still. He denied ownership of the still and stated to the officers that he was turtle hunting. Hardbower was taken to Fairfax, where Justice Chapman fixed bond at $500 for his appearance before the grand jury.

Five Die, 17 Hurt In African Battle

Worcester, South Africa, May 4 (A. P.).—Four mulattoes and one Negro native were killed and seventeen other persons injured in a three-cornered battle with police today.

Constable Barter was struck with a hatchet during the fight in the streets of the town, and his condition is critical. The police intervened during a row between mulattoes and Negroes, and were finally forced to open fire when stoned.

As the mob outnumbered them, they were compelled to retreat. Reinforcements of 50 policemen were rushed from Cape Town, but the local police finally got the situation under control, though it was feared trouble might break out again.

The authorities say the row was started by drink-maddened mulattoes, known in South Africa as "colored persons," and not by the natives, who are pure Negroes.

THE NEW WEEK'S FILMS

COLUMBIA

"THE DIVORCEE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, starring Norma Shearer, supported by Conrad Nagel, Chester Morris and Robert Montgomery. Adapted from Ursula Parrott's story of "Ex-Wife" by Nick Grinde and Zelda Sears, with dialogue by John Meehan. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

This is the sort of stuff that box-office successes are made of—a daring preliminary situation, subsequent developments that are none too delicate, brisk and witty lines that tingle with sophistication and a climax and denouement that place the whole delightful business safely on the side of propriety.

There is no great novelty either in the basic idea of the plot or the method of its exposition, but by virtue of particularly deft casting such triteness as might otherwise obtrude itself is lightly and effectively glossed over by the expertness of the players in the numerous roles of importance. They illumine commonplace episodes with scintillant wit and smart persiflage and comport themselves generally after the manner of affluent young people en rapport with society's better usages and reasonable luxuries. Even divorce.

In fact, divorce may be said to be the theme of the drama, with the final argument eloquently opposed to its easy functioning. The lesson in conjugal felicity is predicated upon a subtle attack on the double standard of moral conduct among married folk. When the young husband who idolized his wife permitted his fidelity to lapse it "didn't mean a thing;" when she matched his perfidy after three years of married happiness, that was something entirely else again! He became a roving drunkard, she a roaming temptress whose charms levied heavy tribute from many men—until she encountered the old sweetheart who hadn't quite won her hand, came face to face with a few of life's bitter realities and had the courage to adhere to her convictions You can see for yourself how worn from constant use the dramatic framework is.

But, as I have attempted to intimate, this is completely compensated for by the charm of Norma Shearer's performance in the role of Jerry, the bride, and those associated with her in the roles of major consequence. Three well-balanced masculine performances dominate the support—the husband, by Chester Morris; the old sweetheart, by Conrad Nagel, and the rich young philanderer, by Robert Montgomery. Their work is glib and polished, and, at widely remote intervals, adequately forceful.

In the feminine support, Florence Eldridge, as a much-married butterfly, and Zelda Sears, veteran character actress, cast in the comedy role of combined lady's maid and cook, contribute generously to the vivacity of the play, with Mary Doran supplying the sinister note as hubby's surreptitious, but strongest, weakness. Tyler Brooke, George Irving, Robert Elliott and Helen Johnson complete the cast.

The auxiliaries are led by one of Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy's droll exhibits, called "Men o' War," in which they masquerade as a pair of simple sailors enjoying themselves on shore leave in Central Park, and include the Hearst Metrotone News—in which Secretary of State Stimson outtalks a lot of tugboat whistles in New York Harbor—and usual house features.

PALACE

"YOUNG EAGLES." Paramount production, starring Charles (Buddy) Rogers, supported by Jean Arthur, Paul Lukas and Stuart Erwin. Directed by William Wellman. Reviewed Sunday night by Mary Porter Russell.

Once more the World War serves as the basis for a picture. Many versions of the great struggle have come and gone on our screens. We have had cynical films, heartbreaking films, cloyingly sentimental films and comic films. This one is of still another type. It is a light little comedy drama, disclosing a glorified and romantic war, stripped of its bitterness, its tragedy and its hatred. It will provoke in you no soul-stirring emotions. It doesn't even try. But if you don't object to its attempt to restore your belief in Santa Claus you will find it thoroughly enjoyable.

The air scenes, in themselves, are magnificent. Far up above the clouds, planes dip and twist and fall in battle. Shots pepper out in staccato accompaniment to roaring motors. It is all very exciting, but not too exciting, for you have a feeling that nobody will get seriously hurt—and nobody does.

Buddy Rogers appears as a young American flier who brings down a likeable enemy ace and takes him to Paris for the purpose of getting him drunk and obtaining information. There he is doped by his beloved Mary, who runs off with the prisoner and gives every possible indication of being a German spy. Buddy feels pretty bad about it, and you can't blame him. He doesn't know, like we do, that she is really an American spy, and that her love for him is true. But in the end he learns all and the armistice comes and he recovers from his wound and the German and Mary unite in making joyful his days of convalescence. The obvious conclusion is that it's a good old world, after all.

Buddy and Jean Arthur are very sweet as the young lovers, and Stuart Erwin gives a good comedy performance as Buddy's pal. Paul Lukas plays the captured German with distinction.

The stage production, "All Aboard," features as master of ceremonies a dynamo of youth and energy in the person of Teddy Joyce. You will care for Teddy's dancing greatly, and, if you don't, we insist it will not be his fault. One of his scenes, done in shadow before a white background, is tremendously effective. He plays the violin, too, and leads the orchestra in a hot rendition of "The Great Big Man From the South" that got an encore from Sunday night's audience.

Seed and Austin are introduced as comedians and Josephine Davis stutters and clowns by way of proving that girls, also, can be funny. "The Four Emperors of Harmony," a colored quartet, render a group of excellent songs, culminating in a solo offering of "Ol' Man River." The Chester Hale girls take care of the ensemble numbers.

METROPOLITAN

"HOLD EVERYTHING." Warner Bros. all-Technicolor adaptation of the musical comedy by DeSylva, Brown and Henderson and John McGowan, featuring Winnie Lightner and Joe E. Brown, supported by Georges Carpentier and Sally O'Neil and Bert Roach. Screen version by Robert Lord, with added musical numbers by Dubin and Burke. Directed by Roy Del Ruth. Reviewed Saturday night.

If you can not laugh at this one, there is something wrong with your laugher!

Adapted from a musical comedy first fashioned to fit the extravagant talents of Bert Lahr, "Hold Everything" proves no less admirable a vehicle for the expansive buffoonery of Joe E. Brown and the Amazonian acrobatics of Winnie Lightner, a pair of funsters whose abilities dovetail so perfectly that it seems safe to predict that they will be seen frequently together hereafter.

It takes an extraordinarily durable comedian to withstand Miss Lightner's enthusiastic exuberances. When this sizable gal gets going something usually has to give. In "Gold Diggers of Broadway" it was the mountainous Albert Gran she demolished; in the present pastime, it is the less bulky Mr. Brown whom she little by little takes apart. All very funny.

The narrative disclosed in this photographed stage form, executed its entire length in Technicolor, concerns two prize fighters in training and their girl friends. One is a contender for the light-heavyweight championship; the other, a palooka from the same stable, who admits that he has "It" and is devastating to women. This irks Miss Lightner, just as Georges Carpentier's refusal to take his fight with the champ seriously does Sally O'Neil. And that's about all there is to it except a lot of clowning and singing and dancing in and around the training camp—until the night of the fights. These are tough on the blood pressure.

Mr. Brown, in the role of Gink Schiner, is the first to enter the arena, and the innovations he introduces to the manly art of beezer busting are many and murderous. Then comes Gorgeous Georges to do some real stepping and come from behind to outslug the champion and win the title—all for the sake of Sue. Typical musical comedy material, designed for laughing purposes only, and fulfilling its mission better than the stage show itself!

The entire production is lent an importance possibly a trifle beyond its deserts by being filmed entirely in color, many gaudy cabaret scenes introducing a large ensemble and Abe Lyman and his band. Five songs are sung during the action: "When the Little Red Roses Get the Blues for You," by an unnamed young man I failed to recognize; "Isn't This a Cock-Eyed World?" and "Physically Fit," by Miss Lightner, and "Sing a Little Theme Song" and "To Know You Is to Love You," by Georges Carpentier and Sally O'Neil. They are not bad and are as well sung as they would be in musical comedy—Miss Lightner's better.

Further fun is embodied in the bill in the form of a Mickey Mouse animated cartoon comedy in sound, bearing the title of "The Haunted House"—and don't you think it wasn't! And if the two fights aren't enough, Gus Sonnenberg butts his way through three falls of a wrestling match with Count Zarynoff in the Universal newsreel, Graham McNamee announcing.

RKO-KEITH

"INGAGI." Congo Pictures, Ltd., production of the Sir Hubert Winstead and Capt. Daniel Swayne expedition into Africa, synchronized. Reviewed Saturday evening (second week), by J. F. Brady.

This is the second production to come labeled as the first Zane Grey story to be transferred to the talking screen. The other, "The Lone Star Ranger," was exhibited here several months ago and doubtless lays more authentic claim to that distinction, though the current offering may console itself with the knowledge that it is better, if not first. It has everything its predecessor had and a good deal more besides. And that is just one way of saying that it is rip-roaring entertainment. If you like wild and wooly movies—if you like them even a little—you will find it irresistible.

The good old reliable plot deals with the West during the period of its lawlessness. What an awful place it was in those days! When it comes to the pass that the sheriff himself can't be relied upon, you may know that things are pretty bad. This sheriff was a dreadful person. There was only one man in the country who was worse, and that was Mr. Stack, who killed the owner of the Hammond ranch and paid the back taxes with gold stolen from the property, thus claiming it for his own. When the murdered boy's sister arrived, Stack tried to entrap her in his villainous toils, and he might have succeeded, too, if Dick Bailey hadn't been there to protect her and save the old homestead and bring the murderer to justice in a thrilling battle of guns and fists.

There is so much action in the development of the story that you stir in your seat in sympathy. A hundred or more horses gallop across the screen in a fascinating round-up for one memorable episode, and the cowboys shoot with a frequency and ease that would move the Chicago racketeers to envy.

Richard Arlen, who is surprisingly at home in the saddle, makes a thoroughly likeable Dick. He is good in both his comic and dramatic moments, and how he ever came out alive in his big fight with Fred Kohler is still a mystery. Mr. Kohler's Stack is a bad case all right, but he is no weakling. Harry Green has a comedy role that gives him a goodly share of the footage, and there's no denying that he is funny. Regis Toomey, William LeMaire, George Chandler, Guy Oliver and Gus Saville also contribute worthwhile characterizations. Mary Brian, with her wholesome type of charm, is well cast as Ruth Hammond, the only woman.

Two short comedies are shown, in addition to the newsreels, and both do well enough. They are "Keeping Company," with Eddie Buzzell, and "Absent Minded," with Wallace Ford and Bobbie Perkins.

The orchestra, as a National Music Week overture, offers "The Force of Destiny," by Verdi.
